LOWELL. Harvard Commemoration Ode.

But the real and lasting victories are those of peace, and not of war.

EMERSON. Worship.

The Pilgrim they laid in a large upper chamber, whose window opened toward the sun-rising; the name of the chamber was Peace, where he slept till break of day, and then he awoke and sang.

BUNYAN. The Pilgrim's Progress. Pt. i.

War its thousands slays, Peace its ten thousands.

BEILBY PORTEUS. Death. 1. 178.

Peace rules the day, where reason rules the mind.

COLLINS. Eclogue II. Hasson. 1. 68.

Peace and friendship with all mankind is our wisest policy, and I wish we may be permitted to pursue it.

THOMAS JEFFERSON. Letter to C. W. F. Dumas. 1786.

I knew by the smoke that so gracefully curled

Above the green elms, that a cottage was near,

And I said, "If there's peace to be found in the world,

A heart that was humble might hope for it here."

MOORE. Ballad Stanzas.

. . . Verily I do think

War is as hateful almost, and well-nigh
As ghastly, as this terrible Peace, whereby

We halt forever on the crater's brink,
And feed the wind with phrases . . .

WM. WATSON. Ver Tenebrosum.

The days of peace and slumberous calm are fled.

KEATS. Hyperion. Bk. ii.

Yet there we follow but the bent assigned

By fatal Nature to Man's erring kind;

Mark where his courage and his conquests cease!

He makes a solitude and calls it—peace!

BYRON. The Bride of Abydos. Canto ii.
St. 20.

[Byron may have had his Tacitus in mind, who ascribes a similar phrase to Gaius, the leader of the Britons in their battles against the Roman legions at the foot of the Grampian lines. "Not East nor West," cried Gaius, "would satisfy these Romans. Alone of all people they covert alike plenty and poverty. To plunder, to slay, to harry they miscall empire. And where they make a solitude they call it peace."—Atque ubi solitudinum faciunt pacem adpellant.]

L'empire, c'est la paix.

The empire is peace.

NAPOLEON III. Speech at Bordeaux. Oct. 9, 1852.

Let us have peace.

U. S. GRANT. Accepting Nomination. May 20, 1868.

Peace! and no longer from its brazing portals

The blast of War's great organ shakes the skies!

But beautiful as songs of the immortals, The holy melodies of love arise.

LONGFELLOW. The Arsenal at Springfield.

Why do they prate of the blessings of Peace? We have made them a curse.

TENNYSON. Maud. i. 6.

Falstaff. The cankers of a calm world and a long peace.

SHAKESPEARE. I. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 2.

In the inglorious arts of peace.

ANDREW MARVELL. Upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland.

When shall all men's good

Be each man's rule, and universal Peace Lie like a shaft of light across the land,

And like a lane of beams across the sea?

TENNYSON. The Golden Year.

PEDANT.

Wel loved he garleek, oynons, and eek lekes,

And for to drinken strong wyn, reed as blood.

Then wolde he speke and crye as he were wood.

And whan that he wel dronken hadde the wyn,

Than wolde he speke no word but Latyn, A fewe termes hadde he, two or thre,

That he had lerned out of som decree; No wonder is, he herde it al the day;

And eek ye knowen well how that a jay Can clepen "Watte" as well as can the pope.

But who-so could in other thing him grope,

Thanne hadde he spent al his philosophye;

Ay, "Questio quid iuris," wolde he crye. He was a gentle harlot and a kinde;

A better felawe sholde men noght finde.

CHAUCER. Prologue to the Canterbury Tales.

A servile race

Who, in mere want of fault, all merit place;

Who blind obedience pay to ancient schools,

Bigots to Greece, and slaves to musty rules.

CHURCHILL. The Rosciad. l. 183.

PEN.

My tongue is the pen of a ready writer.

Old Testament. Psalm xiv. i.

Biron. Never durst poet touch a pen to write,

Until his ink were temper'd with love's sighs.

SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iv. Sc. iii.

Sir Toby Balch. Let there be gall enough in thy ink; though thou write with a goose-pen, no matter.

Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 52.

I had rather stand in the shock of a basilisk, than in the fury of a merciless pen.

SIR T. BROWNE. Religio Medici. Pt. ii. Sc. 4.

There's no wound deeper than a pen can give,

It makes men living dead, and dead men live.

J. TAYLOR. A Kicksey-Winsey. Pt. 7.

I'll make thee glorious by my pen,

And famous by my sword.

MONTROSE. I'll Never Love Thee More.

A votary of the desk—a notched and cropt scrivener—one that sucks his substance, as certain sick people are said to do, through a quill.

C. LAMB. Essays of Elia. Oxford in the Vacation.

The feather, whence the pen Was shaped that traced the lives of these good men, Dropped from an angel's wing.

WORDSWORTH. Ecclesiastical Sonnets. Pt. iii. v. Walton's Book of Lives.

The pen wherewith thou dost so nobly sing, Made of a quill from an angel's wing.

HENRY CONSTABLE. Sonnet.

Whose noble praise Deserves a quill plucked from an angel's wing.

DOROTHY BERRY. Sonnet.

Richelieu. Beneath the rule of men entirely great

The pen is mightier than the sword.

BULWER LYTTON. Richelieu. Act. ii.
Sc. ii.

Anser, apis, v. tellus, populus et regem
gubernant.

Goose, bee, and calf! govern king and people.

Quoted in Howell's Letters. Bk. ii. letter 2.

The tongue's a sharper weapon than the sword.

PHOCYLIDES. Sententiae. 124.

A sword less hurt does, than a pen.

W. KING. The Eagle and the Robin.
(line 82.)

Hinc quam sic calamus saevior ense.

The pen worse than the sword.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
Sec. 2. Memb. 4. Subs. 4.

Tant la plume a eu sous le roi d'avantage sur l'épée.

So far had the pen under the king the superiority over the sword.

SAINT SIMON. Mémoires. Vol. iii. p. 517.
1702. (Ed. 1856.)

Oh! nature's noblest gift—my gray goose quill!

Slave of my thoughts, obedient to my will,
Torn from thy parent bird to form a pen,
That mighty instrument of little men!

BYRON. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers.

PENALTY; DEATH.

I'll see thee hanged first.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER. *The Knight
of the Pestle*. Act i. Sc. 4.

Silvius. Say that you love me not, but say not so

In bitterness: the common executioner, Whose heart the accustom'd sight of death makes hard,

Falls not the axe upon the humbled neck,

But first begs pardon.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iii.
Sc. 5. 1. 2.

King Edward. For Somerset, off with his guilty head!

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. v.

Off with his head—so much for Buckingham!

COLLEY CIBBER. Version of Richard III.
Act iv. Sc. 3.

<sup>1</sup> I. e., pen, wax, and parchment.

First Clown. What is he that builds stronger than either the mason, the ship-wright, or the carpenter?

Second Clown. The gallows-maker; for that frame outlives a thousand tenants.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1.

Romeo. Thou cutt'st my head off with a golden axe.

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act. iii. Sc. 3.

Hanging was the worst use a man could be put to.

SIR H. WOTTON. The Disparity Between Buckingham and Essex.

That if a man's belief is bad

It will not be improved by burning.

FRÆD. Every Day Christian.

(See under BIGOTRY.)

Were it not that they are loath to lay out money on a rope, they would be hanged forthwith, and sometimes die to save charges.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
Sec. 2. Memb. 3. Subsec. 12.

A halter made of silk's a halter still.

COLLEY CIBBER. Love in a Riddle. Act
ii. Sc. 1.

We must all hang together, or assuredly we shall all hang separately.

FRANKLIN. At the Signing of the Declaration of Independence. July 4, 1776.

And shall they scorn Tre, Pol, and Pen,
And shall Trelawny die?

There's thirty thousand Cornish men Shall know the reason why.

R. S. HAWKER.

[A ballad based upon a seventeenth century couplet, thus quoted by Macaulay:

And shall Trelawney die, and shall Trelawney die?

Then thirty thousand Cornish boys will know the reason why.

The miners from their caverns re-echoed the song with a variation:—

Then twenty thousand under ground will know the reason why.

LORD MACAULAY. History of England.
Ch. viii.

Hawker wrote his ballad in 1824. Afterwards Davies Gilbert, President of the Royal Society, reprinted the entire ballad, believing it to be an ancient one, and Sir Walter Scott regarded it as "the solitary people's song of the seventeenth century."

The high masts flicker'd as they lay afloat ;

The crowds, the temples, waver'd, and the shore ;

The bright death quiver'd at the victim's throat,

Though ; and I knew no more.

TENNYSON. Dream of Fair Women.

PENSION.

Poor pensioner on the bounties of an hour.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night 1. l. 67.

He lied with such a fervor of intention—
There was no doubt he earn'd his laureate pension.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 80.

A moderate pension shakes full many a sage.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto v. iii.

I have considered the pension list of the republic a roll of honor.

GROVER CLEVELAND. Veto of Mary Ann Dougherty's Pension. July 5, 1888.

PERFECTION.

Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.

New Testament. Matthew v. 48.

Ferdinand. For several virtues Have I lik'd several women : never any
With so full soul, but some defect in her Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd,

And put it to the foil : But you, O you,
So perfect and so peerless, are created
Of every creature's best.

SHAKESPEARE. Tempest. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Florio. What you do Still better what is done . . .

. . . . Each your doing,
So singular in each particular Crowns what you are doing in the present deeds

That all your acts are queens.

Ibid. Winter's Tale. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 140.

Cassio. He hath achieved a maid That paragons description, and wild
fame ;

One that excels the quirks of blazoning
peeps,

And in th' essential vesture of creation
Does bear all excellency.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 1.

Lafeu. Whose dear perfection hearts that scorn'd to serve

Humbly call'd mistress.

Ibid. All's Well That Ends Well. Act v.
Sc. 3. l. 16.

Portia. How many things by season season'd are

To their right praise and true perfection !

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act v. Sc. 1.
l. 107.

When I approach
Her loveliness, so absolute she seems,
And in herself complete ; so well to know
Her own, that what she wills to do or say, Seems wisest, virtuousest, discreetest,
best.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 546.

'Tis true, perfection none must hope to find

In all the world, much less in woman-kind.

POPE. January and May. l. 190.

Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see,
Thinks what ne'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 53.
(See FAULTS.)

The very pink of perfection.

GOLDSMITH. She Stoops to Conquer. Act i.
Sc. 1.

A man cannot have an idea of perfection in another, which he was never sensible of in himself.

STEELE. The Tatler. No. 227.

To keep in sight Perfection, and adore
The vision, is the artist's best delight ;
His bitterest pang, that he can ne'er do
more

Than keep her long'd-for loveliness in sight.

WM. WATSON. Epigrams.

They are perfect ; how else ?—they shall never change :

We are faulty ; why not ?—we have time in store.

ROBERT BROWNING. Old Pictures in Florence. St. 16.

What's come to perfection perishes.
Things learned on earth we shall practise
in heaven;

Works done least rapidly Art most cherishes.

ROBERT BROWNING. Old Pictures in Florence. St. 17.

PERFUME.

An amber scent of odorous perfume
Her harbinger.

MILTON. Samson Agonistes. l. 720.

A stream of rich distill'd perfumes.
Ibid. Comus. 556.

Sabeian odours from the spicy shore
Of Arabia the blest.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 162.

And all Arabia breathes from yonder
box.

POPE. The Rape of the Lock. Canto i.
l. 134.

Die of a rose in aromatic pain.

Ibid. Essay on Man. l. 200.

I cannot talk with civet in the room,
A fine puss gentleman that's all perfume.
COWPER. Conversation. l. 283.

You may break, you may shatter the
vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.

MOORE. Farewell! But whenever you welcome the Hour.

In virtue, nothing earthly could surpass her,
Save thine "incomparable oil," Macassar!

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 17.

Fell on the upturn'd faces of these roses:
That gave out, in return for the love-
light,

Their odorous souls in an ecstatic death.
POE. To Helen. l. 11.

PERSEVERANCE.

Πέτρην κοίλαινει ῥανίς ὕδατος ἐνδελεχείη.

By constant dripping

A drop of water hollows out a rock.

CHOERILUS OF SAMOS. Fragment 9. (Dübner).

The unceasing drop of water, as they say,
Will wear a channel in the hardest stone.
BION SMYRNAEUS. Fragment 9. ll. 1.

No rock so hard but that a little wave
May beat admission in a thousand years.
TENNYSON. The Princess.

Ulysses. Perseverence, dear my lord, Keeps honour bright: to have done is to hang

Quite out of fashion, like a rusty mail
In monumental mockery.

SHAKESPEARE. Troilus and Cressida. Act
iii. Sc. 3. l. 150.

Neither to change, nor falter, nor repent;
This, like thy glory, Titan! is to be Good, great, and joyous, beautiful and free;

This is alone Life, Joy, Empire, and Victory.

SHELLEY. Prometheus. Act iv.

PERSONAL.

(See NAMES OF FAMOUS PERSONAGES.)

But were it to my fancy given
To rate her charms, I'd call them heaven;
For though a mortal made of clay,
Angels must love Ann Hathaway;
She hath a way so to control,
To rapture the imprisoned soul,
And sweetest heaven on earth display,
That to be heaven Ann hath a way;
She hath a way.

Ann Hathaway,—

To be heaven's self Ann hath a way.

Attributed to SHAKESPEARE.

[Ann Hathaway was the maiden name of Shakespeare's wife. Some critics read a biting irony into this poem.]

Here lies our sovereign lord the king,
Whose word no man relies on;
He never said a foolish thing,
Nor ever did a wise one.

EARL OF ROCHESTER. *Written on Charles
II.'s bed-chamber door*.

[The first line is often quoted:

Here lies our mutton-eating king.

The king made an apt and witty reply:
"That is very true," he said, "for my words are my own, my actions are my ministers."]

Shadwell alone, of all my sons, is he,
Who stands confirm'd in full stupidity.
The rest to some faint meaning make pretence,

But Shadwell never deviates into sense.

DRYDEN. Mac Flecknoe. l. 17.

A fiery soul, which working out its way,
Fretted the pigmy body to decay,
And o'er-informed the tenement of clay.
A daring pilot in extremity, Pleased with the danger when the waves ran high,

He sought the storms.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i. l. 156.

So over-violent, or over-civil,
That every man with him was God or Devil.

Ibid. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i. l. 557.

Made still a blund'ring kind of melody;
Spurred boldly on, and dashed through thick and thin,
Through sense and nonsense, never out nor in.

Ibid. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. ii. l. 413.

Statesman, yet friend to truth! of soul sincere,
In action faithful, and in honour clear;
Who broke no promise, served no private end;
Who gain'd no title, and who lost no friend;
Ennobled by himself, by all approved,
And praised, unenvied by the muse he loved.

POPE. Epistle to Mr. Addison (concluding lines).

Who now reads Cowley? if he pleases yet,
His moral pleases, not his pointed wit:
Forgot his epic, nay Pindaric art,
But still I love the language of his heart.

Ibid. Satires. Epis. v. l. 75.

For pointed satire I would Buckhurst choose,
The best good man with the worst-natured muse.

Ibid. An Allusion to Horace. Satire x. Bk. i.

Thou best-humour'd man with the worst-humour'd muse!

GOLDSMITH. Retaliation. Postscript.

The bard whom pilfered pastorals renown,
Who turns a Persian tale for half a crown,

Just writes to make his barrenness appear,

And strains, from hard-bound brains, eight lines a year;

He, who still wanting, though he lives on theft,

Steals much, spends little, yet has nothing left;

And he, who now to sense, now non-sense leaning,

Means not, but blunders round about a meaning:

And he, whose fustian's so sublimely bad,

It is not poetry, but prose run mad:

All these my modest satire bade translate;

And own'd that nine such poets made a Tate.

POPE. Prologue to the Satires. l. 179.

But all our praises why should lords engross?

Rise, honest muse! and sing the Man of Ross;

Pleased Vaga echoes through her winding bounds,

And rapid Severn hoarse applause resounds.

Who hung with woods yon mountain's sultry brow?

From the dry rock who bade the waters flow?

Not to the skies in useless columns toss'd,
Or in proud falls magnificently lost,

But clear and artless, pouring through the plain

Health to the sick, and solace to the swain.

Whose causeway parts the vale with shady rows?

Whose seats the weary traveller repose?

Who taught that heaven-directed spire to rise?

"The Man of Ross!" each lisping babe replies.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 249.

Flavia's a wit, has too much sense to pray;

To toast our wants and wishes, is her way;

Nor asks of God, but of her stars, to give
The mighty blessing, "while we live, to live."

Then all for death, that opiate of the soul!

Lucretia's dagger, Rosamonda's bowl.
Say, what can cause such impotence of mind?

A spark too fickle, or a spouse too kind.

Wise wretch! with pleasures too refined to please;

With too much spirit to be e'er at ease;

With too much quickness ever to be taught;

With too much thinking to have common thought.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. l. 87.

Narcissa's<sup>1</sup> nature, tolerably mild,
To make a wash, would hardly stew a child;

Has even been proved to grant a lover's prayer,

And paid a tradesman once to make him stare;

Gave alms at Easter in a Christian trim,
And made a widow happy, for a whim.

Why, then, declare good-nature is her scorn,

When 'tis by that alone she can be borne?
Why pique all mortals, yet affect a name?

A fool to pleasure, yet a slave to fame:
Now deep in Taylor and the Book of Martyrs,

Now drinking citron with his Grace and Chartres;

Now conscience chills her, and now passion burns:

And atheism and religion take their turns;

A very heathen in the carnal part,
Yet still a sad, good Christian at her heart.

Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. l. 53.

"Odious! in woollen! 'twould a saint provoke,"

(Were the last words that poor Narcissa spoke);

"No, let a charming chintz and Brussels lace

Wrap my cold limbs, and shade my lifeless face:

One would not, sure, be frightful when one's dead—

And—Betty—give this cheek a little red."

In the worst inn's worst room, with mat half-hung,<sup>1</sup>

The floors of plaster and the walls of dung,

Great Villiers lies; alas! how changed from him

That life of pleasure, and that soul of whim.

Ibid. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 299.

O thou! whatever title please thine ear,
Dean, Drapier, Bickerstaff, or Gulliver!

Whether thou choose Cervantes' serious air,

Or laugh and shake in Rabelais' easy-chair.

Here Reynolds is laid, and, to tell you my mind,

He has not left a wiser or better behind:

His pencil was striking, resistless, and grand;

His manners were gentle, complying, and bland.

GOLDSMITH. Lines on Sir Joshua Reynolds.

The tongue which set the table in a roar,
And charmed the public ear, is heard no more;

Closed are those eyes, the harbingers of wit,

Which spake before the tongue, what Shakespeare writ.

GARRICK. Epitaph on James Quinn.

I thought of Chatterton, the marvellous Boy,

The sleepless soul that perished in his pride;

Of him who walked in glory and in joy,
Following his plough, along the mountain side.

WORDSWORTH. Resolution and Independence. St. 7.

The starry Galileo with his woes.

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 54.

I have been
With starry Galileo in his cell—
That wise magician with the brow serene,
Who fathomed space; and I have seen him tell

The wonders of the planetary sphere,
And trace the ramparts of Heaven's citadel
On the cold flagstones of his dungeon drear.

Bk. iv.

[Robespierre.]

Shakespeare is not our poet, but the world's,—

Therefore on him no speech! And brief for thee,

Browning! Since Chaucer was alive

No man hath walk'd along our roads with steps

So active, so inquiring eye, or tongue
So varied in discourse.

W. S. LANDOR. To Robert Browning.

PHILOSOPHY.

(See SCIENCE.)

Est profecto animi medicina, philo-sophia.

The true medicine of the mind is philosophy.

CICERO. Tusculanæ Disputationes. iii. 3. 6.

I look to philosophy to provide an antidote to sorrow.

Ibid. Academica. i. 3. 11.

Adversity's sweet milk—philosophy.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
iii. Sc. 3. l. 55.

All men are

Philosophers, to their inches.

BEN JONSON. The Magnetic Lady. Act i.
Sc. 1.

Horatio. O day and night, but this is wondrous strange!

Hamlet. And therefore as a stranger give it welcome.

There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,

Than are dreamt of in your philosophy.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. l.
165.

Touchstone. It goes much against my stomach. Hast any philosophy in thee, shephêrd?

Ibid. As You Like It. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 35.

Philosophers dwell in the moon, speculation and theory girdle the world about like a wall.

FORD. The Lover's Melancholy. Act iii.
Sc. 3.

There was an ancient sage philosopher,
That had read Alexander Ross over,
And swore the world, as he could prove,
Was made of fighting and of love.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. 1. Canto ii. l. 1.

How charming is divine Philosophy !
Not harsh and crabbed, as dull fools
suppose,

But musical as is Apollo's lute,
And a perpetual feast of nectar'd sweets,
Where no crude surfeit reigns.

MILTON. Comus. l. 476.

I shall detain you no longer in the demonstration of what we should not do, but straight conduct ye to a hillside, where I will point ye out the right path of a virtuous and noble education; laborious indeed at the first ascent, but else so smooth, so green, so full of goodly prospect and melodious sounds on every side that the harp of Orpheus was not more charming.

Ibid. Tractate on Education.

As sweet and musical

As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair.

SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost.

Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 342.

Philosophy ! the great and only heir
Of all the human knowledge which has been

Unforfeited by man's rebellious sin.

COWLEY. To the Royal Society.

Philosophy ! the lumber of the schools,
The roguery of alchemy :

And we the bubbled fools

Spend all our present stock in hopes of golden rules.

SWIFT. Ode to Sir W. Temple. ii.

This same philosophy is a good horse in the stable, but an arrant jade on a journey.

GOLDSMITH. The Good-Natured Man. Act i.

So man, the moth, is not afraid, it seems,
To span Omnipotence, and measure might

That knows no measure, by the scanty rule

And standard of his own, that is to-day,
And is not ere to-morrow's sun go down.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. vi. l. 211.

Why should not grave Philosophy be styled

Herself a dreamer of a kindred stock,
A dreamer, yet more spiritless and dull ?

WORDSWORTH. The Excursion. Bk. iii.

Hold thou the good ; define it well ;

For fear divine Philosophy

Should push beyond her mark, and be Procureess to the Lords of Hell.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam.

In earthy mire philosophy may slip.
SIR W. SCOTT. The Poacher.

Do not all charms fly
At the mere touch of cold philosophy?
KEATS. Lamia. ii.

Philosophy will clip an Angel's wings,
Conquer all mysteries by rule and line,
Empty the haunted air, the gnomed
mine—

Unweave a rainbow.

Ibid. Lamia. ii.

PITY.

(See CHARITY; MERCY.)

He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord.

Old Testament. Proverbs xix. 17.

By Jove the stranger and the poor are sent,
And what to those we give, to Jove is lent.
POPE. Iliad of Homer. Bk. xi. l. 247.

Let sorrow lend me words, and words express

The manner of my pity-wanting pain.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. cxi.

Soft pity enters at an iron gate.

Ibid. The Rape of Lucrece. 85.

King Henry. My pity hath been balm to heal their wounds,
My mildness hath allay'd their swelling griefs.

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act iv. Sc. 8. l. 41.

Clarence. My friend, I spy some pity in thy looks;

O, if thine eye be not a flatterer,

Come thou on my side, and entreat for
me,

As you would beg, were you in my distress:

A begging prince what beggar pities not?

Ibid. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 270.

King Richard. Tear-falling pity dwells not in this eye.

Ibid. Richard III. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 66.

King Richard. I shall despair. There is no creature loves me;

And if I die, no soul shall pity me:

Nay, wherefore should they, since that I myself

Find in myself no pity to myself.

Ibid. Richard III. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 200.

First Stranger. But, I perceive, Men must learn now with pity to dispense;

For policy sits above conscience.

SHAKESPEARE. Timon of Athens. Act
iii. Sc. 2. l. 92.

Alcibiades. Pity is the virtue of the law,

And none but tyrants use it cruelly.

Ibid. Timon of Athens. Act iii. Sc. 5. l. 8.

Juliet. Is there no pity sitting in the clouds,

That sees into the bottom of my grief?

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act iii. Sc. 5.
l. 198.

Othello. But yet the pity of it, Iago!
O Iago, the pity of it, Iago!

Ibid. Othello. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 201.

Pity's akin to love; and every thought
Of that soft kind is welcome to my soul.

THOS. SOUTHERNE. Oroonoko. Act ii.
Sc. 2. l. 64.

Silvia. Pity is sworn servant unto love.

S. DANIEL. The Queen's Arcadia. Act iii.
Sc. 1.

Of all the paths that lead to a woman's love
Pity's the straightest.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER. *The Knight
of Malta*. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 73.

The mighty master smil'd, to see

That love was in the next degree:

'Twas but a kindred sound to move

For pity melts the mind to love.

DRYDEN. Alexander's Feast. l. 93.

Lovely in death the beauteous ruin lay:
And if in death still lovely, lovelier there;
Far lovelier; pity swells the tide of love.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night iii. l. 104.

Soft pity never leaves the gentle breast
Where love has been received a welcome guest.

R. B. SHERIDAN. The Duennà. Act ii.
Sc. 3.

So void of pity is th' ignoble crowd,
When others' ruin may increase their store!

DRYDEN. Annus Mirabilis. ccl.

Taught by that power that pities me,
I learn to pity them.

GOLDSMITH. The Hermit. St. 6.

Careless their merits or their faults to scan,

His pity gave ere charity began.

Ibid. The Deserted Village. l. 161.

A heart to pity, and a hand to bless.
CHURCHILL. Prophecy of Famine. 1. 178.

The angel, Pity, shuns the walks of war!

ERASMUS DARWIN. The Loves of the Plants. Canto. iii. 1. 298.

So left alone, the passions of her mind,
As winds from all the compass shift and blow,
Made war upon each other for an hour,
Till pity won.

TENNYSON. Godiva.

And loving-kindness, that is pity's kin
And is most pitiless.

SWINBURNE. A Ballad of Life.

PLAGIARISM.

(See QUOTATION.)

Quicquid bene dictum est ab ullo, meum est.

Whatever has been well said by any one is my property.

SENECA. Epistolæ. xvi. 7.

Je prends mon bien où je le trouve.

I take my property wherever I find it.

Attributed to MOLIÈRE.

[But Molière really said repréends (recover), not prends (take); meaning that when any one stole from him he recaptured his own property.]

In his immense quotation and allusion we quickly cease to discriminate between what he quotes and what he invents. 'Tis all Plutarch by right of eminent domain, and all property vests in the emperor.

R. W. EMERSON. Representative Men: Plutarch.

It has come to be practically a sort of rule in literature, that a man, having once shown himself capable of original writing, is entitled thenceforth to steal from the writings of others at discretion. Thought is the property of him who can entertain it, and of him who can adequately place it.

Ibid. Representative Men: Shakespeare.

When Shakespeare is charged with debts to his authors, Landor replies: "Yet he was more original than his originals. He breathed upon dead bodies and brought them into life."

Ibid. Letters and Social Aims. Quotation and Originality.

Nullum est jam dictum quod non dictum sit prius.

Nothing is said nowadays that has not been said before.

TERENCE. Eunuchus. Prologue. xli.

[St. Jerome tells us that his teacher, Ælius Donatus, commenting on these lines of Terence, was wont to say:

Pereant qui ante nos nostra dixerent.
Perish those who said our good things before we did.

Commentary on Ecclesiastes. Ch. i.

Piron's phrase is nearly akin:
Leurs écrits sont des vols qu'ils nous ont faits d'avance.

Their writings are thoughts stolen from us by anticipation.]

We can say nothing but what has been said. . . . Our poets steal from Homer. . . . Our storydressers do as much; he that comes last is commonly best.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

Hos ego versiculos feci, tulit alter honores:

Sic vos non vobis nidificatis aves:

Sic vos non vobis vellera fertis oves:

Sic vos non vobis mellificatis apes:

Sic vos non vobis fertis aratra boves.

I wrote these lines; another wears the bays:

Thus you for others build your nests, O birds:

Thus you for others bear your fleece, O sheep:

Thus you for others honey make, O bees:

Thus you for others drag the plough, O kine:

VIRGIL. Claudius Donatus. Life of Virgil. (Delphin edition. 1830. p. 17.)

[The story runs that a versifier named Bathyllus had stolen a distich of Virgil's, written in honor of Augustus. Virgil, in the presence of emperor and plagiarist, wrote these lines beneath the distich:

Hos ego versiculos feci, tulit alter honores:

Sic vos non vobis—

Sic vos non vobis—

Sic vos non vobis—

Sic vos non vobis—

When Bathyllus confessed that he could not fill up the blank spaces, Virgil accomplished the feat as above.]

The seed ye sow another reaps;

The wealth ye find, another keeps;

The robe ye weave, another wears;

The arms ye forge another bears.

SHELLEY. To the Men of England.

In comparing various authors with one another, I have discovered that some of the gravest and latest writers have transcribed, word for word, from former works, without making acknowledgment.

PLINY THE ELDER. Natural History. Bk. i. Dedication. Sec. 22.

For oute of olde feldys, as men sey,
Comyth al this newe corn from yere to yere;

And out of olde bokis, in good fey,
Comyth al this newe science that men lere.

CHAUCER. The Parlement of Fowles. l. 21.

Did thrust as now in others' corn his sickle.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Works. Second Week. Pt. ii.

(JOHN SYLVESTER, trans.)

Not presuming to put my sickle in another man's corn.

NICHOLAS YONGE. Musica Transalpini. Epistle Dedicatory. 1588.

I have here only made a nosegay of culled flowers, and have brought nothing of my own but the thread that ties them together.

MONTAIGNE. Essays: Of Physiognomy.

I am but a gatherer and disposer of other men's stuff.

SIR HENRY WOTTON. Preface to the Elements of Architecture.

Amongst so many borrowed things, I am glad if I can steal one, disguising and altering it for some new service.

MONTAIGNE. Essays: Of Physiognomy.

For such kind of borrowing as this, if it be not bettered by the borrower, among good authors is accounted plagiary.

MILTON. Iconoclasts. xxiii.

[Witches] steal young children out of their cradles, ministerium dæmonum, and put deformed in their rooms, which we call changelings.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i. Sec. 2. Memb. 1. Subs. 3.

Steal!—to be sure they may; and egad, serve your best thoughts as gypsies do stolen children, disfigure them to make 'em pass for their own.

R. B. SHERIDAN. The Critic. Act i. Sc. 1.

Who, to patch up his fame—or fill his purse—Still pilfers wretched plans, and makes them worse;

Like gypsies, lest the stolen brat be known, Defacing first, then claiming for his own.

CHURCHILL. The Apology. l. 232.

Though I am young, I scorn to flit
On the wings of borrowed wit.

GEORGE WITHER. The Shepherd's Hunting.

They lard their lean books with the fat of others' works.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

All the makers of dictionaries, all compilers who do nothing else than repeat backwards and forwards the opinions, the errors, the impostures, and the truths already printed, we may term plagiarists; but honest plagiarists, who arrogate not the merit of invention.

VOLTAIRE. A Philosophical Dictionary. Plagiarism.

Then why should those who pick and choose

The best of all the best compose,
And join it by mosaic art,
In graceful order, part to part,
To make the whole in beauty suit,
Not merit as complete repute
As those who, with less art and pains,
Can do it with their native brains.

BUTLER. Satire on Plagiaries. l. 109.

See, how these rascals use me! They will not let my play run; and yet they steal my thunder.

JOHN DENNIS. See Biographia Britannica. Vol. v. p. 103.

Next, o'er his books his eyes began to roll,

In pleasing memory of all he stole,
How here he sipp'd, how there he plunder'd snug,

And suck'd all o'er, like an industrious bug.

POPE. Dunciad. Bk. i. l. 127.

With him most authors steal their works, or buy;

Garth did not write his own Dispensary.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. l. 618.

That's of no consequence, all that can be said is that two people happen'd to hit on the same thought—and Shakespeare made use of it first, that's all.

SHERIDAN. The Critic. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Libertas et natale solum:

Fine words! I wonder where you stole 'em.

SWIFT. Verses Occasioned by Whittshed's Motto on His Coach.

To copy beauties forfeits all pretence To fame;—to copy faults is want of sense.

CHURCHILL. The Rosciad. l. 457.

Perverts the Prophets and purloins
the Psalms.

viewers*. l. 326.

Most writers steal a good thing when they can,
And when 'tis safely got 'tis worth the winning.

The worst of 't is we now and then detect 'em,

Before they ever dream that we suspect
'em.

BARRY CORNWALL. Diego de Montillo. iv.

Read my little fable:

He that runs may read.

Most can raise the flowers now,

For all have got the seed.

TENNYSON. The Flowers.

PLEASURE.

Tranio. No profit grows where is no pleasure ta'en.

SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew. Act
i. Sc. 1. l. 39.

Friar. These violent delights have violent ends

And in their triumph die, like fire and powder,

Which as they kiss consume.

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 6. l. 9.

Sure as night follows day,

Death treads in Pleasure's footsteps
round the world,

When Pleasure treads the paths which Reason shuns.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. l. 863.

To frown at pleasure, and to smile in pain.

Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night viii. l. 1045.

I fly from pleasure, because pleasure has ceased to please; I am lonely because I am miserable.

DR. JOHNSON. Rasselas. Ch. iii.

Pleasure admitted in undue degree Enslaves the will, nor leaves the judgment free.

COWPER. Progress of Error. l. 267.

But pleasures are like poppies spread,
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snow-fall in the river,
A moment white, then melts forever.

BURNS. Tam o' Shanter. l. 59.

The rule of my life is to make business a pleasure, and pleasure my business.

AARON BURR.

Ever let the Fancy roam,
Pleasure never is at home.

KEATS. Fancy.

I built my soul a lordly pleasure-house,
Wherein at ease for aye to dwell.

I said, "O Soul, make merry and carouse,
Dear soul, for all is well."

TENNYSON. The Palace of Art.

PLEASURE-PAIN.

Medio de fonte leporum

Surgit amari aliquid quod in ipsis floribus angat.

In the midst of the fountain of wit there arises something bitter, which stings in the very flowers.

LUCRETIVS. De Rerum Natura. iv. 1133.

Still from the fount of joy's delicious springs

Some bitter o'er the flowers its bubbling venom flings.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto i. St. 82.

She dwells with Beauty—Beauty that must
die;

And Joy, whose hand is ever at his lips
Bidding adieu; and aching Pleasure nigh, Turning to poison while the bee-mouth
sips;

Ay, in the very temple of Delight
Veiled Melancholy has her sovran shrine, Though seen of none save him whose strenuous tongue

Can burst Joy's grape against his palate fine;

His soul shall taste the sadness of her might,
And be among her cloudy trophies hung.

KEATS. Ode on Melancholy.

There's not a string attuned to mirth,
But has its chord in melancholy.

HOOD. Ode to Melancholy.

We look before and after,

And pine for what is not;

Our sincerest laughter

With some pain is fraught;

Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought.

SHELLEY. To a Skylark. l. 86.

The Wreath's of brightest myrtle wove
With brilliant tears of bliss among it,
And many a rose leaf cull'd by Love
To heal his lips when bees have stung it.
MOORE. The Wreath and the Chain.

Quanto la cosa è più perfetta,
Più senta il bene, e così la doglienza.
The more perfect the thing
The more it feels pleasure and also pain.
DANTE. Inferno. Canto vi.

Chords that vibrate sweetest pleasure,
Thrill the deepest notes of woe.
BURNS. Sensibility.

No! Life is a waste of wearisome hours,
Which seldom the rose of enjoyment
adorns;
And the heart that is soonest awake to the flowers,
Is always the first to be touch'd by the thorns.

MOORE. Irish Melodies: Oh! think not my spirits are always so light.

Alas! by some degree of woe
We every bliss must gain:
The heart can ne'er a transport know,
That never feels a pain.

LYTTELTON. Song written in 1753.

As high as we have mounted in delight,
In our dejection do we sink as low.
WORDSWORTH. Resolution and Independence.

Is it so, O Christ in heaven, that the highest suffer most,
That the strongest wander farthest, and more hopelessly are lost,
That the mark of rank in nature is capacity
for pain,
That the anguish of the singer makes the sweetness of the strain?

SARAH WILLIAMS.

Rich the treasure,
Sweet the pleasure,—
Sweet is pleasure after pain.
DRYDEN. Alexander's Feast. 1. 58.

Ita Dis placitum, voluptatem ut maeror comes consequatur.

Thus it pleases Heaven,
That Sorrow, her companion, still should tread

Upon the heels of Pleasure.
PLAUTUS. Amphitryo. Act ii. Sc. 2. 1. 5.

There is no felicity upon earth, which carries not its counterpoise of misfortunes;
no happiness which mounts so high, which is not depressed by some calamity.

JEREMY TAYLOR. Contemplation of the State of Man. Bk. i. Ch. ii.

Hard fate of man, on whom the heavens bestow
A drop of pleasure for a sea of woe.
SIR W. JONES. Laura.

And painfull pleasure turnes to pleasing paine.
SPENSER. Faerie Queene. Bk. iii. Canto
x. St. 60.

Oliver. Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy.
SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iv.
Sc. iii. 1. 98.

Biron. Why, all delights are vain;
but that most vain,
Which, with pain purchased, doth inherit pain.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act i. Sc. 1.
1. 72.

'Tis the pest
Of love that fairest joys give most unrest.
KEATS. Endymion. ii.

We, by our sufferings, learn to prize
our bliss.

DRYDEN. Astræa Redux.

Faint is the bliss, that never past thro'
pain.
COLLEY CIBBER. Love in a Riddle. Act
iii. Sc. 2.

A man of pleasure is a man of pains.
YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night viii.
1. 793.

Pleasure must succeed to pleasure,
else past pleasure turns to pain.
ROBERT BROWNING. La Saisiaz. 1. 170.

Then welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand,
but go!

Be our joys three-parts pain!
Strive, and hold cheap the strain;
Learn, nor account the pang; dare, never grudge the throe!
Ibid. Rabbi Ben Ezra.

Under pain, pleasure,—
Under pleasure, pain lies.
EMERSON. The Sphinx.

POETS.

Poets utter great and wise things which they do not themselves understand.

PLATO. The Republic. Bk. ii. Sec. v.

Multa fero ut placem genus irritabile
vatum.

I would do much to please those irritable folk, the poets.

HORACE. Epistolæ. ii. 2, 102.

Mediocribus esse poetis
Non Dii, non homines, non concessere columnæ.

But gods and men and booksellers agree
To place their ban on middling poetry.

HORACE. Art of Poetry. l. 372.
(CONINGTON, trans.)

Invenias etiam disjecti membra poetæ.
The bard remains, unlimb him as you will.

Ibid. Satires. i. 4, 62.
(CONINGTON, trans.)

Carminē fit vivax virtus: expersque
sepulcri,
Notitiam seræ posteritatis habet.
Song makes great deeds immortal, cheats
the tomb,
And hands down fame to ages yet to come.

OID. Epistles. iv. 8, 47.

Vain was the chief's, the sage's pride!
They had no poet, and they died.
POPE. Odes. Bk. iv. Ode 9.

Aut insanit homo, aut versus facit.
The man is either mad, or else he's writing verses.

HORACE. Satires. ii. 7, 117.
[Davus' (Horace's slave) description of his master's eccentric and irregular habits.]

For that fine madness still he did retain,
Which rightly should possess a poet's brain.
DRAYTON. To Henry Reynolds. Of Poets and Poesy. l. 109.

Consules fiunt quotannis et novi procon-sules:
Solut aut rex aut poeta non quotannis
nascitur.

Each year new consuls and proconsuls are made; but not every year is a king or a poet born.

FLORUS. De Qualitate Vitæ. Fragment
viii.

[Hence, probably, "Poeta nascitur, non fit," the poet is born and not made.]

And, therefore, is an old proverb, Orator fit, poeta nascitur.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. Apologie for Poetry.

For a good poet's made as well as born.

BEN JONSON. To the Memory of Shakespeare.

But genius must be born, and never can
be taught.

DRYDEN. Epistle X. To Congreve. l. 60.

One may be a poet without versing,
and a versifier without poetry.

SIR P. SIDNEY. An Apologie for Poetrie.

Benedick. I was not born under a rhyming planet, nor I cannot woo in festival terms.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act v. Sc. 2. l. 40.

Hotspur. I had rather be a kitten, and cry mew,
Than one of these same metre ballad-mongers:

I had rather hear a brazen canstick turn'd,
Or a dry wheel grate on the axle-tree;
And that would set my teeth nothing on edge,
Nothing so much as mincing poetry;
'Tis like the forc'd gait of a shuffling nag.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 126.

A poet soaring in the high reason of his fancies, with his garland and singing robes about him.

MILTON. The Reason of Church Government. Introduction. Bk. ii.

Such sights as youthful poets dream
On summer eves by haunted stream.
Then to the well-trod stage anon,
If Jonson's learned sock be on,
Or sweetest Shakespeare, Fancy's child,
Warble his native wood-notes wild.

Ibid. L'Allegro. l. 129.

Those other two equalled with me in fate,
So were I equalled with them in renown,
Blind Thamyras and blind Mæonides,
And Tirêsiās and Phineus, prophets old:
Then feed on thoughts that voluntary move Harmonious numbers; as the wakeful
bird
Sings darkling, and in shadiest covert hid.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. l. 33.

Poets that lasting marble seek Must come in Latin or in Greek.

WALLER. Of English Verse.

Poor slaves in metre, dull and addle-
pated,
Who rhyme below e'en David's Psalms translated.

DRYDEN. Abalom and Achitophel. Pt.
ii. l. 402.

To write a verse or two is all the praise
That I can raise.

GEORGE HERBERT. Praise.

Then from the Mint walks forth the man of rhyme,
Happy to catch me, just at dinner-time.

POPE. Prologue to Satires. 1. 13.

Shut, shut the door, good John! fatigued I said,
Tie up the knocker, say I'm sick, I'm dead.

The Dog-star rages; nay, 'tis past a doubt,
All Bedlam, or Parnassus, is let out:
Fire in each eye, and papers in each hand,
They rave, recite, and madden round the land.

Ibid. Prologue to Satires. 1. 1.

Is there a parson much be-mused in beer,
A maudlin poetess, a rhyming peer,
A clerk, foredoom'd his father's soul to cross,

Who pens a stanza, when he should engross?

Is there, who, lock'd from ink and paper, scrawls

With desperate charcoal round his dark-en'd walls?

All fly to Twit'nham, and in humble strain
Apply to me, to keep them mad or vain.

Ibid. Prologue to Satires. 1. 15.

While pensive poets painful vigils keep,
Sleepless themselves to give their readers sleep.

Ibid. Dunciad. Bk. i. 1. 93.

True poets are the guardians of state.
ROSCOMMON. Essay on Translated Verse.

Call it not vain:—they do not err,
Who say, that, when the poet dies,
Mute Nature mourns her worshipper,
And celebrates his obsequies;
Who say, tall cliff, and cavern lone,
For the departed bard make moan;
That mountains weep in crystal rill;
That flowers in tears of balm distil;
Through his loved groves that breezes sigh,

And oaks, in deeper groan, reply;
And rivers teach their rushing wave
To murmur dirges round his grave.

SCOTT. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto v. St. 1.

And muse on Nature with a poet's eye.
THOMAS CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope.
Pt. ii. 1. 98.

And Marlowe, Webster, Fletcher, Ben, Whose fire-hearts sowed our furrows when

The world was worthy of such men.

MRS. BROWNING. A Vision of Poets.

Blessings be with them, and eternal praise,

Who gave us nobler loves, and nobler cares!—

The Poets, who on earth have made us heirs

Of truth and pure delight by heavenly lays.

WORDSWORTH. Personal Talk. St. 4.

Most wretched men
Are cradled into poetry by wrong;
They learn in suffering what they teach in song.

SHELLEY. Julian and Maddalo.

And poets by their sufferings grow,—
As if there were no more to do,
To make a poet excellent,
But only want and discontent.

BUTLER. Fragments.

Justice turns the scale
For those to whom through pain
At last comes wisdom's gain.

ÆSCHYLUS. Agamemnon. 250.

(PLUMPTRE, trans.)

O ye dead Poets, who are living still Immortal in your verse, though life be fled,
And ye, O living Poets, who are dead
Though ye are living, if neglect can kill,
Tell me if in the darkest hours of ill,
With drops of anguish falling fast and red
From the sharp crown of thorns upon your head,

Ye were not glad your errand to fulfil?

LONGFELLOW. The Poets.

Weep no more! Oh weep no more!
Young buds sleep in the root's white core.
Dry your eyes! Oh dry your eyes!
For I was taught in Paradise
To ease my breast of melodies.

SHELLEY. Faery Song.

And as in Beauty's bower he pensive
sate,
Pour'd forth this unpremeditated lay,
To charms as fair as those that soothed his happier day.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto i. St. 84.

How does the poet speak to men with power, but by being still more a man than they.

CARLYLE. Essays. Burns.

A poet without love were a physical and metaphysical impossibility.

Ibid. Essays. Burns.

Most joyful let the Poet be ;
It is through him that all men see.

WILLIAM E. CHANNING. The Poet of the Old and New Times.

God's prophets of the Beautiful,
These Poets were.

E. B. BROWNING. Vision of Poets. St. 98.

Poets are all who love, who feel great truths

And tell them ; and the truth of truths is love.

BAILEY. Festus. Sc. Another and a Better World.

For as nightingales do upon glow-worms
feed,

So poets live upon the living light.

Ibid. Festus. Sc. Home.

I do but sing because I must,
And pipe but as the linnets sing.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam. xxi. 6.

I sing but as the linnet sings.

GOETHE. The Harper's Song. *Wilhelm
Meister*. Bk. ii. Ch. xi.

(CARLYLE, trans.)

To have the great poetic heart
Is more than all poetic fame.

TENNYSON. The New Timon.

Vex not thou the poet's mind
With thy shallow wit :

Vex not thou the poet's mind ;
For thou canst not fathom it.

Ibid. The Poet's Mind.

The poet in a golden clime was born,
With golden stars above ;

Dower'd with the hate of hate, the scorn of scorn,

The love of love.

Ibid. The Poet.

God sent his Singers upon earth
With songs of sadness and of mirth,
That they might touch the hearts of men,
And bring them back to heaven again.

LONGFELLOW. The Singers.

Read from some humbler poet

Whose songs gushed from his heart
As showers from the clouds of summer,
Or tears from the eyelids start.

LONGFELLOW. The Day is Done.

Who, through long days of labor,
And nights devoid of ease,
Still heard in his soul the music
Of wonderful melodies.

Ibid. The Day is Done.

For voices pursue him by day,
And haunt him by night,
And he listens, and needs must obey,
When the Angel says : " Write."

Ibid. The Poet and His Songs.

Olympian bards who sung

Divine ideas below,

Which always find us young

And always keep us so.

EMERSON. Ode to Beauty.

Alas ! that one is born in blight,
Victim of perpetual slight.

And another is born
To make the sun forgotten.

Ibid. Destiny.

Where go the poet's lines ?

Answer, ye evening tapers !

Ye auburn locks, ye golden curls,

Speak from your folded papers !

HOLMES. The Poet's Lot.

Sappho survives, because we sing her songs ;

And Æschylus, because we read his plays !

ROBERT BROWNING. Cleon.

The idle singer of an empty day.

WILLIAM MORRIS. The Earthly Paradise.
Apology.

POETRY.

Usus Poetae, ut moris est, licentia.

Using, as his habit is, a poet's license.

PHAEDRUS. Fables. iv. 25, 8.

Non satis est puris versum perscribere verbis.

'Tis not sufficient to combine
Well-chosen words in a well-ordered
line.

HORACE. Satires. i. 4, 54.

Nonumque prematur in annum.

Let your poem be kept nine years.

HORACE. Ars Poetica. 388.

I was promised on a time,
To have reason for my rhyme;
From that time unto this season,
I received nor rhyme nor reason.

SPENSER. Lines on His Promised Pension.

See Fuller's Worthies, by NUTTALL.
Vol. ii. p. 379.

Rosalind. But are you so much in love as your rhymes speak?

Orlando. Neither rhyme nor reason can express how much.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iii.
Sc. 2. l. 108.

Yea, marry, now it is somewhat, for now it is rhyme; before it was neither rhyme nor reason.

SIR THOMAS MORE.

Touchstone. This is the very false gallop of verses: Why do you infect yourself with them?

Rosalind. Peace, you dull fool; I found them on a tree.

Touchstone. Truly, the tree yields bad fruit.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iii.
Sc. 2. l. 178.

And liked the canter of the rhymes,
That had a hoofbeat in their sound.

LONGFELLOW. The Wayside Inn. Interlude before The Mother's Ghost.

Touchstone. Truly, I would the gods had made thee poetical.

Audrey. I do not know what poetical is: Is it honest in deed, and word?
Is it a true thing?

Touchstone. No, truly; for the truest poetry is the most feigning; and lovers are given to poetry; and what they swear in poetry, may be said, as lovers,
they do feign.

Audrey. Do you wish, then, that the gods had made me poetical?

Touchstone. I do, truly; for thou swear'st to me thou art honest; now, if thou wert a poet I might have some hope thou didst feign.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iii.
Sc. 3. l. 15.

The elegance, facility, and golden cadence of poesy.

l. 126.

Sweet food of sweetly uttered knowledge.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. Defence of Poesy.

A verse may finde him who a sermon
flies,
And turn delight into a sacrifice.

HERBERT. The Temple. The Church Porch.

Thoughts that voluntary move
Harmonious numbers.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. l. 37.

For rhyme the rudder is of verses,
With which, like ships, they steer their courses.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i.
l. 463.

It [Poesy] was ever thought to have some participation of divineness, because it doth raise and erect the mind by submitting the shews of things to the desires of the mind.

MILTON. Advancement of Learning. Bk. i.

But those that write in rhyme still make
The one verse for the other's sake;
For one for sense, and one for rhyme,
I think's sufficient at one time.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto i. l. 23.

Heureux qui, dans ses vers, sait d'une
voix légère

Passer du grave au doux, du plaisant au sévère.

Happy he who in his verses knows how to pass with a gentle voice from grave to mild, from pleasant to severe.

BOILEAU. L'Art Poétique. i. 75.

Happy who in his verse can gently steer
From grave to light, from pleasant to severe.

DRYDEN. The Art of Poetry. Canto i.
l. 75.

Formed by thy converse, happily to steer
From grave to gay, from lively to severe.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epistle iv. l. 379.

One merit of poetry few persons will deny: it says more and in fewer words than prose.

VOLTAIRE. A Philosophical Dictionary.
Poets.

Then, at the last and only couplet
fraught

With some unmeaning thing they call a
thought,

A needless Alexandrine ends the song,
That, like a wounded snake, drags its slow length along.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 156.

Curst be the verse, how well soe'er it
flow,
That tends to make one worthy man my foe,

Give virtue scandal, innocence a fear,
Or from the soft-eyed virgin steal a tear !
Ibid. Prologue to Satires. l. 283.

There is in Poesy a decent pride,
Which well becomes her when she speaks to Prose,
Her younger sister.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. l. 64.

In numbers warmly pure and sweetly strong.

WILLIAM COLLINS. Ode to Simplicity.

In the hexameter rises the fountain's
silvery column :

In the pentameter aye falling in melody back.

COLERIDGE. The Ovidian Elegiac Metre.

Strongly it bears us along in swelling and limitless billows ;
Nothing before and nothing behind but the sky and the ocean.

Ibid. The Homeric Hexameter.

(Trans. from SCHILLER.)

So the Hexameter, rising and singing, with cadence sonorous,
Falls ; and in refluant rhythm back the Pentameter flows.

LONGFELLOW. Elegiac Verse.

[The hexameter is an exotic, which does not flourish in English soil. Yet successful lines may be quoted from Longfellow and Kingsley :

Chanting the hundredth Psalm, that grand old Puritan anthem.

Ibid. Evangeline.

As when an osprey aloft, dock-eyebrowed, royally crested.

KINGSLEY. Andromeda.]

I wish our clever young poets would remember my homely definitions of prose and poetry ; that is, prose,— words in their best order ; poetry,—the best words in their best order.

COLERIDGE. Table Talk.

The poetry of earth is never dead ;

The poetry of earth is ceasing never.

KEATS. On the Grasshopper and Cricket.

Drive my dead thoughts over the universe,

Like withered leaves, to quicken a new birth ;

And, by the incarnation of this verse,
Scatter, as from an unextinguished
hearth

Ashes and sparks, my words among mankind !

Be through my lips to unawakened earth
The trumpet of a prophecy ! Oh Wind, If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind ?

SHELLEY. Ode to the West Wind.

The light that never was, on sea or land ;
The consecration, and the Poet's dream.

WORDSWORTH. Suggested by a Picture of Pelee Castle in a Storm. St. 4.

Wisdom married to immortal verse.

Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. vii.

Verse sweetens toil, however rude the
sound ;

All at her work the village maiden
sings,

Nor while she turns the giddy wheel around,

Revolves the sad vicissitudes of things.

GIFFORD. Contemplation.

For there is no heroic poem in the world but is at bottom a biography, the life of a man ; also, it may be said, there is no life of a man, faithfully recorded, but is a heroic poem of its sort, rhymed or unrhymed.

CARLYLE. Essays : Sir Walter Scott.

He who would not be frustrate of his hope to write well hereafter in laudable things ought himself to be a true poem.

MILTON. Apology for Smectymnus.

The world is a great poem, and the world's

The words it is writ in, and we souls the thoughts.

BAILEY. Festus. Sc. Everywhere.

A poem round and perfect as a star.

ALEX. SMITH. A Life Drama. Sc. 2.

Short swallow flights of song, that dip
Their wings in tears.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam. xlviii.

Never did poesy appear

So full of heaven to me as when

I saw how it would pierce through pride
and fear

To the lives of coarsest men.

LOWELL. An Incident in a Railroad Car.

Would you have your songs endure?
Build them on the human heart!

R. BROWNING. Sordello. Bk. ii.

"Give me a theme," the little poet cried,
"And I will do my part."

"'Tis not a theme you need," the world
replied,

"You want a heart."

R. W. GILDER. Wanted, a Theme.

Tell men what they knew before,
Paint the prospect from their door,
Give to barrows, trays, and pans
Grace and glimmer of romance.

EMERSON. Quatrain.

POLICE.

Dogberry. You are thought here to be the most senseless and fit man for the constable of the watch; therefore bear you the lantern. This is your charge:
you shall comprehend all vagrom men:
you are to bid any man stand, in the prince's name.

Second Watch. How if he will not stand?

Dogberry. Why then, take no note of him, but let him go; and presently call the rest of the watch together, and thank God you are rid of a knave.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 20.

Dogberry. Well, you are to call at all the ale-houses, and bid those that are drunk get them to bed.

Second Watch. How if they will not?

Dogberry. Why then, let them alone till they are sober; if they make you not then the better answer, you may say, they are not the men you took them for.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iii.
Sc. 3. l. 120.

Dogberry. If you meet a thief, you may suspect him, by virtue of your office, to be no true man: and, for such kind of men, the less you meddle or make with them, why, the more is for your honesty.

Second Watch. If we know him to be a thief, shall we not lay hands on him?

Dogberry. Truly, by your office, you may; but I think they that touch pitch will be defiled: the most peaceable way for you, if you do take a thief, is, to let him shew himself what he is, and steal out of your company.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act iii. Sc. 3.

A lidless watcher of the public weal.

TENNYSON. The Princess. iv.

Ah, take one consideration with another
A policeman's lot is not a happy one.

W. S. GILBERT. Pirates of Penzance. Act
ii. (Sergeant's song.)

POLITICAL ECONOMY.

Free trade is not a principle, it is an expedient.

BENJ. DISRAELI. On Import Duties.
April 25, 1843.

It is a condition which confronts us, not a theory.

GROVER CLEVELAND. Annual Message,
1887. Reference to the Tariff.

Free trade, one of the greatest blessings which a government can confer on a people, is in almost every country unpopular.

1884.

POLITICS.

Lear. Get thee glass eyes;
And, like a scurvy politician, seem
To see the things thou dost not.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6.

Measures, not men.

CHESTERFIELD. Letter. March 6, 1742.

Measures, not men, have always been my mark.

GOLDSMITH. The Good-natured Man. Act
ii. Sc. 1.

Of this stamp is the cant of Not men, but measures; a sort of charm by which some people get loose from every honorable engagement.

Ibid. The Iliad of Homer. Bk. x. l. 101.

He serves his party best who serves the country best.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES. Inaugural Address. March 5, 1877.

Party honesty is party expediency.

GROVER CLEVELAND. Interview in New York Commercial Advertiser. Sept. 19, 1889.

And this is the law that I'll maintain

Until my dying day, sir,

That whatsoever king shall reign,

Still I'll be the vicar of Bray, sir.

ANON. The Vicar of Bray.

[Bray, a village in Berkshire, England. Tradition, rather than history, asserts that during Reformation times a certain Vicar of Bray preserved his incumbency for half a century—i. e., during the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Mary, and Elizabeth—by shifting his frail convictions according to the religion of the reigning monarch. The song is sometimes ascribed to one Colonel Fuller.]

General C. is a drefle smart man;

He's ben on all sides that give places or pelf;

But consistency still wuz a part of his plan,—
He's been true to one party,—and that is himself.

JOHN C. CALHOUN. In the United States Senate. May 28, 1836.

To place and power all public spirit tends,

In place and power all public spirit ends,
Like hardy plants, that love the air and sky,

When out, 'twill thrive—but taken in,
'twill die!

T. MOORE. Corruption.

"Hargrave," said his Lordship, "if you want any information upon points of practical politics."

DISRAELI. Vivian Gray. Ch. xiv.

Credite, posteri !

Believe it, after years !

HORACE. Odes. ii. 19, 2.

(CONINGTON, trans.)

Sum cuique decus posteritas rependit.

Posterity gives to every man his true honor.

TACITUS. Annales. iv. 35.

Cordus. Posterity pays every man his honor.

BEN JONSON. Sejanus. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Posterity, that high court of appeal which is never tired of eulogising its own justice and discernment.

LORD MACAULAY. Essay on Machiavelli.

How many ages hence

Shall this our lofty scene be acted over
In states unborn and accents yet unknown.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 1.

This story shall the good man teach his son ;

And Crispin Crispian shall ne'er go by,
From this day to the ending of the world,
But we in it shall be remembered.

Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 3.

(See under FAME.)

[In the first draught of Tennyson's Charge of the Light Brigade some lines that seemed like a reminiscence of Shakespeare were, probably on this account, destroyed by the fastidious Laureate :

Honor the brave and bold !
Long shall the tale be told :
Yea, when our babes are old,—
How they rode onward.]

As though there were a tie,
And obligation to posterity !
We get them, bear them, breed and nurse.
What has posterity done for us,

That we, lest they their rights should lose,

Should trust our necks to gripe of noose ?
JOHN TRUMBULL. McFingal. Canto ii. l. 121.

Here you would know, and enjoy, what posterity will say of Washington. For a thousand leagues have nearly the same effect with a thousand years.

BENJ. FRANKLIN. Letter to Washington. March 5, 1780.

Byron's European fame is the best earnest of his immortality, for a foreign nation is a kind of contemporaneous posterity.

POTTER.

Dear Tom, this brown jug that now foams with mild ale,—

In which I will drink to sweet Nan of the vale,—

Was once Toby Fillpot, a thirsty old soul
As e'er drank a bottle, or fathomed a bowl ;

In bousing about 'twas his praise to excel,
And among jolly toppers he bore off the bell.

FRANCIS FAWKES. The Brown Jug.

Beneath this stone lies Catherine Gray,
Changed to a lifeless lump of clay.

By earth and clay she got her pelf,
And now she's turned to earth herself.

Ye weeping friends let me advise,
Abate your tears and dry your eyes ;
For what avails a flood of tears ?

Who knows but in a course of years,
In some tall pitcher or brown pan,
She in her shop may be again ?

ANON. Epitaph in a Church at Chester, England.

I saw a potter at his work to-day,
Shaping with rudest hand his whirling clay,—

"Ah, gently, brother, do not treat me
thus,

I, too, was once a man," I heard it say.
EDWARD FITZGERALD. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

POVERTY.

What mean ye that ye beat my people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor ? saith the Lord God of Hosts.

Old Testament. Isaiah iii. 15.

For ye have the poor always with you, but Me ye have not always.

New Testament. Matthew xxvi. 2.

Falstaff. I am poor as Job, my lord,
but not so patient.

*SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry IV. Act i. Sc.
2. l. 144.*

Apothecary. My poverty, but not my will, consents.

Romeo. I pay thy poverty, and not thy will.

*Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act v. Sc. 1.
l. 73.*

Othello. Steep'd me in poverty to the very lips.

*Ibid. Othello. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 50.
(See under RIDICULE.)*

Its a little awt at elbows.

*COLLEY CIBBER. The Provok'd Husband.
Act iv. Sc. 1.*

A wise man poor
Is like a sacred book that's never read,—
To himself he lives, and to all else seems dead.

This age thinks better of a gilded fool
Than of a threadbare saint in wisdom's school.

THOMAS DEKKER. Old Fortunatus.

Two of a thousand things are disallow'd,
A lying rich man, and a poor man proud.
HERRICK. Hesperides. 18.

There is no piety but amongst the poor.
RANDOLPH. On the Content he enjoys in the Muses.

Religion always sides with poverty.
HERBERT. The Church Militant.

But to the world no bugbear is so great,
As want of figure and a small estate.

POPE. First Book of Horace. Ep. i. l. 67.

Where are those troops of poor, that throng'd of yore

The good old landlord's hospitable door?
*Ibid. Satires of Dr. Donne. Satire ii.
l. 113.*

O happy unown'd youths! your limbs can bear

The scorching dog-star and the winter's
air,

While the rich infant, nurs'd with care
and pain,

Thirsts with each heat and coughs with every rain!

GAY. Trivia. Bk. ii. l. 145.

And thou, sweet Poetry, thou loveliest maid!

Thou source of all my bliss and all my
woe,

That found'st me poor at first, and keep'st me so.

It is not poetry that makes men poor,
For few do write that were not so before.

Poverty is the Muse's patrimony.

*BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
Sec. 2. Memb. 3. Subs. 15.*

Poverty! thou source of human art,
Thou great inspirer of the poet's song!

E. MOORE. Hymn to Poverty.

This mournful truth is ev'rywhere confess'd,—

Slow rises worth by poverty depress'd.

DR. JOHNSON. London. l. 176.

*Haud facile emergunt quorum virtutibus
obstat*

Res angusta domi.

They do not easily rise whose abilities are repressed by poverty at home.

JUVENAL. Satiræ. iii. 164.

Chill penury repress'd their noble
rage,

And froze the genial current of the
soul.

*GRAY. Elegy in a Country Churchyard.
St. 13.*

The rude inelegance of poverty

Reigns here alone.

*BLOOMFIELD. The Farmer's Boy: Autumn.
l. 82.*

Whene'er I take my walks abroad,

How many poor I see!

What shall I render to my God

For all his gifts to me?

DR. WATTS. Divine Songs. Song iv.

Rattle his bones over the stones!

He's only a pauper, whom nobody owns!

THOMAS NOEL. The Pauper's Ride

PRAISE.

Such praise, coming from so degraded a source, was degrading to me, its recipient.

CICERO. In Pisonem. xxix. 72.

They praise, and they admire, they know not what,
 And know not whom, but as one leads the other,
 And what delight to be by such extoll'd,
 To live upon their tongues, and be their talk,
 Of whom to be dispraised were no small
 praise?

MILTON. Paradise Regained. Bk. iii. l. 52.

Lætus sum laudari a laudato viro.

I am pleased to be praised by a man whom every one praises.

CICERO. Familiar Epistles. v. 12.

Even a nod from a person who is esteemed is of more force than a thousand arguments or studied sentences from others.

PLUTARCH. Life of Phocion.

Approbation from Sir Herbert Stanley is praise indeed.

MORTON. Cure for the Heart-ache. Act v.
 Sc. 2.

Tacent, satis laudant.

Their silence is sufficient praise.

TERENCE. Eunuchus. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 23.

Favorinus, the philosopher, used to say that faint and half-hearted praise was more dishonouring than loud and persistent abuse.

AULUS GELLIUS. Noctes Atticae. xi. 3, 1.

When needs he must, yet faintly then he praises;
 Somewhat the deed, much more the means
 he raises:

So marreth what he makes, and praising most, dispraises.

PHINEAS FLETCHER. The Purple Island.
 Canto vii. St. 67.

With faint praises one another damn.

WYCHERLEY. The Plain Dealer. Prologue.

Damn with faint praise.

POPE. Prologue to the Satires.

O, how thy worth with manners may I
 sing,

When thou art all the better part of
 me?

What can mine own praise to mine own
 self bring?

And what is't but mine own when I praise thee?

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. xxxix.

Doth perfect beauty stand in need of praise at all? Nay; no more than law, no more than truth, no more than loving-kindness, nor than modesty.

MARCUS AURELIUS. Meditations. iv. 20.

Hermione. One good deed dying tongueless

Slaughters a thousand waiting upon that.

Our praises are our wages: you may ride us

With one soft kiss a thousand furlongs, ere

With spur we heat an acre.

SHAKESPEARE. Winter's Tale. Act i. Sc. 2.

He wants worth who dares not praise
 a foe.

DRYDEN. The Conquest of Granada. Act ii.

Long open panegyric drags at best,
 And praise is only praise when well ad-dress'd.

GAY. Epis. i. l. 29.

And solid pudding against empty
 praise.

POPE. The Dunciad. Bk. i. l. 54.

Praise undeserv'd is scandal in disguise.

Ibid. Satires, Epistles, and Odes of Horace.

Epis. i. Bk. ii. l. 413.

[Pope appropriated this line from an anonymous poem To the Celebrated Beauties of the British Court, preserved in BELL, Fugitive Poetry, vol. iii. p. 118. All that we know of the author or his name is from the following epigram, which is likewise anonymous:

When one good line did much my wonder raise

In Br—st's works, I stood resolved to
 praise,

And had, but that the modest author cries
 "Praise undeserved is scandal in disguise."

The Grove (London, 1721) On a Certain
Line of Mr. Br—.]

Fame, impatient of extremes, decays

Not more by envy than by excess of praise.

Ibid. The Temple of Fame. l. 44.

To what base ends, and by what abject ways

Are mortals urged through sacred lust of praise.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 320.

The heart of woman tastes no truer joy,
 Is never flatter'd with such dear enchantment—

'Tis more than selfish vanity—as when She hears the praises of the man she loves.

JAMES THOMSON. Tancred and Sigismunda. Act i. Sc. 1.

I grant the man is vain who writes for praise.

Praise no man e'er deserved who sought no more.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. 1. 3.

The love of praise, howe'er conceal'd by art,

Reigns more or less, and glows in ev'ry heart.

Ibid. Love of Fame. Satire i. l. 51.

All praise is foreign, but of true desert,
Plays round the head, but comes not to the heart.

MASON. Musæus.

Good people all, with one accord,

Lament for Madam Blaize,

Who never wanted a good word

From those who spoke her praise.

GOLDSMITH. Elegy on Mrs. Mary Blaize.

The rose that all are praising

Is not the rose for me.

THOMAS MOORE. The Rose that All are Praising.

He who praises everybody praises nobody.

JOHNSON. Boswell's Life of Johnson. iii. 225, n. 3. (George Birkbeck Hill, editor. 1887.)

PRAYER.

(See WORSHIP.)

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men!

New Testament. Luke ii. 13, 14.

Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

Ibid. Matthew vii. 7.

Who hearkens to the gods, the gods give ear.

HOMER. Iliad. Bk. i. l. 280.
(BRYANT, trans.)

They never sought in vain that sought the Lord aright!

BURNS. The Cotter's Saturday Night. St. 6.

Your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask Him.

New Testament. Matthew vi. 8.

Permittas ipsis expendere numinibus, quid Conveniat nobis, rebusque sit utile nostris Nam pro jucundis aptissima quæque dabunt dii,

Carior est illis homo quam sibi.

Allow the gods themselves to decide what is best for us and most suitable to our circumstances. For instead of our imaginary bliss the gods will give us real good. In truth, man is dearer to the gods than to himself.

JUVENAL. Satires. x. 347.

Μή μοι γένοιθ' ἃ βούλομαι ἅλλα' ἃ συμφέρει.

Let not that happen which I wish, but that which is right.

MENANDER. Fragment.

Menecrates. We, ignorant of ourselves, Beg often our own harms, which the wise powers

Deny us for our good; so find we profit

By losing of our prayers.

SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra.

Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 7.

Who finds not Providence all good and wise,
Alike in what it gives, and what denies?

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. i. l. 205.

Good when he gives, supremely good,

Nor less when he denies,

E'en crosses from his sovereign hand

Are blessings in disguise.

UNKNOWN. Hymn.

[The hymn tinkers occasionally substitute the word "afflictions" for the two words "e'en crosses" in the next to the last line.]

Are afflictions aught
But blessings in disguise?

DAVID MALLET. Amyntor and Theodora.

Let us be patient! These severe afflictions

Not from the ground arise,

But oftentimes celestial benedictions

Assume this dark disguise.

LONGFELLOW. Resignation.

For where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them.

New Testament. Matthew xviii. 20.

Katharine. I am past all comforts here, but prayers.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 147.

Pinch. I charge thee, Satan, hous'd within this man,

To yield possession to my holy prayers,
And to thy state of darkness hie thee straight;

I conjure thee by all the saints in heaven!

Ibid. Comedy of Errors. Act iv. Sc. 4. l. 57.

Mrs. Quickly. His worst fault is, he's given to prayer; he is something peevish that way; but nobody but has his fault:—but let that pass.

SHAKESPEARE. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 10.

But that from us aught should ascend to heav'n

So prevalent as to concern the mind
Of God high-bless'd, or to incline His will,

Hard to belief may seem, yet this will prayer.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. l. 143.

Desine fata deum flecti sperare pre-cando.

Seek not by prayers to shake the will of heaven.

VIRGIL. Æneid. vi. 376.

If by prayer

Incessant I could hope to change the will
Of him who all things can, I would not cease
To weary him with my assiduous cries;
But prayer against his absolute decree
No more avails than breath against the wind Blown stifling back on him that breathes it forth:

Therefore to his great bidding I submit.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. l. 307.

He that forgets to pray

Bids not himself good-morrow nor good-
day.

RANDOLPH. Necessary Observations. First precept.

Who God doth late and early pray
More of his grace than gifts to lend;
And entertains the harmless day
With a religious book or friend.

SIR HENRY WOTTON. *The Character of a
Happy Life*.

In prayer the lips ne'er act the winning part

Without the sweet concurrence of the heart.

HERRICK. Hesperides. The Heart.

Resort to sermons, but to prayers most:
Praying's the end of preaching.

HERBERT. The Temple. *The Church
Porch*. St. 69.

Praise God, from whom all blessings
flow!

Praise Him, all creatures here below!

Praise Him above, ye heavenly host!

Praise Father, Son, and Holy Ghost!

THOMAS KERR. *Morning and Evening
Hymn*.

Our vows are heard betimes! and Heaven takes care
To grant before we can conclude the prayer:

Preventing angels meet in half the way
And sent us back to praise, who came to pray.

DRYDEN. Britannia Rederiva. l. 1.

And fools who came to scoff remained to pray.

GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 180.

Now I lay me down to take my sleep,
I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep;

If I should die before I wake,

I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take.

From the New England Primer. 1814.

Prayer ardent opens Heaven.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night viii. l.
721.

And Satan trembles when he sees

The weakest saint upon his knees.

COWPER. Exhortation to Prayer.

He wales a portion with judicious care;
And "let us worship God" he says with solemn air.

BURNS. The Cotter's Saturday Night.

"'Twas then belike," Honourous cried,
"When you the public fast defied,
Refused to heav'n to raise a prayer,
Because you'd no connections there."

JOHN TRUMBULL. McFingal. Canto i.
l. 541.

That saints will aid if men will call;

For the blue sky bends over all!

COLERIDGE. Christabel. Conclusion to Part i.

He prayeth well who loveth well

Both man and bird and beast.

He prayeth best who loveth best

All things both great and small;

For the dear God who loveth us,

He made and loveth all.

Ibid. The Ancient Mariner.

O sweeter than the marriage-feast,

'Tis sweeter far to me,

To walk together to the kirk

With a goodly company:

To walk together to the kirk,

And all together pray,

While each to his great Father bends,

Old men and babes and loving friends

And youths and maidens gay.

Ibid. The Ancient Mariner.

Earth with her thousand voices praises
God.

COLERIDGE. Hymn in the Vale of Chamouni.

Prayer, man's rational prerogative.

WORDSWORTH. Ecclesiastical Sonnets. Pt. II. xxiii.

The imperfect offices of prayer and
praise.

Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. i.

Some kinder casuists are pleased to say,
In nameless print, that I have no devotion ;

But set those persons down with me to
pray,

And you shall see who has the properest notion

Of getting into heaven the shortest way ;
My altars are the mountains and the ocean,

Earth, air, stars,—all that springs from the great Whole,
Who hath produced and will receive
the soul.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 104.

Full on this casement shone the wintry
moon,

And threw warm gules on Madeline's fair breast,

As down she knelt for heaven's grace and boon ;

Rose-bloom fell on her hands, together
prest,

And on her silver cross soft amethyst,
And on her hair a glory, like a saint :
She seemed a splendid angel, newlydrest,

Save wings, for Heaven.

KEATS. The Eve of St. Agnes.

Thus she stood amid the stooks,

Praising God with sweetest looks.

THOMAS HOOD. Ruth.

Where'er

One meek heart prays, God's love is there !

FRAED. The Legend of the Drachenfels.

But if for any wish thou dar'st not pray,
Then pray to God to cast that wish away.

H. COLERIDGE. Prayer.

From every place below the skies

The grateful song, the fervent prayer,—
The incense of the heart,—may rise

To Heaven, and find acceptance there.

JOHN PIERPONT. Every Place a Temple.

This is that incense of the heart,
Whose fragrance smells to Heaven.
NATHANIEL COTTON. The Fireale. St. 2.

Prayer is the soul's sincere desire,

Uttered or unexpressed,

The motion of a hidden fire

That trembles in the breast.

JAMES MONTGOMERY. Original Hymns :
What is Prayer ?

Prayer is the burden of a sigh,

The falling of a tear,

The upward glancing of an eye

When none but God is near.

Ibid. What is Prayer ?

Abide with me from morn till eve,

For without Thee I cannot live ;

Abide with me when night is nigh,

For without Thee I dare not die.

JOHN KEELE. Evening.

Lord, dismiss us with thy blessing,

Hope, and comfort from above ;

Let us each, thy peace possessing,

Triumph in redeeming love.

ROBERT HAWKER. Benediction.

Love divine, all love excelling,

Joy of heaven to earth come down.

CHARLES WESLEY. Divine Love.

Rock of Ages, cleft for me,

Let me hide myself in thee.

A. M. TOPLADY. Salvation through Christ.

Prayer is the spirit speaking truth to Truth.

BAILEY. Festus. Sc. Elsewhere.

Making their lives a prayer.

WHITTIER. To A. K. On Receiving a Basket of Sea-mosses.

More things are wrought by prayer

Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice

Rise like a fountain for me night and day.

For what are men better than sheep or goats

That nourish a blind life within the brain,

If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer

Both for themselves and those who call them friend ?

For so the whole round earth is every way

Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

TENNYSON. Morte d'Arthur. l. 247.

The chain that's fixed to the throne of Jove,
On which the fabric of our world depends,
One link dissolved, the whole creation ends.

EDMUND WALLER. Of the Danger His Majesty Escaped. l. 68.

And this is that Homer's golden chain, which reacheth down from heaven to earth, by which every creature is annexed, and depends on his Creator.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii. Sec. 1. Memb. 1. Subs. 7.

Friendship is the great chain of human society, and intercourse of letters is one of the chiefest links of that chain.

J. HOWELL. Familiar Letters. Bk. i. Sec. 2. letter 18. To Dr. Pritchard.

Generous commerce binds
The round of nations in a golden chain.

THOMSON. Seasons; Summer. l. 138.

Let this great truth be present night and day;

But most be present, if we preach or pray.
Look round our world; behold the chain
of love

Combining all below and all above.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. ii. l. 7.

PREACHING.

(See CLERGY; SERMON.)

Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

New Testament. Mark xvi. 15.

And pulpit, drum ecclesiastic,
Was beat with fist instead of a stick.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l. 11.

More vacant pulpits would more converts make.

DRYDEN. The Hind and the Panther. Pt. iii. l. 182.

I preached as never sure to preach again,
And as a dying man to dying men.

RICHARD BAXTER. Love Breathing Thanks and Praise.

Sir, a woman preaching is like a dog's walking on his hind legs. It is not done well: but you are surprised to find it done at all.

SAM'L JOHNSON. Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1763.

PRECEPT AND PRACTICE.

Nec vero habere virtutem satis est,
quasi artem aliquam, nisi utare.

It is not enough merely to possess virtue, as if it were an art; it should be practised.

CICERO. De Republica. i. 2.

Video meliora proboque;

Deteriora sequor.

I see the right, and I approve it, too, Condemn the wrong, and yet the wrong pursue.

OVID. Metamorphoses. vii. 20. (TATE AND STONESTREET, trans.)

For the good that I would I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do.

New Testament. Romans vii. 19.

I delight in the law of God after the inward man; but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin.

Ibid. Romans vii. 22.

I know, indeed, the evil of that I purpose;
but my inclination gets the better of my judgment.

EURIPIDES. Medea. 1078.

I know and love the good, yet, ah! the worst pursue.

PETRARCH. Sonnet ccxxv. Canzone xxi. To Laura in Life.

Player King. What we do determine, oft we break,

Purpose is but the slave to memory.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 120.

Portia. If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages princes' palaces. It is a good divine that follows his own instructions. I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow my own teaching.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 15.

Bien predica quien bien vive.

He who lives well is the best preacher.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote. vi. 19.

This noble ensample to his shepe he yaf,—

That first he wrought, and afterwards he taught.

CHAUCER. Canterbury Tales. Prologue. l. 49.

But Cristes lore, and his apostles twelve,
He taught; but first he folwed it himselve.

Ibid. Canterbury Tales. Prologue. l. 529.

Ophelia. Do not, as some ungracious pastors do,

Show me the steep and thorny way to heaven;

Whiles, like a puff'd and reckless libertine,
Himself the primrose path of dalliance treads,

And recks not his own rede.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 47.

The proud he tam'd, the penitent he cheer'd:
Nor to rebuke the rich offender fear'd.
His preaching much, but more his practice wrought—

(A living sermon of the truths he taught—)
For this by rules severe his life he squar'd,
That all might see the doctrine which they heard.

DRYDEN. Character of a Good Parson.
l. 75.

Of right and wrong he taught,
Truths as refined as ever Athens heard;
And (strange to tell!) he practised what he preached.

JOHN ARMSTRONG. The Art of Preserving Health. Bk. iv. l. 301.

Practise what you preach.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire iii. l. 48.

Just men, by whom impartial laws were given,
And saints who taught and led the way to heaven.

TICKELL. On the Death of Mr. Addison.
l. 41.

And, as a bird each fond endearment tries To tempt its new-fledg'd offspring to the skies,

He tried each art, reprov'd each dull delay,
Allur'd to brighter worlds, and led the way.

GOLDSMITH. The Deserted Village. l. 167.

Leonato. Men

Can counsel and speak comfort to that grief

Which they themselves not feel; but,
tasting it,

Their counsel turns to passion, which before

Would give preceptual medicine to Rage,
Fetter strong Madness in a silken thread, Charm Ache with air, and Agony with words.

No, no; 'tis all men's office to speak patience

To those that wring under the load of sorrow,

But no man's virtue nor sufficiency
To be so moral when he shall endure
The like himself.

SHAKESPEARE. A Winter's Tale. Act v.
Sc. 1. l. 20.

Leonato. I pray thee, peace; I will be flesh and blood;

For there was never yet philosopher
That could endure the tooth-ache patiently;

However they have writ the style of gods,
And made a push at chance and sufferance.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v.
Sc. 1. l. 34.

All lovers swear more performance than they are able, and yet reserve an ability that they never perform; vowing more than the perfection of ten, and discharging less than the tenth part of one.

SHAKESPEARE. Troilus and Cressida. Act.
iii. Sc. 2. l. 38.

His conduct still right, with his argument wrong.

GOLDSMITH. Retaliation. l. 46.

Who taught us how to live, and, oh!
too high

The price of knowledge, taught us how to die!

TICKELL. Lines on the Death of Mr. Addison.

Thou, Abelard! the last sad office pay,
And smooth my passage to the realms of day:
See my lips tremble, and my eyeballs roll,
Suck my last breath, and catch my flying
soul!

Ah no!—in sacred vestments mayst thou
stand,

The hallow'd taper trembling in thy hand,
Present the cross before my lifted eye,
Teach me at once, and learn of me, to die.

POPE. Eloisa to Abelard. l. 397.

Thou,

Whom soft-eyed Pity once led down from Heaven

To bleed for Man, to teach him how to live,
And oh! still harder lesson, how to die!

BAILEY PORTEUS. Death. l. 316.

Go put your creed into your deed,
Nor speak with double tongue.

EMERSON. Ode. Concord.

PREDESTINATION.

(See DESTINY.)

O how far remov'd,
Predestination! is thy foot from such
As see not the First Cause entire; and ye,
O mortal men! be wary how ye judge;
For we, who see the Maker, know not yet
The number of the chosen; and esteem
Such scantiness of knowledge our delight:
For all our good is, in that primal good, Concentrate; and God's will and ours are one.

DANTE. Vision of Paradise. Canto xx.
l. 122.

You can and you can't,

You will and you won't;

You'll be damn'd if you do,

You'll be damn'd if you don't.

LORENZO DOW. Chain (Definition of Calvinism).

In the fell clutch of circumstance

I have not winced nor cried aloud:
Beneath the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

It matters not how straight the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll:

I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

HENLY. The Unconquerable Soul.

The Moving Finger writes; and, having writ,

Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line,

Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of
it.

FITZGERALD. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. lxxi.

Oh Thou, who did'st with pitfall and with gin

Beset the Road I was to wander in, Thou wilt not with Predestined Evil
round

Enmesh, and then impute my Fall to Sin!

Ibid. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. xxx.

These purblind Doomsters had as readily strown

Blisses about my pilgrimage as pain.

HARDY. Wessex Poems. Sonnet entitled
Hap.

PREPARATION.

Semper paratus.

Always prepared.

Motto of Lord Clifford.

Chorus. From camp to camp, through the foul womb of night,
The hum of either army still sounds,
That the fixed sentinels almost receive
The secret whispers of each other's watch:

Fire answers fire: and through their paly flames

Each battle sees the other's umber'd face:
Steed threatens steed, in high and boastful neighs

Piercing the night's dull ear; and from the tents,

The armourers accomplishing the knights,

With busy hammers closing rivets up,
Give dreadful note of preparation.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry V. Act iv. Pro-
logue. 1. 4.

[Colley Cibber incorporated this speech, with some verbal variations, into his stage version of Richard III. as part of the solilo-quy uttered by Richard from his tent prior to the battle of Bosworth (Act v. Sc. 5).
Cibber's most notable alteration was in line 14, which he improved thus:

With clink of hammers closing rivets up.]

PRIDE.

Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

Old Testament. Proverbs xvi. 18.

The lowly hart doth win the love of all,
But pride at last is sure of shameful fall.

TURBERVILLE. To Piero of Pride.

Pryde will have a fall;

For pryde goeth before and shame cometh after.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. i. Ch. x.

Pride goeth forth on horseback grand and gay,
But cometh back on foot, and begs its way.

LONGFELLOW. The Bell of Atri.

Sequitur superbos ultor a tergo dens.

An avenging God closely follows the haughty.

SENECA. Hercules Furens. 385.

Rosalind. My pride fell with my fortunes.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act i.
Sc. 2. 1. 212.

Wolsey. I have ventur'd,

Like little wanton boys that swim on bladders,

This many summers in a sea of glory,
But far beyond my depth: my high-blown pride

At length broke under me.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. 358.

Agamemnon. He that is proud, eats up himself; Pride is his own glass, his own trumpet, his own chronicle; and whatever praises itself but in the deed, devours the deed in the praise.

Ajax. I do hate a proud man, as I hate the engendering of toads.

Nestor. And yet he loves himself! Is it not strange?

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act ii. Sc.
3. 1. 194.

How blinde is Pride! what Eagles we are still

In matters that belong to other men!

What Beetles in our owne!

G. CHAPMAN. All Fools. Act iv. Sc. 1.

A proud man is always hard to be pleased, because he hath too great expectations from others.

RICHARD BAXTER. Christian Ethics.

Pride brings want, want makes rogues, rogues come to be hanged, and the devil's alone the gainer.

VANBURGH. Æsop. Pt. i. Act. iv. Sc. 2.

Pride (of all others the most dangerous fault)

Proceeds from want of sense, or want of thought.

The men who labor and digest things
most,

Will be much apter to despond than boast.

ROSCOMMON. Essay on Translated Verse.
1. 161.

Of all the causes which conspire to blind Man's erring judgment, and misguide
the mind;

What the weak head with strongest bias rules,—

Is pride, the never-failing vice of fools.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 1.

In pride, in reas'ning pride, our error
lies;

All quit their sphere and rush into the skies.

Pride still is aiming at the bless'd
abodes,

Men would be angels, angels would be gods.

Ibid. Essay on Man. Epis. i. 1. 124.

Seas roll to waft me, suns to light me rise;

My foot-stool earth, my canopy the skies.

Ibid. Essay on Man. Epis. i. 1. 139.

Whatever Nature has in worth denied,
She gives in large recruits of needful
pride;

For as in bodies, thus in souls, we find,
What wants in blood and spirits, swell'd with wind:

Pride, where wit fails, steps in to our defence,

And fills up all the mighty void of sense.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. 1. 5.

Pride, like an eagle, builds among the
stars;

But Pleasure, lark-like, nests upon the ground.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. 1. 19.

'T's pride, rank pride, and haughtiness of soul;

I think the Romans call it stoicism.

ADDISON. Cato. Act i. Sc. 4.

How insolent is upstart pride!

Hadst thou not thus, with insult vain,

Provok'd my patience to complain,

I had conceal'd thy meaner birth,

Nor trac'd thee to the scum of earth.

GAY. Fables. Pt. i. Fable 24.

Our pride misleads, our timid likings kill.

WORDSWORTH. Memorials of a Tour on the Continent. Pt. ii. Desultory Stanzas.

Pride

Howe'er disguised in its own majesty,
Is littleness.

Ibid. Poems Written in Youth. vii.

The vile are only vain, the great are proud.

BYRON. Marino Faliero. Act ii. Sc. 1.

He saw a cottage with a double coach-
house,

A cottage of gentility!

And the devil did grin, for his darling
sin

Is pride that apes humility.

COLERIDGE. Devil's Thoughts.

He passed a cottage with a double coach-
house,

A cottage of gentility;

And he owned with a grin

That his favorite sin

Is pride that apes humility.

SOUTHEY. The Devil's Walk. St. 8.

How poor religious pride,
In all the pomp of method, and of art,
When men display to congregations wide,
Devotion's every grace except the heart!

BURNS. The Cotter's Saturday Night.

A pride there is of rank—a pride of birth,
A pride of learning, and a pride of purse,
A London pride—in short, there be on earth
A host of prides, some better and some worse;

But of all prides, since Lucifer's attaind,
The proudest swells a self-elected saint.

HOOD. Ode to Rae-Wilson.

I was not ever thus, nor prayed that Thou Shouldst lead me on ;
I loved to choose and see my path ; but now

Lead Thou me on !

I loved the garish day, and, spite of fears, Pride ruled my will. Remember not past years !

JOHN HENRY NEWMAN. *Lead, Kindly
Light.*

My thoughtless youth was wing'd with vain desires ;

My manhood, long misled by wandering
fires,

Follow'd false lights ; and, when their glimpse was gone.

My pride struck out new sparkles of her own.
Such was I, such by nature still I am ;

Be thine the glory, and be mine the shame.
DRYDEN. The Hind and the Panther. l. 72.

Oh ! Why should the spirit of mortal be proud ?

WM. KNOX. Oh ! Why Should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud ?
(See under MORTALITY.)

For often a man's own angry pride
Is cap and bells for a fool.

TENNYSON. Maud. vi. 7.

The sad rhyme of the men who proudly clung

To their first fault, and withered in their pride.

R. BROWNING. Paracelsus. Pt. iv.

PRIMROSE.

Primrose, first-born child of Ver,
Merry springtime's harbinger.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER. *The Two
Noble Kinsmen.* Act i. Sc. 1.

Bring the rathe primrose that forsaken dies.

MILTON. Lycidas. l. 142.
(See under FLOWERS.)

Her modest looks the cottage might adorn,

Sweet as the primrose peeps beneath the thorn.

GOLDSMITH. The Deserted Village. l. 329.

Mild offspring of a dark and sullen sire !

Whose modest form, so delicately fine,
Was nursed in whirling storms,
And cradled in the winds.

Thee when young spring first question'd winter's sway,

And dared the sturdy blusterer to the fight,

Thee on his bank he threw

To mark his victory.

HENRY KIRKE WHITE. To an Early Primrose.

A primrose by a river's brim,
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more.

WORDSWORTH. Peter Bell. Pt. i. St. 12.

"I could have brought you some primroses, but I do not like to mix violets with anything."

"They say primroses make a capital salad," said Lord St. Jerome.

BENJ. DISRAELI. Lothair. Ch. xiii.

PRINTING.

Art preservative of all arts.

[Translation of inscription upon the facade of the house at Harlem formerly occupied by Laurent Koster (or Coster), who is sometimes credited with the invention of printing. Mention is first made of this inscription about 1628 :—

MEMORIE SACRUM

TYPOGRAPHIA

ARS ARTIUM OMNIUM

CONSERVATRIX.

HIC PRIMUM INVENTA

CIRCA ANNUM MCCCCXL.]

Jack Cade. Thou hast most traitor-ously corrupted the youth of the realm in erecting a grammar school : and whereas, before, our forefathers had no other books but the score and the tally, thou hast caused printing to be used,
and, contrary to the king, his crown and dignity, thou hast built a paper-mill.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry VI. Act iv.
Sc. 7. l. 35.

How shall I speak thee or thy power address,

Thou God of our idolatry, the Press ?

By thee, religion liberty, and laws

Exert their influence and advance their cause ;

By thee worse plagues than Pharaoh's land
befell,

Diffused, make earth the vestibule of hell ;
Thou fountain, at which drink the good and wise ;

Thou ever-bubbling spring of endless lies ;

Like Eden's dead probationary tree,

Knowledge of good and evil is from thee !

COWPER. The Progress of Error.

PRISON.

Χρυσὰί τιδαί.

Golden fetters.

DIOGENES: Erasmus, Chiliades Adajiorum,
"Amor."

No man loveth his fetters, be they made of gold.

JOHN HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. i. Ch. viii.

A foole I doe him firmly hold,
That loves his fetters, though they were of gold.

SPENSER. Faerie Queene. Bk. iii. Canto
ix. St. 8.

Arviragus. Our cage

We make our choir, as doth the prison'd
bird,

And sing our bondage freely.

SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc. 3.
l. 42.

Macbeth. Then comes my fit again: I had else been perfect;

Whole as the marble, founded as the rock;

As broad and general as the casing air.
But now, I am cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd, bound in

To saucy doubts and fears.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 23.

Stone walls do not a prison make,

Nor iron bars a cage;

Minds innocent and quiet take

That for an hermitage;

If I have freedom in my love,

And in my soul am free,

Angels alone that soar above

Enjoy such liberty.

RICHARD LOVELACE. To Althea from Prison. iv.

Ferdinand. My spirits, as in a dream, are all bound up.

My father's loss, the weakness which I feel,
The wreck of all my friends, or this man's threats,

To whom I am subdu'd, are but light to me,
Might I but through my prison once a day
Behold this maid: all corners else o' th'
earth

Let Liberty make use of; space enough

Have I in such a prison.

SHAKESPEARE. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 635.

Cassius. Nor stony tower, nor walls of beaten brass,

Nor airless dungeon, nor strong links of iron,

Can be retentive to the strength of spirit;
But life, being weary of these worldly bars,
Never lacks power to dismiss itself.

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 93.

Romeo. For stony limits cannot keep love out:

And what love can do, that dares love attempt.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
ii. Sc. 2. l. 67.

That which the world miscalls a jail

A private closet is to me,

Whilst a good conscience is my bail,

And innocence my liberty;

Locks, bars, and solitude, together see,

Make me no prisoner, but an anchorite.

LORD ARTHUR CAPEL. Written in Confinement.

Eternal Spirit of the chainless Mind!

Brightest in dungeons, Liberty! thou art,

For there thy habitation is the heart—

The heart which love of thee alone can bind;

And when thy sons to fetters are consign'd—

To fetters and the damp vault's dayless gloom,

Their country conquers with their martyrdom.

BYRON. Sonnet. On Chillon. Introductory to Prisoner of Chillon.

In durance vile here must I wake and
weep,

And all my frowsy couch in sorrow steep.

DRYDEN. Epistle from Esopus to Maria.

Durance vile.

W. KENRICK (1776). Falstaff's Wedding.
Act i. Sc. 2. BURKE. The Present Discontents.

Whene'er with haggard eyes I view

This dungeon that I'm rotting in,

I think of those companions true

Who studied with me at the U-Niversity of Göttingen.

CANNING. Song. Of One Eleven Years in Prison.

If fields are prisons, where is Liberty?

BLOOMFIELD. The Farmer's Boy: Autumn.
l. 226.

PROCRASTINATION.

Alencon. Defer no time, delays have dangerous ends.

SHAKESPEARE. I. Henry VI. Act iii. Sc.
2. l. 33.

All delays are dangerous in war.

DRYDEN. Tyrannic Love. Act i. Sc. 1.

Defer not till to-morrow to be wise,

To-morrow's sun on thee may never rise;

Or should to-morrow chance to cheer thy sight

With her enlivening and unlook'd for light,
How grateful will appear her dawning rays,
As favors unexpected doubly please.

CONGREVE. Letter to Cobham.

Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer;
 Next day the fatal precedent will plead;
 Thus on, till wisdom is push'd out of life.
 YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 387.

Great Pompey's shade complains that we are slow,
 And Scipio's ghost walks unaveng'd amongst us!

JOSEPH ADDISON. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 1.

The patient dies while the physician
 sleeps;
 The orphan pines while the oppressor
 feeds;

Justice is feasting while the widow
 weeps;

Advice is sporting while infection breeds.
 SHAKESPEARE. The Rape of Lucrece. 130.

Katharine. O, my good lord, that comfort comes too late;

'Tis like a pardon after execution;
 That gentle physic, given in time, had
 cur'd me;

But now I'm past all comforts here but prayers.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 120.

It is too late to shutte the stable door
 when the steede is stolne.

LYLY. Euphues.

Know the true value of time; snatch, seize, and enjoy every moment of it.
 No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination: never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.

EARL OF CHESTERFIELD. Letters to His Son. Dec. 26, 1749.

Procrastination is the thief of time:
 Year after year it steals, till all are fled,
 And to the mercies of a moment leaves
 The vast concerns of an eternal scene.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 390.

PRODIGAL.

A spending hand that alway poureth out,
 Hath nede to have a bringer-in as fast.

SIR T. WYATT. How to Use the Court and Himself therein. l. 1.

Squandering wealth was his peculiar art;
 Nothing went unrewarded but desert.

Beggard by fools, whom still he found too late;

He had his jest, and they had his estate.

DRYDEN. Abalom and Achitophel. Pt. i.
 l. 559.

Framed in the prodigality of nature.
 SHAKESPEARE. Richard III. Act i. Sc.
 2. l. 96.

Let friends of prodigals say what they
 will,
 Spendthrifts at home, abroad are spendthrifts still.

CHURCHILL. Candidate. l. 519.

O man! while in thy early years,
 How prodigal of time!
 Mis-spending all thy precious hours,
 Thy glorious, youthful prime!

BURNS. Despondency.

To be a prodigal's favourite, then worse
 truth,

A miser's pensioner,—behold our lot.
 WORDSWORTH. The Small Celandine.

PROGRESS.

(See EVOLUTION.)

Equidem æternâ constitutione crediderim nexuque causarum latentium et multo ante destinatarum suum quemque ordinem immutabili lege percurrere.

For my own part I am persuaded that everything advances by an unchangeable law through the eternal constitution and association of latent causes, which have been long before predestinated.

QUINTUS CURTIUS RUFUS. *De Rebus Gestis
 Alexandri Magni*. v. 11. 10.

Yet I doubt not thro' the ages one increasing purpose runs,
 And the thoughts of men are widen'd with the process of the suns.

TENNYSON. Locksley Hall. St. 69.

Nitor in adversum, nec me, qui cætera vincit

Impetus, et rapido contrarius evehor orbi.

I forge ahead, nor can the opposing rush,
 That sways all else, my onward progress
 check,

But bears me on against a whirling
 world.

OVID. Metamorphoses. ii. 72. (KING,
 trans.)

[Macaulay applies the lines to the poetic powers of Milton.]

Thus far into the bowels of the land
 Have we march'd on without impediment.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard III. Act v. Sc.
 2. l. 3.

Proteus. You know that love
Will creep in service when it cannot go.
SHAKESPEARE. Two Gentlemen of Verona.
Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 19.

Men say, kinde will creepe where it may not goe.
J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. x.

So eagerly the Fiend
O'er bog or steep, through strait, rough,
dense, or rare,
With head, hands, wings, or feet, pursues his way,
And swims or sinks, or wades, or creeps,
or flies.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. l. 948.

So he with difficulty and labour hard Mov'd on, with difficulty and labour he.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. ii. l. 1021.

Slackness breeds worms; but the sure traveller,
Though he alights sometimes, still goeth
on.
HERBERT. Temple. Church Porch. St. 57.

All that is human must retrograde if it do not advance.
GIBBON. Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Ch. clxxi.

And step by step, since time began,
I see the steady gain of man.
WHITTIER. The Chapel of the Hermits.

Three sleepless nights I passed in sounding on,
Through words and things, a dim and perilous way.
WORDSWORTH. The Borderers. Act iv.
Sc. 2.

The intellectual power, through words and
things,
Went sounding on a dim and perilous way!
Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. iii.

We live by Admiration, Hope, and Love;
And, even as these are well and wisely fixed,
In dignity of being we ascend.
Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. iv.

The world goes up and the world goes
down,
And the sunshine follows the rain;
And yesterday's sneer and yesterday's frown
Can never come over again.
CHARLES KINGSLEY. Dolcino to Margaret.

A sacred burden is this life ye bear:
Look on it, lift it, bear it solemnly,
Stand up and walk beneath it steadfastly.
Fail not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
But onward, upward, till the goal ye win.
FRANCES ANNE KEMBLE. Lines Addressed to the Young Gentlemen leaving the Lenox Academy, Mass.

Here in the body pent,
Absent from Him I roam,
Yet nightly pitch my moving tent
A day's march nearer home.
J. MONTGOMERY. At Home in Heaven.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act, that each to-morrow
Find us farther than to-day.
LONGFELLOW. A Psalm of Life.

Aid the dawning, tongue and pen;
Aid it, hopes of honest men!
CHARLES MACKAY. Clear the Way.

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling
gloom,
Lead Thou me on!
The night is dark, and I am far from home—
Lead Thou me on!
J. H. NEWMAN. The Pillar of Cloud.

I held it truth, with him who sings
To one clear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things.
TENNYSON. In Memoriam. i.

[The poet alluded to is Goethe. I know this from Lord Tennyson himself, although he could not identify the passage; and when I submitted to him a small book of mine on his marvellous poem, he wrote: "It is Goethe's creed," on this very passage.—REV.
DR. ALFRED GATTY.]

Saint Augustine! well hast thou said,
That of our vices we can frame
A ladder, if we will but tread
Beneath our feet each deed of shame.
LONGFELLOW. The Ladder of St. Augustine.

De vitilis nostris scalam nobis facimus, si
vitia ipsa calcamus.
If we tread our vices under our feet, we make of them a ladder by which to rise to higher things.
ST. AUGUSTINE. Sermo clxxvii. 4. (Migne's Patrologiæ Cursus. Vols. xxxviii. and xxxix., p. 2082.)

We rise by things that are under our feet;
By what we have mastered of good and gain;
By the pride deposed and the passion slain,
And the vanquished ills that we hourly meet.

J. G. HOLLAND. Gradation.

Forward, forward let us range,
Let the great world spin for ever down
the ringing grooves of change.

TENNYSON. Locksley Hall.

[Dr. Alfred Gatty, in English Notes and Queries, Eighth Series, Vol. ii., p. 387, has informed the world that these lines were due to a misconception by the laureate. "After reading the poem in his deep monotone, he told us that he was present at the first opening of the railway line betwixt Manchester and Liverpool, when Mr. Huskisson was killed, and, being short-sighted, he thought that the wheels ran in 'ringing grooves' instead of on the smooth rail, kept in their place by the inside flange. No doubt he who dipt into the future far as human eye could see perceived the advent of a mighty change and advance, both in time and space, from a general adoption of railways, which this event prognosticated."]

From lower to the higher next,
Not to the top, is Nature's text;
And embryo good, to reach full stature,
Absorbs the evil in its nature.

LOWELL. Festina Lente. Moral.

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!

O. W. HOLMES. The Chambered Nautilus.

Progress is
The law of life, man is not man as yet.
R. BROWNING. Paracelsus. v.

Progress, man's distinctive mark alone,
Not God's, and not the beasts: God is,
they are;
Man partly is, and wholly hopes to be.
Ibid. A Death in the Desert.

Onward the chariot of the Untarrying moves;
Nor day divulges him nor night conceals;

Thou hear'st the echo of unreturning
hooves

And thunder of irrevocable wheels.
WILLIAM WATSON. Epigrams.

PROHIBITION.

Stolen waters are sweet, and bread eaten in secret is pleasant.

Old Testament. Proverbs ix. 17.

Prævalent illicita.

Things forbidden have a secret charm.

TACITUS. Annales. xiii. 1.

Cui peccare licet, peccat minus. Ipsa potestas

Semina nequitiae languidiora facit.

Who's free to sin, sins less: the very power
Robs evildoing of its choicest flower.

OVID. Art of Love. iii. 49. (KING, trans.)

Forbidden pleasures alone are loved immoderately; when lawful, they do not excite desire.

QUINTILIAN. Declamations. xiv. 18.

"Much sweeter," she saith, "more acceptable

Is drinke, when it is stolen priuely,
Than when it is taken in forme auawable:
Bread hidden and gotten jeopardously,
Must needs be sweet, and semably,
Unison stolne is aye the sweeter.
The further the narrower fet the better.

LYDGATE. The Remedy of Love.

Stolen glances, sweeter for the theft.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 74.

How glowing guilt exalts the keen delight.

POPE. Eloisa to Abelard. l. 230.

Qui non vetat peccare, cum possit,
jabet.

Who does not, when he may, forbid a crime

Commands it.

SENECA. Troades. 300.

The love that's half refused inflames the
more,
Sweetest the kiss that's stol'n from weeping
maid.

CLAUDIAN. In Nuptias Honorii. iv. 10.

PROLOGUES.

Macbeth. Two truths are told,
As happy prologues to the swelling act
Of the imperial theme.

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 142.

Prologues precede the piece in mournful
verse,

As undertakers walk before the hearse.

GABBICK. Apprentice. Prologue.

Prologues, like compliments, are loss of time;

'Tis penning bows and making legs in rhyme.

GARRICK. Prologue to Crisp's Tragedy of Virginia.

PROMISE.

Never promise more than you can perform.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 528.

Promise is most given when the least is said.

GEORGE CHAPMAN. Hero and Leander. l. 234.

Bawd. He was ever precise in promise-keeping.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 42.

Katharine. His promises were, as he then was, mighty;

But his performance, as he is now, nothing.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 41.

Charles. Thy promises are like Adonis' gardens,

That one day bloomed, and fruitful were the next.

Ibid. I. Henry VI. Act 1. Sc. 6. l. 6.

Fayre words fat few, great promises without performance, delight for the time, but yëarke euer after.

LYLY. Euphues and His England (Euphues to Philantus). Last letter.

We promise according to our hopes, and perform according to our fears.

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maxim 39.

Failed the bright promise of your early day.

REGINALD HEBER. Palestine.

You never bade me hope, 'tis true;

I asked you not to swear:

But I looked in those eyes of blue,

And read a promise there.

GERALD GRIFFIN. You Never Bade Me Hope.

Yet thou art welcome, welcome as a friend

Whose zeal outruns his promise.

WORDSWORTH. To a Snow-drop.

PROPERTY.

Quod tuom 'st meum 'st: omne meum est autem tuom.

What is thine is mine, all mine is also thine.

PLAUTUS. Trinummus. Act ii. Sc. 2.

Duke. Dear Isabel,
I have a motion much imports your good;
Whereto if you'll a willing ear incline,
What's mine is yours and what is yours is mine.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 212.

Property assures what toil acquires.

SAVAGE. Of Public Spirit. l. 39.

La propriété c'est le vol.

Property is theft.

PROUDHON. Qu'est ce que c'est que la Propriété. Published in 1840.

La propriété exclusive est un vol dans la nature.

Exclusive property is a theft in nature.

BRISSOT. Essays.

Property has its duties as well as its rights.

THOMAS DRUMMOND. Letter to the Lords of Tipperary.

[Disraeli appropriates the phrase without acknowledgment in his novel of Sybil, Ch. xi.]

Doesn't thou 'ear my 'erse's legs, as they canters awaäy?

Proputtty, proputtty, proputtty—that's what I 'ears 'em saäy.

Proputtty, proputtty, proputtty—Sam, thou 's an ass for thy paaäins:

Theer 's moor sense i' one o' 'is legs nor in all thy braäins.

TENNYSON. The Northern Farmer, New Style. l. 1.

PROPHECY; PROPHETS.

Is Saul also among the prophets?

Old Testament. I. Samuel x. 11.

But Jesus said unto them: A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and in his own house.

New Testament. Matthew xiii. 57.

[See also Mark vi. 4; Luke iv. 24; John iv. 44.]

Banquo. If you can look into the seeds of Time,

And say, which grain will grow and which will not,

Speak then to me, who neither beg nor fear
Your favours nor your hate.
SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act 1. Sc. 3. l. 60.

Macbeth. Bring me no more reports; let them fly all:
Till Birnam-wood remove to Dunsinane, I cannot taint with fear. What's the boy Malcolm?
Was he not born of woman? The spirits that know
All mortal consequences have pronounc'd me thus:
'Fear not, Macbeth; no man that's born of woman
Shall e'er have power upon thee.'—Then fly, false Thanes.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 1.

Soon shall thy arm, unconquer'd steam afar
Drag the slow barge, or drive the rapid car;
Or on wide-waving wings extended bear
The flying chariot through the field of air.
ERASMUS DARWIN. The Botanic Garden. Pt. i. Canto i. l. 289.

Ancestral voices prophesying war.
COLERIDGE. Kubla Khan.

Lochiel, Lochiel; beware of the day;
For, dark and despairing, my sight I may seal
But man cannot cover what God would reveal;
'Tis the sunset of life gives me mystical lore,
And coming events cast their shadows before.
CAMPBELL. Lochiel's Warning.

I am about to die, and that is the hour in which men are gifted with prophetic power.
SOCRATES. Reported by PLATO. Apology. xxx. (Stephens, p. 39, c.)

What folly can be ranker? Like our shadows,
Our wishes lengthen as our sun declines.
YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. l. 661.

So often do the spirits
Of great events stride on before the events,
And in to-day already walks to-morrow.
COLERIDGE. The Death of Wallenstein. Act v. Sc. 1.

Poets are the hierophants of an unapprehended inspiration; the mirrors of the gigantic shadows which futurity casts upon the present.

SHELLEY. A Defence of Poetry.
[See OMENS.]

The prophet's mantle, ere his flight began,
Dropt on the world—a sacred gift to man.

CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. i. l. 43.

Of all the horrid, hideous notes of woe,
Sadder than owl-songs or the midnight blast;

Is that portentous phrase, "I told you so."

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto xiv. St. 50.

Don't never prophesy—unless ye know.

LOWELL. The Biglow Papers (2d Series). Mason and Sidell.

PROTESTANT.

The religion most prevalent in our northern colonies is a refinement on the principals of resistance: it is the dissidence of dissent, and the protestantism of the Protestant religion.

BURKE. Speech on the Conciliation of America. Vol. ii. p. 123.

When love could teach a monarch to be wise,
And gospel-light first dawned from Bullen's eyes.

GRAY.

[This couplet was to have formed part of an unfinished poem: "The Alliance of Education and Government." It was preserved by Gray's biographer and editor, Mason, as "much too beautiful to be lost."]

We have a Calvinistic creed, a Popish liturgy, and an Arminian clergy.

WILLIAM PITT. Prior's Life of Burke (1790).

The Americans equally detest the pageantry of a king and the supercilious hypocrisy of a bishop.

JUNIUS. Letter 35. Dec. 19, 1769.

It [Calvinism] established a religion without a prelate, a government without a king.

GEORGE BANCROFT. History of the United States. Vol. iii. Ch. vi.

The solitary monk who shook the world,
From pagan slumber, when the gospel trump

Thunder'd its challenge from his dauntless lips

In peals of truth.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY. Luther: Man's Need and God's Supply.

PROVERB.

A proverb and a byword.

Old Testament. I. Kings ix. 7.

The genius, wit, and spirit of a nation are discovered in its proverbs.

BACON. Essays.

I do not say a proverb is amiss when aptly and seasonably applied; but to be forever discharging them, right or wrong, hit or miss, renders conversation insipid and vulgar.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. xliii.

Romeo. For I am proverb'd with a good sire phrase.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act i. Sc. iv. l. 37.

A proverb is one man's wit and all men's wisdom.

LORD JOHN RUSSELL. (See Memoirs of Mackintosh. Vol. ii., p. 473.)

[Usually quoted "the wisdom of many and the wit of one."]

Leonato. Patch grief with proverbs.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 17.

Proverbs, like the sacred books of each nation, are the sanctuary of the Intuitions.

EMERSON. Essays: Compensation.

PROVIDENCE.

He maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust.

New Testament. Matthew v. 45.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: he leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.

Old Testament. Psalm xxiii. 2, 3.

The Lord my pasture shall prepare,
And feed me with a shepherd's care;
His presence shall my wants supply,
And guard me with a watchful eye.

JOSEPH ADDISON. Spectator. No. 444.

Man proposes, but God disposes.

Old Proverb.

[Thomas à Kempis quotes the proverb in its literal Latin form, Homo proponet sed Deus disponit, in The Imitation of Christ, Bk. i., Ch. xix. But it is much earlier than à Kempis. It may be found quoted in its Latin form, with only the change from "but" to "and," in the Vision of Piers Ploughman, as follows:

Homo proponet et Deus disponit.

And governeth all good virtues.

l. 13,994.

The obvious original is in the Old Testament: A man's heart deviseth his way: but the Lord directeth his steps. (Proverbs xvi. 9.) Which in the Latin or Vulgate translation ran: Cor hominis disponet viam suam, sed Domini est dirigere gressus ejus. Cf. also Virgil:

Diis aliter visum.

The Gods have judged otherwise.

Æneid. Bk. ii. l. 428.

And Homer:

'Tis man's to fight, but Heaven's to give success.

Iliad. Bk. vi. l. 427. (POPE, trans.)]

Hamlet. There's a divinity that shapes our ends,

Rough hew them how we will.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 128.

Not as we wanted it,

But as God granted it.

QUILLER COUCH. Poems and Ballads: To Bearers. St. 1.

Hamlet. There is a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be now 'tis not to come; if it be not to come, it will be now; if it be not now, yet it will come; the readiness is all.

SHAKESPEARE.. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 230.

Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? and one of them shall not fall on the ground without your Father.

New Testament. Matthew xi. 29.

Who sees with equal eye, as God of all,
A hero perish or a sparrow fall,
Atoms or systems into ruin hurled
And now a bubble burst, and now a world.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. i. l. 87.

Adam. And He that doth the ravens feed,

Yea, providently caters for the sparrow,
Be comfort to my age!

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. iii. l. 43.

He who, from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight,

In the long way that I must tread alone
Will lead my steps aright.

BRYANT. To a Waterfowl.

She had travelled all over Lombardy without money, and through the flinty roads of Savoy without shoes: how she had borne it, she could not tell; but "God tempers the wind," said Maria,

"to the shorn lamb." "Shorn, indeed ! and to the quick," said I.

STERNE. A Sentimental Journey. [Maria was here quoting a familiar French proverb, thus recorded by the proverb-monger Henry Estienne :

Dieu mesure le froid à la brebis tondue.
God measures the cold to the shorn lamb.
Le Livre des Proverbes Epigrammatiques (1594).

The proverb was also known to mediæval England :

To a close shorn sheep God gives wind to measure.

HERBERT. Jacula Prudentum. 1640.]

Beatrice. It is said, "God sends a curst cow short horns," but to a cow too curst he sends none.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 22.

Aux petits des oiseaux il donne la pâture.
To the bird's young ones He gives food.

CORNEILLE. Athalie.
[The irreverent Et sa bonté s'arrête à la littérature (and His bounty stops only with men of letters) is Gozlan's variant of the second line of the couplet.]

Katharine. Heaven is above all yet ;
there sits a judge

That no king can corrupt.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry VIII. Act iii. Sc.
1. l. 101.

The providence of Heav'n
Has some peculiar blessing giv'n
To each allotted state below.

AKENSIDE. Ode on the Winter Solstice.

Heaven's all-subduing will
With good the progeny of ill,
Attempt' th ev'ry state below.

Ibid. Ode 2.

'T is Providence alone secures
In every change, both mine and yours.

COWPER. A Fable: Morals.

The Ball no question makes of Ayes
and Noes,

But Here or There as strikes the Player goes ;

And He that toss'd you down into the Field,

He knows about it all—He knows—He knows !

FITZGERALD. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

While Thee I seek, protecting Power,
Be my vain wishes stilled ;

And may this consecrated hour
With better hopes be filled.

HELEN MARIA WILLIAMS. Trust in Providence.

Providence cares for every hungry mouth.

R. BROWNING. Ferishtah's Fancies: The Eagle.

God never sends th' mouth, but he sendeth meat.

HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Chap. iv.

The hope of all who suffer.

The dread of all who wrong,
WHITTIER. The Mantle of St. John de Matha.

So, darkness in the pathway of Man's life

Is but the shadow of God's providence,
By the great Sun of Wisdom cast thereon ;
And what is dark below is light in Heaven.

Ibid. Tauler. l. 79.

I know not where His islands lift
Their fronded palms in air ;

I only know I cannot drift

Beyond His love and care.

Ibid. The Eternal Goodness. St. 20.

PROXY.

Claudio. Friendship is constant in all other things

Save in the office and affairs of love :

Therefore all hearts in love use their own tongues ;

Let every eye negotiate for itself

And trust no agent.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 182.

Orlando. O, how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes ! By so much the more shall I to-morrow be at the height of heart heaviness, by how much I shall think my brother happy, in having what he wishes for.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 44.

Hermid. O, hell ! to choose love by another's eyes.

Ibid. A Midsummer Night's Dream.
Act i. Sc. 1. l. 142.

PURITAN.

A sect, whose chief devotion lies

In odd perverse antipathies :

In falling out with that or this,

And finding somewhat still amiss :

More peevish, cross, and splenetick,
Than dog distract, or monkey sick:
That with more care keep holy-day
The wrong, than others the right way:
Compound for sins they are inclin'd to:
By damning those they have no mind to:
Still so perverse and opposite,
As if they worshipp'd God for spite.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i.

Round-heads and wooden-shoes are standing-jokes.

ADDISON. Prologue to The Drummer.

The Puritan hated bear-baiting, not because it gave pain to the bear, but because it gave pleasure to the spectators.

MACAULAY. History of England. Vol. i.
Ch. iii.

Even bear-baiting was esteemed heathenish and unchristian: the sport of it, not the inhumanity, gave offence.

HUME. History of England. Vol. i. Ch.
lxii.

The Puritan was not a man of speculation. He originated nothing. His principles are to be found broadcast in the centuries behind him. His speculations were all old. You might find them in the lectures of Abelard; you meet with them in the radicalism of Wat Tyler; you find them all over the continent of Europe. The distinction between his case and that of others was simply that he practised what he believed.

WENDELL PHILLIPS. Speeches, Lectures, and Letters: The Puritan Principle.

The Puritan did not stop to think;
he recognized God in his soul, and acted.
Ibid. Speech. Dec. 18, 1859.

Puritanism meant something when Captain Hodgson, riding out to battle through the morning mist, turns over the command of his troop to a lieutenant, and stays to hear the prayer of a cornet, there was "so much of God in it."

LOWELL. Among My Books: New England Two Centuries Ago.

Puritanism, believing itself quick with the seed of religious liberty, laid, without knowing it, the egg of democracy.

Ibid. *Among My Books: New England
Two Centuries Ago*.

PURITY.

To the pure all things are pure.

ST. PAUL. Epistle to Titus. i. 15.

Ut quisque est vir optimus, ita difficillime esse alios improbos suspicatur.

The better a man is, the less ready is he to suspect dishonesty in others.

CICERO. Ad Quintum Fratrem. i. 1, 4, 12.

The sun, too, shines into cesspools and is not polluted.

DIOGENES LAERTIUS. Lib. vi. Sec. 63.

The sun, though it passes through dirty places, yet remains as pure as before.

BACON. Advancement of Learning.

Spiritualis enim virtus sacramenti ita est ut lux: etsi per immundos transeat, non in-quinatur.

The spiritual virtue of a sacrament is like light: although it passes among the impure,
it is not polluted.

ST. AUGUSTINE. Works. Vol. iii. In Johannis Evang. Cap. i. Tr. v. Sec.
15.

The sun shineth upon the dunghill, and is not corrupted.

LYLY. Euphues, The Anatomy of Wit.
(Arber's reprint). p. 43.

The sun reflecting upon the mud of strands and shores is unpolluted in his beam.

JEREMY TAYLOR. Holy Living. Ch. i.
p. 3.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.

MILTON. The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce.

Like the stain'd web that whitens in the
sun,

Grow pure by being purely shone upon.
MOORE. Lalla Rookh—The Veiled Prophet of Khorassan.

A spirit pure as hers
Is always pure, even while it errs:
As sunshine, broken in the rill,
Though turned astray, is sunshine still.

Ibid. Lalla Rookh. Fire-worshippers.

Evil into the mind of God or man May come and go, so unapproved, and leave

No spot or blame behind.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 117.

There's a woman like a dewdrop,
she's so purer than the purest.

ROBERT BROWNING. A Blot in the 'Scutcheon. Act i. Sc. 3.

To doubt her fairness were to want an eye,
To doubt her pureness were to want a heart.

TENNYSON. Launcelot and Elaine.

My good blade carves the casques of men,

My tough lance thrusteth sure,
My strength is as the strength of ten,
Because my heart is pure.

Ibid. Sir Galahad.

PURSUIT AND POSSESSION.

Through thicke and thin, both over banck and bush,

In hope her to attain by hooke or crooke.

SPENSER. The Faerie Queene. Bk. iii.
Canto i. St. 17.

By hoke ne by croke.

JOHN SKELTON. Colyn Cloute. l. 1240.

Gratiano. All things that are,
Are with more spirit chasèd than enjoyed.

How like a younker or a prodigal
The scarfed bark puts from her native bay,

Hugged and embracèd by the strumpet wind!

How like the prodigal doth she return,
With over-weathered ribs and ragged sails,

Lean, rent, and beggared by the strumpet wind!

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act ii. Sc. 6. l. 13.

Things won are done, joy's soul lies in the doing.

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 313.

An object rarely retains in possession the charm it had in pursuit.

PLINY THE YOUNGER. Letters. Bk ii. 15, 1.

Bliss in possession will not last;
Remembered joys are never past;
At once the fountain, stream, and sea,
They were, they are, they yet shall be.

JAMES MONTGOMERY. The Little Cloud.

When I behold what pleasure is Pursuit,
What life, what glorious eagerness it is,
Then mark how full Possession falls from this,

How fairer seems the blossom than the fruit,—

I am perplexed, and often stricken mute,

Wondering which attained the higher bliss,
The winged insect, or the chrysalis
It thrust aside with unreluctant foot.

T. B. ALDRICH. Pursuit and Possession.

Friar. For it so falls out That what we have we prize not to the worth

Whiles we enjoy it, but being lacked and lost,

Why, then we rack the value; then we find
The virtue that possession would not show us

Whiles it was ours.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing.
Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 219.

How blessings brighten as they take their flight!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 602.

Ask of the Learn'd the way? The Learn'd are blind;

This bids to serve, and that to shun mankind;

Some place the bliss in action, some in ease,

Those call it Pleasure, and Contentment these.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. iv. l. 19.

Coy Hebe flies from those that woo,

And shuns the hands would seize upon her;

Follow thy life, and she will sue

To pour for thee the cup of honor.

O. W. HOLMES. Hebe.

Too avid of earth's bliss, he was of those Whom delight flies because they give her chase.

WILLIAM WATSON. Byron the Voluptuary.

As is your sort of mind

So is your sort of search, you'll find
What you desire.

ROBERT BROWNING. Easter Day.

PYRAMIDS.

Virtue alone outbuilds the Pyramids;
Her monuments shall last, when Egypt's fall.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vi. l. 314.

The tapering pyramid, the Egyptian's pride,

And wonder of the world, whose spiky top

Hath wounded the thick cloud.

ROBERT BLAIR. The Grave. l. 190.

Beside the Eternal Nile
 The pyramids have risen.
 Nile shall pursue his changeless way;
 Those pyramids shall fall;
 Yea! not a stone shall stand to tell
 The spot whereon they stood;
 Their very site shall be forgotten.
 As is their builder's name.

SHELLEY. Queen Mab. St. ii.

Egypt! from whom all dateless tombs arose

Forgotten Pharaohs from their long repose,

And shook within their pyramids to hear

A new Cambyzes thundering in their
 ear;

While the dark shades of forty ages stood

Like startled giants by Nile's famous flood.

BYRON. The Age of Bronze. St. v.

She has seen the mystery hid
 Under Egypt's pyramid:
 By those eyelids pale and close
 Now she knows what Rhamses knows.

EMERSON. Little Mattie. St. 2.

QUARREL.

Amantium iræ amoris integratio est.
 The quarrels of lovers are the renewal of love.

TERENCE. Andria. Act iii. Sc. 5.

The anger of lovers renews the strength
 of love.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 24.

The falling out of faithful friends, is the renewing of love.

RICHARD EDWARDS. *Paradise of Dainty
 Devices*. No. 42. St. 1.

Let the falling out of friends be a renewing of affection.

LYLY. Euphues.

The falling out of lovers is the renewing
 of love.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii.
 Sec. 2.

So also those false alarms of strife
 Between the husband and the wife,
 And little quarrels often prove
 To be but new recruits of love;
 When those who're always kind of coy,
 In time must either tire or cloy.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto iii, l.
 290.

We have a crow to pull.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. v.

Mercutio. Thou! why, thou wilt quarrel with a man that hath a hair more, or a hair less, in his beard than thou hast. Thou wilt quarrel with a man for cracking nuts, having no other reason but because thou hast hazel eyes.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
 iii. Sc. 1. l. 17.

Benedick. In a false quarrel there is no true valour.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v.
 Sc. 1. l. 120.

Polonius. Beware
 Of entrance to a quarrel; but being in, Bear't that the opposed may beware of
 thee.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 67.

Hamlet. Rightly to be great,
 Is—not to stir without great argument,
 But greatly to find quarrel in a straw,
 When honour's at the stake.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 4. l. 32.

York. Sons and brothers at a strife!
 What is your quarrel? how began it first?

Edward. No quarrel, but a slight contention.

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 4.

Have always been at daggers-drawing,
 And one another clapper-clawing.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto ii. l. 79

A good cause needs not to be patroned by passion, but can sustain itself upon a temperate dispute.

SIR T. BROWNE. Religio Medici. Sec. 5.

Dissensions, like small streams, are first begun,

Scarce seen they rise, but gather as they
 run:

So lines that from their parallel decline,

More they proceed the more they still disjoin.

SIR SAM'L GARTH. The Dispensary.
 Canto iii. l. 184.

Those who in quarrels interpose,
 Must often wipe a bloody nose.

GAY. Fables: The Mastiffs. l. 1.

Pray, Goody, please to moderate the rancour of your tongue!

Why flash those sparks of fury from your eyes?

Remember, when the judgment's weak
the prejudice is strong.

KANE O'HARA. Midas. Act i. Sc. 4.

Let dogs delight to bark and bite,

For God hath made them so;

Let bears and lions growl and fight,

For 't is their nature, too.<sup>1</sup>

ISAAC WATTS. Divine Songs. Song 16.

Candida pax homines, trux decet ira feras.
Fair peace becomes men; ferocious anger belongs to beasts.

OVID. Ars Amatoria. iii. 502.

The Indian tiger bears no hate,

But keeps truce with its savage mate:

E'en fiercely-ranging bears agree

To live in general amity;

But man on anvils all abhorred,

Is not afraid to forge the sword.

JUVENAL. Satires. xv. 163.

But, children, you should never let

Such angry passions rise;

Your little hands were never made

To tear each other's eyes.

WATTS. Divine Songs. Song 16.

Birds in their little nest agree;

And 't is a shameful sight

When children of one family

Fall out, and chide, and fight.

Ibid. Divine Songs. Song 17.

So when two dogs are fighting in the streets,

When a third dog one of the two dogs
meets:

With angry teeth he bites him to the bone,

And this dog smarts for what that dog
has done.

HENRY FIELDING. Tom Thumb the Great.

Act i. Sc. 5. l. 55.

The quarrel is a very pretty quarrel as it stands; we should only spoil it by trying to explain it.

SHERIDAN. The Rivals. Act iv. Sc. 3.

Thus when a barber and a collier fight,
The barber beats the luckless collier—
white;

The dusty collier heaves his ponderous
sack,

And, big with vengeance, beats the barber—black.

<sup>1</sup> Persistently misquoted "to."

In comes the brick-dust man, with grime
o'erspread,

And beats the collier and the barber—
red;

Black, red, and white, in various clouds
are toss'd,

And in the dust they raise the combatants are lost.

CHRISTOPHER SMART. A Trip to Cambridge.

An association of men who will not quarrel with one another is a thing which never yet existed, from the greatest confederacy of nations down to a town-meeting or a vestry.

THOMAS JEFFERSON. Letter to John Taylor. 1798.

And musing on the little lives of men,
And how they mar this little by their feuds.

TENNYSON. Sea Dreams.

As thro' the land at eve we went,

And pluck'd the ripen'd ears,

We fell out, my wife and I,

O we fell out, I know not why,

And kiss'd again with tears.

Ibid. The Princess. Canto ii. Song.

Unreconciled by life's fleet years, that fled

With changeful clang of pinions wide and wild,

Though two great spirits had lived, and hence had sped

Unreconciled.

SWINBURNE. A Century of Roundels.
Discord.

The first thing I remember whereon we disagreed

Was something concerning heaven—
a difference in our creed;

We arg'd the thing at breakfast, we arg'd the thing at tea,

And the more we arg'd the question, the more we didn't agree.

WILL CARLETON. *Farm Ballads: Betzy
and I are Out*. St. 5.

QUIET.

(See SILENCE; CALM.)

The holy time is quiet as a nun
Breathless with adoration.

WORDSWORTH. It is a Beauteous Evening.

Anything for a Quiet Life.

MIDDLETON. Title of a play.

Safe in the hallowed quiets of the past.

LOWELL. The Cathedral.

But quiet to quick bosoms is a hell.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 42.

QUOTATION.

Some for renown, on scraps of learning dote,

And think they grow immortal as they quote.

To patch-work learn'd quotations are allied:

But strive to make our poverty our pride.

YOUNG. Love of Fume. Satire i. l. 81.

'Twas counted learning once and wit
To void but what some author writ;
And when men understood by rote
By as implicit sense to quote.

BUTLER. Satire upon Plagiaries. l. 99.

Every Quotation contributes something to the stability or enlargement of the language.

JOHNSON. Preface to Dictionary.

Classical quotation is the parole of literary men all over the world.

Ibid. Boswell's Life. 1781.

There is not less wit nor less invention in applying rightly a thought one finds in a book, than in being the first author of that thought. Cardinal du Perron has been heard to say that the happy application of a verse of Virgil has deserved a talent.

BAYLE. Vol. ii. p. 779.

Though old the thought and oft exprest,
'Tis his at last who says it best.

LOWELL. For an Autograph. St. 1.

Next to the originator of a good sentence is the first quotor of it.

EMERSON. Letters and Social Aims. Quotation and Originality.

With just enough of learning to misquote.

BYRON. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers. l. 66.

Proud of his learning, just enough to quote.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xlii. St. 9.

A great man quotes bravely, and will not draw on his invention when his memory serves him with a word as good.

EMERSON. Letters and Social Aims. Quotation and Originality.

RAIN.

Clown (sings). The rain it raineth every day.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 378.

Fall on me like a silent dew,

Or like those maiden showers

Which, by the peep of day, doe strew

A baptime o're the flowers.

HERRICK. To Music, to Becalme His Fever.

Like morning dew that in a pleasant shower

Drops pearls into the bosom of a flower.

THOMAS RANDOLPH. The Jealous Lovers.

Rain cats and dogs.

SWIFT. Polite Conversation. Dialogue ii.

The raindrops' showery dance and rhythmic beat,

With tinkling of innumerable feet.

ABRAHAM COLES. The Microcosm Hearing.

The hooded clouds, like friars,

Tell their beads in drops of rain.

LONGFELLOW. Midnight Mass for the Dying Year. St. 4.

We knew it would rain, for the poplars showed

The white of their leaves, the amber grain

Shrunk in the wind—and the lightning now

Is inland in tremulous skeins of rain!

T. B. ALDRICH. XXXVI Lyrics and XVII Sonnets. Lyric XVII: Before the Rain. St. 3.

RAINBOW.

I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

Old Testament. Genesis ix. 13.

Triumphal arch, that fill'st the sky

When storms prepare to part,

I ask not proud Philosophy

To teach me what thou art.

CAMPBELL. To the Rainbow. St. 1.

There was an awful rainbow once in heaven,
We know her woof, her texture; she is given
In the dull catalogue of common things,
Philosophy will clip an angel's wings.

KEATS. Lamia. Pt. ii. l. 231.

Still seem, as to my childhood's sight,
A midway station given
For happy spirits to alight
Betwixt the earth and heaven.

CAMPBELL. To the Rainbow. St. 2.

My heart leaps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So was it when my life began;
So is it now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die.

The child is father of the man;
And I could wish my days to be Bound each to each by natural piety.

WORDSWORTH. My Heart Leaps Up.

Be thou the rainbow to the storms of
life,
The evening beam that smiles the clouds
away,

And tints to-morrow with prophetic ray!
BYRON. Bride of Abydos. Canto i. St. 20.

RANK.

Saturninus said, "Comrades, you have lost a good captain to make him an ill
general."

MONTAIGNE. Essays. Bk. iii. Ch. ix.

It is a maxim, that those to whom everybody allows the second place have
an undoubted title to the first.

SWIFT. Tale of a Tub. Dedication.

What tho' on hamely fare we dine,
Wear hoddens grey, and a' that?
Gie fools their silk, and knaves their
wine,

A man's a man for a' that.

BURNS. For a' That and a' That. St. 2.

The rank is but the guinea's stamp,
The man's the gowd for a' that.
Ibid. For a' That and a' That. St. 1.

I weigh the man, not his title; 'tis not the king's stamp can make the metal better or heavier. Your lord is a leaden shilling, which you bend every way, and debases the stamp he bears.

WYCHERLEY. Plain-Dealer.

Virtue is honour, and the noblest titles
Are but the public stamps set on the ore
To ascertain its value to mankind.

WEST. Institution of the Garter. l. 335.

A prince can make a belted knight,
A marquis, duke and a' that;
But an honest man's aboon his might,
Guid faith, he maunna fa' that.

BURNS. For a' That and a' That. St. 4.

Princes and lords are but the breath of kings,
"An honest man's the nobles' work of God."
Ibid. The Cotter's Saturday Night. St. 19.

Rank is a farce: if people Fools will be,
A Scavenger and King's the same to me.
JOHN WOLCOT (Peter Pindar). Peter's Prophecy. Title page.

RAVEN.

Perched upon a bust of Pallas, just above
my chamber door,—
Perched, and sat, and nothing more.
POE. The Raven.

Take thy beak from out my heart, and take thy form from off my door!
Quoth the Raven "Nevermore."
Ibid. The Raven.

And the Raven, never flitting, still is sitting, still is sitting On that pallid bust of Pallas just above
my chamber door,
And his eyes have all the seeming of a demon's that is dreaming
And the lamplight o'er him streaming throws his shadow on the floor And my soul from out that shadow that lies floating on the floor
Shall be lifted—Nevermore.
Ibid. The Raven. (Concluding stanza.)

READING.

Write the vision, and make it plain,
upon tables, that he may run that read-eth it.

Old Testament. Habakkuk ii. 2.

But truths on which depends our main concern,
That 'tis our shame and misery not to learn,
Shine by the side of every path we tread
With such a lustre, he that runs may read.
COWPER. Tirocinium. l. 77.

And reads, though running, all these needful motions.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Workes.
First week. First day. (SYLVESTER,
trans.)

He that runs may read.

TENNYSON. The Flower. St. 5.

Reading maketh a full man; conference a ready man; and writing an exact man.

LORD BACON. Essay L. On Studies.

Who reads Incessantly, and to his reading brings not

A spirit and judgment equal or superior,
(And what he brings what need he elsewhere seek?)

Uncertain and unsettled still remains,
Deep versed in books and shallow in himself.

MILTON. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. l. 322.

Reading is seeing by proxy.

HERBERT SPENCER. The Study of Sociology. Ch. xv.

All rests with those who read. A work or thought

Is what each makes it to himself, and may

Be full of great dark meanings, like the
sea,

With shoals of life rushing.

BAILEY. Festus. Proem. l. 326.

When the last reader reads no more.
HOLMES. The Last Reader. (Concluding line.)

REASON.

Lysander. The will of man is by his reason sway'd.

SHAKESPEARE. A Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 115.

Antony. O judgment, thou art fled to brutish beasts,
And men have lost their reason.

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 104.

Lucetta. I have no other but a woman's reason;

I think him so, because I think him so.
Ibid. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 23.

Besides, I have a woman's reason, I will not dance, because I will not dance.

MIDDLETON. Blurt, Master Constable. Act i. Sc. 1.

Indu'd

With sanctity of reason.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 507.

Dim as the borrow'd beams of moon and
stars

To lonely, weary, wandering travellers,
Is Reason to the soul: and as on high Those rolling fires discover but the sky,

Not light us here; so Reason's glimmering
ray

Was lent, not to assure our doubtful
way,

But guide us upward to a better day.

And as those nightly tapers disappear,
When day's bright lord ascends our hemisphere;

So pale grows Reason at Religion's
sight;

So dies, and so dissolves in supernatural
light.

DRYDEN. Religio Laici. l. 1.

Reason saw not, till Faith sprung the
light.

Ibid. Religio Laici. l. 69.

Who reasons wisely is not therefore wise;

His pride in reasoning, not in acting,
lies.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. i. l. 117.

Swift instinct leaps; slow Reason feebly climbs.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vii. l. 82.

Every man's reason is every man's oracle.

LORD BOLINGBROKE. Of the True Use of Retirement and Study. Letter ii.

If you will not hear Reason, she will surely rap your knuckles.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Poor Richard's Almanac.

Passion and prejudice govern the world; only under the name of reason.

JOHN WESLEY. Letter to Joseph Benson. 5th October, 1770.

It is always right that a man should be able to render a reason for the faith that is within him.

SYDNEY SMITH. Lady Holland's Memoir. Vol. i. p. 53.

Irrationally held truths may be more harmful than reasoned errors.

HUXLEY. Science and Culture. The Coming of Age of the Origin of Species.

RECIPROCITY.

If she undervalue me
What care I how fair she be?

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

If she seem not chaste to me,
What care I how chaste she be?

Ibid.

Shall I, wasting in despair,
Die because a woman's fair?
Or make pale my cheeks with care,
'Cause another's rosy are?
Be she fairer than the day,
Or the flowery meads in May,
If she be not so to me,
What care I how fair she be?

GEORGE WITHER. The Shepherd's Resolution.

Saturninus. Be as just and gracious unto me,

As I am confident and kind to thee.

SHAKESPEARE. Titus Andronicus. Act i.
Sc. 1. l. 60.

RECREATION.

The bow that's always bent will quickly break;

But if unstrung 'twill serve you at your need.

So let the mind some relaxation take
To come back to its task with fresher heed.

PHÆDRUS. Fables. Bk. iii. Fable 14.
(W. M. F. KING, trans.)

Albess. Sweet recreation barred, what doth ensue

But moody and dull melancholy,
Kinsman to grim and comfortless
despair;

And at her heels a huge infectious troop

Of pale distemperatures, and foes to
life?

SHAKESPEARE. Comedy of Errors. Act
v. Sc. 1. l. 92.

Better to hunt in fields for health un-bought,

Than fee the doctor for a nauseous
draught.

The wise for cure on exercise depend;
God never made His work for man to mend.

DRYDEN. Epistle to John Dryden of Chesterton. l. 92.

To cure the mind's wrong bias, spleen,
Some recommend the bowling-green;

Some hilly walks; all exercise;
Fling but a stone, the giant dies.

MATTHEW GREEN. The Spleen. l. 90.

[The allusion, of course, is to David and Goliath. There is a faint reminiscence of Shakespeare's:

Man but a rush against Othello's breast,
And he retires.]

Othello. Act v. Sc. ii. l. 273.

REFORM.

A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you.

Old Testament. Ezekiel xxxvi. 26.

And ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning.

Ibid. Amos iv. 11.

Prince Henry. So, when this loose behaviour I throw off,

And pay the debt I never promised,
By how much better than my word I am,

By so much shall I falsify men's hopes;
And like bright metal on a sullen
ground,

My reformation, glittering o'er my fault,
Shall shew more goodly, and attract more eyes,

Than that which hath no foil to set it off.

SHAKESPEARE. I. Henry IV. Act i. Sc.
2. l. 201.

Prince Henry. Yet herein will I imitate the Sun;

Who doth permit the base contagious
clouds

To smother up his beauty from the
world,

That, when he please again to be himself,

Being wanted, he may be more wonder'd
at,

By breaking through the foul and ugly mists.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 221.

Archbishop of Canterbury. Consideration like an angel came

And whipp'd the offending Adam out of him.

Ibid. Henry V. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 28.

Falstaff. I'll purge, and leave sack and live cleanly.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 4. l. 168.

'Tis the talent of our English nation,
Still to be plotting some new reformation.

DRYDEN. Prologue to Sophonisba. l. 9.

When men grow virtuous in their old age, they only make a sacrifice to God of the devil's leavings.

POPE. Thoughts on Various Subjects.

When our vices leave us we think it is we who have forsaken our vices.

ROCHEFOUCAULD.

Dear Tillotson !<sup>1</sup> be sure the best of men ;
Nor thought he more, than thought great Origen,

Though once upon a time he misbehaved ;

Poor Satan ! doubtless he'll at length be saved.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire vi. l. 447.

But fare ye well, auld Nickie-ben !
O wad ye take a thought an' men''

Ye aiblins might—I dinna ken—

Still hae a stake—

I'm wae to think upo' yon den,

Ev'n for your sake.

ROBERT BURNS. Address to the Deil.
(Concluding lines.)

And ah for a man to arise in me,
That the man I am may cease to be !

ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. Maud. Pt. i.
x. St. 6.

RELATIONS.

King. But now, my cousin Hamlet, and my son,—

Hamlet [aside]. A little more than kin, and less than kind.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l.
65.

Hamlet. O my prophetic soul,
My uncle !

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. l. 40.

He that had neither beene kithe nor kine

Might have seene a full fayre sight.

PERCY. Reliques. Robin Hood and Guy
of Gisborne. l. 145.

Bluid is thicker than water.

SCOTT. The Antiquary. Ch. xxxviii.

[Scott puts this phrase in the mouth of Edie Ochiltree. But Edie was simply using a common proverb.]

<sup>1</sup> John Tillotson, Archbishop of Canterbury, endorsed Origen's doctrine of the Apocatastasis or Final Restitution, which expressly included the devil and his angels.

And so do his sisters and his cousins
and his aunts

His sisters and his cousins

Whom he reckons up by dozens,

And his aunts.

W. S. GILBERT. H. M. S. Pinafore.

[This chorus runs through every act of the opera.]

RELIGION.

Pure religion, and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their afflic-tion, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

New Testament. James i. 27.

Sacred religion ! mother of form and fear.

DANIEL. Musophilus. St. 57.

As if Religion were intended

For nothing else but to be mended.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l.
205.

Religion is like the fashion. One man wears his doublet slashed, another laced, another plain ; but every man has a doublet. So every man has his religion. We differ about trimming.

JOHN SELDEN. Table Talk. Religion.

Sir, I think all Christians, whether Papists or Protestants, agree in the essential articles, and that their differences are trivial, and rather political than religious.

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life. Chap. v.
1763.

The conversation . . . turned soon into some dispute upon subjects of religion ;
after a good deal of that sort of talk, the earl<sup>1</sup> said at last, "People differ in their discourse and profession about these matters, but men of sense are really but of one religion." Upon which says the lady of a sudden, "Pray, my lord, what religion is that which men of sense agree in ?
"Madam," says the earl, immediately,
"men of sense never tell it."

BURNET. History of My Own Times. Vol.
i. p. 175.

"As for that," said Waldershare, "sensible men are all of the same religion."
"And pray what is that ?" inquired the prince. "Sensible men never tell."

DISRAELI. Endymion. Ch. lxxxi.

<sup>1</sup> Anthony Ashley Cooper, First Earl of Shaftesbury.

I do not find that the age or country makes the least difference; no, nor the language the actors spoke, nor the religion which they professed, whether Arab in the desert, or Frenchman in the Academy. I see that sensible men and conscientious men all over the world were of one religion,—the religion of well-doing and daring.

EMERSON. The Preacher. Lectures and Biographical Sketches.

We have just enough religion to make us hate, but not enough to make us love another.

SWIFT. Thoughts on Various Subjects.

What religion is he of?

Why, he is an Anythingarian.

Ibid. Polite Conversation. Dialogue I.

Men will wrangle for religion; write for it; fight for it; die for it; anything but—live for it.

COLTON. Lacon. xxv.

There's nought, no doubt, so much the spirit calms

As rum and true religion.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 34.

There's some are fou o' love divine,
There's some are fou o' brandy.

BURNS. The Holy Fair. St. 27.

The friend of him who has no friend—
Religion!

JAMES MONTGOMERY. The Pillow. 1. 152.

Leave thou thy sister when she prays,
Her early Heaven, her happy views;
Nor thou with shadow'd hint confuse
A life that leads melodious days.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam. xxxiii. St. 2.

What we all love is good touched up with evil—

Religion's self must have a spice of devil.

A. H. CLOUGH. Dipsychus. Pt. i. Sc. 3.

Wandering between two worlds, one
dead

The other powerless to be born,
With nowhere yet to rest my head,
Like them, on earth I rest forlorn.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. The Grande Chartreuse.

Children of men! the unseen Power,
whose eye,
Forever doth accompany mankind,
Hath look'd on no religion scornfully
That men did ever find.

Ibid. Progress. St. 10.

REMORSE; REPENTANCE.

Joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.

New Testament. Luke xv. 7.

Sweet tastes have sour closes;
And he repents on thorns that sleeps in beds of roses.

QUARLES. Emblems. Bk. i. No. 7.

Our repentance is not so much sorrow for the ill we have done, as fear of the ill that may happen to us in consequence.

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Reflections; or, Sentences and Moral Maxims. No. 180.

Amid the roses, fierce Repentance rears
Her snaky crest.

THOMSON. The Seasons. Spring. 1. 997.

And while the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return.

ISAAC WATTS. Hymns and Spiritual Songs. Bk. i. Hymn 88.

No penance can absolve our guilty
fame;

Nor tears, that wash out sin, can wash out shame.

PRIOR. Henry and Emma. 1. 312.

Remorse begets reform.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. v. The Winter Morning Walk. 1. 618.

'Tis when the wound is stiffening with the cold,

The warrior first feels pain—'tis when the heat

And fiery fever of the soul is past,
The sinner feels remorse.

SIR W. SCOTT. The Monastery. Ch. xxiii.

What 'twas weak to do,
'Tis weaker to lament, once being done.
SHELLEY. The Cenci. Act v. Sc. 3.

The spirit burning but unbent,
May writhe—rebel—the weak alone repent.

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto ii. St. 10.

For of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these: "It might have been!"

WHITTIER. Maud Muller. St. 53.

But how carve way i' the life that lies before,

If bent on groaning ever for the past?

ROBERT BROWNING. Balaustion's Adventure.

REPUTATION.

Iago. Good name in man and woman, dear my lord,

Is the immediate jewel of their souls:

Who steals my purse steals trash; 'tis something, nothing;

'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands:

But he that filches from me my good name, Robs me of that which not enriches him, And makes me poor indeed.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 156.

A good reputation is more valuable than money.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 108.

Ego si bonam famam mihi servasso, sat ero dives.

If I can only keep my good name, I shall be rich enough.

PLAUTUS. Mostellaria. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 71.

Iago. What, are you hurt, lieutenant?

Cassio. Ay, past all surgery.

Iago. Marry, heaven forbid!

Cassio. Reputation, reputation, reputation! O, I have lost my reputation! I have lost the immortal part, Sir, of myself, and what remains is bestial. My reputation, Iago, my reputation!

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 259.

Iago. Reputation is an idle and most false imposition; oft got without merit and lost without deserving.

Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 270.

Mowbray. The purest treasure mortal times afford,

Is spotless reputation; that away, Men are but gilded loam or painted clay. A jewel in a ten-times barr'd-up chest Is a bold spirit in a loyal breast.

Mine honour is my life; both grow in one;

Take honour from me and my life is done.

Ibid. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 178

Falstaff. I would to God, thou and I knew where a commodity of good names were to be bought.

Ibid. I. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 93.

How many worthy men have we seen survive their own reputation!

MONTAIGNE. Essays: Of Glory. Bk. ii. Ch. xvi.

Das Aergste weiss die Welt von mir, und ich

Kann sagen, ich bin besser als mein Ruf.

The worst of me is known, and I can say that I am better than the fame I bear.

SCHILLER. Marie Stuart. iii. 4. 208.

Denn ein wanderndes Mädchen ist immer von schwankendem Rufe.

For a strolling damsel a doubtful reputation bears.

GOETHE. Hermann and Dorothea. vii. 93.

It is a maxim with me that no man was ever written out of reputation but by himself.

RICHARD BENTLEY, in Monk's Life of Bentley. p. 90.

The blaze of a reputation cannot be blown out, but it often dies in the socket.

DR. S. JOHNSON. Letter to Mrs. Thrale. May 1, 1780.

Reputation is what men and women think of us. Character is what God and angels know of us.

THOS. PAINE.

How many people live on the reputation of the reputation they might have made!

HOLMES. The Autocrat of the Breakfast-table. Ch. iii.

REST.

There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest.

Old Testament. Job iii. 17.

And the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest.

TENNYSON. The May Queen. (Concluding line.)

Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

New Testament. Matthew xi. 28.

Sleep after toyle, port after stormie seas, Ease after warre, death after life, does greatly please.

SPENSER. The Faerie Queene. Bk. i. Canto ix. St. 40.

Doctor. Our foster-nursè of Nature is repose.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 4. l. 12.

The best of men have ever loved repose.

THOMSON. The Castle of Indolence. Canto 1. St. 17.

O blest retirement! friend to life's decline,

Retreat from care, that never must be mine,

How blest is he who crowns in shades like these,

A youth of labor with an age of ease;
Who quits a world where strong temptations try,

And, since 'tis hard to combat, learns to fly.

GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 97.

Rest is not quitting the mortal career,
Rest is the fitting of self to its sphere.

J. S. DWIGHT. Rest.

Thou that from the heavens art,

Every pain and sorrow stillest,

And the doubly wretched heart

Doubly with refreshment fillst,

I am weary with contending!

Why this rapture and unrest?

Peace descending

Come, ah, come into my breast!

GOETHE. Wanderer's Night-songs. (LONGFELLOW, trans.)

RESULTS.

(See CONSEQUENCES.)

Ye shall know them by their fruits.
Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?

New Testament. Matthew vii. 16.

Such souls

Whose sudden visitations daze the world,

Vanish like lightning; but they leave behind

A voice that in the distance far away

Wakens the slumbering ages.

SIR H. TAYLOR. Philip van Artevelde. Pt. i. Act i. Sc. 7. l. 105.

Lives of great men all remind us

We can make our lives sublime,

And, departing, leave behind us

Footprints on the sands of time.

LONGFELLOW. A Psalm of Life.

No action, whether foul or fair,
Is ever done, but it leaves somewhere
A record, written by fingers ghostly
As a blessing or a curse, and mostly
In the greater weakness or greater strength

Of the acts which follow it.

LONGFELLOW. The Golden Legend: A Village Church. Pt. ii.

RETRIBUTION.

With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

New Testament. Matthew vii. 2.

Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein.

Old Testament. Proverbs xxvi. 27.

He for himself weaves woe who weaves for others woe,

And evil counsel on the counsellor recoils.

HESIOD. Works and Days. l. 265.

Let the smith wear the fetters which he himself has made.

AUSONIUS. Idyllia. vi. Paulo. 6.

There is no law more just than that which has ordained

That who plots others' death in his own toils shall die.

OVID. De Arte Amandi. i. 655.

The greatest chastisement that a man may receive who hath outraged another, is to have done the outrage; and there is no man who is so rudely punished as he that is subject to the whip of his own repentance.

SENECA. Works. Of Anger. Bk. iii. Ch. xxvi. (THOMAS LODGE, editor.)

Hamlet. For 'tis the sport to have the engineer

Hoist with his own petard: and it shall go hard,

But I will delve one yard below their mines,

And blow them to the moon.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 208.

[A petard was an iron canister filled with gunpowder, used for blowing up gates and barricades in times of war. There was always danger that the engineer who fired the petard should be blown up (hoisted) with his own explosive. Hence what Hamlet means is that it is grimly amusing to see a man caught in his own trap, or defeated by his own device.]

Macbeth. We but teach Bloody instructions, which being taught return
To plague th' inventor: this even-handed justice
Commends th' ingredients of our poisoned chalice
To our own lips.
SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 7.
l. 8.

Edgar. The gods are just, and of our pleasant vices
Make instruments to plague us.
Ibid. King Lear. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 170.

That is the bitterest of all,—to wear the yoke of our own wrong-doing.
GEORGE ELIOT. Daniel Deronda. Bk. v.
Ch. xxxvi.

Many go out for wool, and come home
shorn themselves.
CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch.
xxxvii.

Clown. And thus the whirligig of time brings in his revenges.
Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 362.

Norfolk. Heat not a furnace for your foe so hot
That it do singe yourself: we may out-
run,
By violent swiftuess, that which we run
at,
And lose by over-running. Know you
not,
The fire that mounts the liquor 'till it run o'er,

In seeming to augment it, wastes it?
Ibid. Henry VIII. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 140.

Antonio. Some of us will smart for it.
Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v.
Sc. 1. l. 109.

Who by aspersions throw a stone
At the head of others, hit their own.
HERBERT. The Temple, The Church,
Charms and Knots. St. 5.

Remember Milo's end
Wedged in that timber which he strove to rend.
ROSCOMMON. Essays on Translated Verse.
l. 87.

Those who inflict must suffer, for they see
The work of their own hearts, and that must be
Our chastisement or recompense.
SHELLEY. Julian and Maddalo. l. 482.

The thorns which I have reaped are of the tree
I planted,—they have torn me,—and I bleed:

I should have known what fruit would spring from such a seed.
BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 10.

Though the mills of God grind slowly,
yet they grind exceedingly small;
Though with patience He stands waiting, with exactness grinds He all.
FR. VON LOGAU. Retribution. Sinngedichte.
(LONGFELLOW, trans.)

[Logau's first line was taken from the Greek:

Ὁψὲ θεοῦ μύλοι, ἀλέουσι τὸ λεπτὸν ἀλευρον.

The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind small.

ORACULA SIBYLLINA. viii. 14.

Ut sit magna, tamen certe lenta ira deorum
est.

But grant the wrath of Heaven be great,
'tis slow.

JUVENAL. Satires. xiii. 100. (GIFFORD,
trans.)]

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:

He is tramping out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored:

He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword.

JULIA WARD HOWE. Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Crime and punishment grow out of one stem. Punishment is a fruit that unsuspected ripens within the flower of the pleasure which concealed it.

EMERSON. Essays: Compensation.

REVENGE.

Vengeance is mine; I will repay,
saith the Lord.

Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head.

New Testament. Romans xii. 19, 20.

Exoriare aliquis nostris ex ossibus
ultor.

Rise from my ashes, some avenger,
rise!

VIRGIL. Æneid. Bk. iv. l. 625.

[Dying imprecation of Dido upon the false Æneas. It is said to have been written with the point of his sword on the walls of his dungeon by Philip Strozzi before killing himself, when imprisoned by Cosmo I., Grand Duke of Tuscany.]

A man that studieth revenge, keeps his own wounds green.

BACON. Essay: Revenge. iv.

Revenge is a kind of wild justice, which the more man's nature runs to, the more ought law to weed it out.

Ibid. Essay: Revenge. iv.

Othello. O, that the slave had forty thousand lives!

One is too poor, too weak for my revenge.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 433.

Othello. Had all his hairs been lives, my great revenge

Had stomach for them all.

Ibid. Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 74.

Othello. Not Cassio kill'd! then murder's out of tune,

And sweet revenge grows harsh.

Ibid. Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 116.

Shylock. If a Jew wrong a Christian, what is his humility? Revenge. If a Christian wrong a Jew, what should his sufferance be by Christian example? Why, revenge. The villainy you teach me I will execute; and it shall go hard, but I will better the instruction.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 72.

To work a fell revenge a man's a fool, If not instructed in a woman's school.

FLETCHER. The Spanish Curate. Act v. Sc. 1.

Revenge, at first though sweet, Bitter ere long back on itself recoils.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. l. 171.

Sweet is revenge—especially to women.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 124.

Revenge proves its own executioner.

FORD. The Broken Heart. Act v. Sc. 2.

'Tis sweet to love; but when with scorn we meet,

Revenge supplies the loss with joys as great.

LORD LANSDOWNE. British Enchanter. Act v. Sc. 1.

Revenge is profitable, gratitude is expensive.

GIBBON. Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. Ch. xi.

It costs more to revenge injuries than to bear them.

BISHOP T. WILSON. Maxims. 303.

An act by which we make one friend and one enemy is a losing game; because revenge is a much stronger principle than gratitude.

COLTON. Lacon.

Souls made of fire, and children of the sun,

With whom revenge is virtue.

YOUNG. The Revenge. Act v. Sc. 2.

There are things

Which make revenge a virtue by reflection, And not an impulse of mere anger; though The laws sleep, justice wakes, and injur'd souls

Oft do a public right with private wrong.

BYRON. Marino Faliero. Act iv. Sc. 2.

And if we do but watch the hour,

There never yet was human power

Which could evade, if unforgiven,

The patient search and vigil long

Of him who treasures up a wrong.

Ibid. Mazeppa. St. 10. (Concluding lines.)

Wrongs unredressed, or insults unavenged.

WORDSWORTH. The Excursion. Bk. iii. l. 374.

REVOLUTION.

Revolutions are not made: they come.

A revolution is as natural a growth as an oak. It comes out of the past. Its foundations are laid far back.

WENDELL PHILLIPS. Speech at the Melodeon. January 28, 1852.

Revolutions never go backward.

Ibid. Speech. Boston, Mass., February 17, 1861.

If by the mere force of numbers a majority should deprive a minority of any clearly written constitutional right, it might, in a moral point of view, justify revolution—certainly would if such a right were a vital one.

LINCOLN. First Inaugural Address. March 4, 1861.

REWARD.

Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days.

Old Testament. Ecclesiastes xi. 1.

Portia. He is well paid that is well satisfied :

And I, delivering you, am satisfied,
And therein do account myself well paid.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 415.

For blessings ever wait on virtuous deeds,
And though a late, a sure reward succeeds.

CONGREVE. The Mourning Bride. Act v. Sc. 12.

Is there no bright reversion in the sky
For those who greatly think, or bravely die ?

POPE. Elegy to the Memory of an Unfortunate Lady. l. 9.

Palmarum qui meritis ferat.

Let him bear the palm who deserves it.

JOHN JORTIN. Lusus Poetici. Ad Ventos. St. 4.

[The motto of Nelson and of the Royal Naval School of England. The whole stanza runs as follows :

Et nobis faciles parcite et hostibus ;
Concurrant paribus cum ratibus rates,
Spectent numina ponti, et
Palmarum qui meritis ferat.

On friend and foe breathe soft and calm,
As ship with ship in battle meets ;
And while the sea-gods watch the fleets
Let him who merits, bear the palm.

(W. M. F. KING, trans.)]

Who would run, that's moderately wise,

A certain danger for a doubtful prize ?
POMFRET. Love Triumphant Over Reason. l. 85.

When all is won that all desire to woo,
The paltry prize is hardly worth the cost.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. xxxv.

RIDDLES.

'Twas in heaven pronounced—it was muttered in hell,
And echo caught faintly the sound as it fell ;

On the confines of earth 'twas permitted to rest,

And the depth of the ocean its presence confessed.

Yet in shade let it rest, like a delicate flower,

Ah, breathe on it softly, it dies in an hour.

CATHERINE M. FANSHAW. A Riddle on the Letter H.

[This riddle has often been credited to Lord Byron. The first line has been improved by Horace Smith's alteration to the form now best known :

'Twas whispered in heaven, 'twas muttered in hell.]

A handless man a letter did write,

A dumb dictated it word for word ;

The person who read it had lost his sight,

And deaf was he who listened and heard.

GEORGE BORROW. The Bible in Spain.

[This is Borrow's more accurate translation of a popular Spanish riddle, of uncertain date, already known through Bishop Whewell's version :

A headless man had a letter to write,
And he who read it had lost his sight ;
The dumb repeated it word for word,
And deaf was the man who listened and heard.]

RIDICULE.

Benedick. Shall quips and sentences and these paper bullets of the brain awe
a man from the career of his humour ?
No, the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married.

SHAKESPEARE. Much Ado About Nothing. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 219.

For still the world prevail'd, and its dread laugh,

Which scarce the firm philosopher can scorn.

THOMSON. Seasons. Autumn. l. 233.

Nothing in poverty so ill is borne,
As its exposing men to grinning scorn.

OLDHAM. Third Satire of Juvenal.

Of all the griefs that harass the distress'd,
Sure the most bitter is a scornful jest.

Fate never wounds more deep the generous
heart,

Than when a blockhead's insult points the dart.

DR. JOHNSON. London. l. 166.

It is commonly said, and more particularly by Lord Shaftesbury, that ridicule is the best test of truth.

LORD CHESTERFIELD. Letter to His Son. 6th of February, 1752.

Truth, 'tis supposed, may bear all lights;
and one of those principal lights or natural mediums by which things are to be viewed in order to a thorough recognition is ridicule itself.

SHAFTESBURY. Essay on the Freedom of Wit and Humour. Sec. i.

'Twas the saying of an ancient sage (Gorgias Leontinus, apud Aristotle's Rhetoric, Lib. iii. Cap. 18) that humor was the only test of gravity, and gravity of humor. For a subject which would not bear raillery was suspicious; and a jest which would not bear a serious examination was certainly false wit.

Ibid. Essay on the Freedom of Wit and Humour. Sec. 5.

And took for truth the test of ridicule.

CRABBE. Tales of the Hall. Bk. viii.
The Sisters.

And coxcombs vanquish Berkeley by a grin.

JOHN BROWN. An Essay on Satire. Occasioned by the Death of Mr. Pope.

Who can refute a sneer?

WILLIAM PALEY. Moral Philosophy. Vol.
ii. Bk. v. Ch. ix.

And shaped his weapon with an edge severe,
Sapping a solemn creed with solemn sneer.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St.
107.

Cervantes smiled Spain's chivalry
away.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto xiii. St. 11.

RIDING.

I sprang to the stirrup, and Joris, and
he;

I galloped, Dirck galloped, we galloped
all three;

"Good speed!" cried the watch, as the gate-bolts undrew;

"Speed!" echoed the wall to us galloping through;

Behind shut the postern, the lights sank
to rest,

And into the midnight we galloped
abreast.

ROBERT BROWNING. *Dramatic Lyrics:
How They Brought the Good News
from Ghent to Aix.* St. 1.

What if we still ride on, we too,
With life for ever old yet new,

Changed not in time, but in degree
The instant made eternity

And heaven just prove that I and she Ride, ride together, forever ride?

ROBERT BROWNING. The Last Ride Together.

The rule of the road is a paradox quite
In riding or driving about.

If you go to the left you are sure to go right.

If you go to the right you go wrong.
Attributed to HENRY ERSKINE.

RIGHT.

Ποιητὰ δὲ νόμιμα εἶναι.

Whatever is, is right.

DEMOCRITUS. Diogenes Laertius. ix. 7, 12, 45.

(See under OPTIMISM.)

Better, though difficult, the right way to go,

Than wrong, tho' easy, where the end is
woe.

BUNYAN. Pilgrim's Progress. Pt. i.

Can any man have a higher notion of the rule of right and the eternal fitness of things?

FIELDING. Tom Jones. Bk. iv. Ch. iv.

We hold these truths to be self-evident,—that all men are created equal;
that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

THOMAS JEFFERSON. Declaration of Independence.

All men are born free and equal, and have certain natural, essential, and unalienable rights.

Constitution of Massachusetts.

Be sure you are right, then go ahead.

[The motto of David Crockett in the war of 1812.]

If you choose to represent the various parts in life by holes upon a table, of different shapes,—some circular, some triangular, some square, some oblong,— and the persons acting these parts by bits of wood of similar shapes, we shall generally find that the triangular person has got into the square hole, the oblong into the triangular, and a square person has squeezed himself into the round hole. The officer and the office, the doer and the thing done, seldom fit so exactly that we can say they were almost made for each other.

SYDNEY SMITH. Sketches of Moral Philosophy.

The lot assigned to every man is suited to him, and suits him to itself.

MARCUS AURELIUS. Meditations. iii. 4.

Some must be great. Great offices will have Great talents. And God gives to every man The virtue, temper, understanding, taste, That lifts him into life, and lets him fall Just in the niche he was ordain'd to fill.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. iv. The Winter Evening. l. 788.

Of the various executive abilities, no one excited more anxious concern than that of placing the interests of our fellow-citizens in the hands of honest men, with understanding sufficient for their stations.

THOMAS JEFFERSON. Letter to Elias Shipman and others. July 12, 1801.

I have always believed that success would be the inevitable result if the two services, the army and the navy, had fair play, and if we sent the right man to fill the right place.

SIR AUSTEN HENRY LAYARD. Speech in Parliament. January 15, 1855.

Sir, I would rather be right than be President.

HENRY CLAY. Speech, 1850 (referring to the Compromise Measures).

With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN. Second Inaugural Address. March 4, 1865.

But 't was a maxim he had often tried,
That right was right, and there he would abide.

CRABBE. Tale xv. The Squire and the Priest.

For right is right, since God is God ;
And right the day must win ;
To doubt would be disloyalty,
To falter would be sin.

F. W. FABER. The Right Must Win. (Concluding lines.)

Because right is right, to follow right
Were wisdom in the scorn of consequence.

TENNYSON. Enone. l. 148.

I trust in Nature for the stable laws
Of beauty and utility. Spring shall plant
And Autumn garner to the end of time.
I trust in God,—the right shall be the right
And other than the wrong, while He endures.

I trust in my own soul, that can perceive
The outward and the inward,—Nature's good
And God's.

ROBERT BROWNING. A Soul's Tragedy. Act i.

In the great right of an excessive wrong.

Ibid. The Ring and the Book. The Other Half-Rome. l. 1055.

RIVAL.

There with commutual zeal we both had strove

In acts of dear benevolence and love :
Brothers in peace, not rivals in command.

POPE. The Odyssey of Homer. Bk. iv. l. 241.

Sine rivali teque et tua solus amares.

Without rivals thou lovest alone thyself and thine.

HORACE. Art of Poetry. l. 444.

Un homme qui s'aimait sans avoir de rivaux.

A man who loved himself without having any rivals.

LA FONTAINE. Rochefoucauld.

He answered Darius that the earth could not brook two suns, nor Asia two masters.

PLUTARCH. Apothegms. Alexander.

Prince Henry. Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere ;
Nor can one England brook a double reign.

SHAKESPEARE. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 4. l. 65.

Hector. The obligation of our blood forbids

A gory emulation 'twixt us twain.

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act iv. Sc. 5. l. 123.

Cassius. There was a Brutus once that would have brook'd

The eternal devil to keep his state in Rome

As easily as a king.

Ibid. Julius Caesar. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 159.

In arms and science 'tis the same ;
Our rival's hurts create our fame.

PRIOR. Alma. Canto i. l. 196.

For monarchs ill can rivals brook,
Even in a word, or smile, or look.
SCOTT. Marmion. Canto v. St. 13.

RIVER.

There is a river in Macedon; and there is also moreover a river at Monmouth; . . . and there is salmon in both.
SHAKESPEARE. III. Henry IV. Act iv.
Sc. 7. l. 25.

By shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals.
MARLOWE. *The Passionate Shepherd to
His Love*. St. 2.

Julia. The current that with gentle murmur glides,
Thou know'st, being stopp'd, impatiently
doth rage;
But when his fair course is not hindered,
He makes sweet music with the enam-
ell'd stones,
Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge
He overtaketh in his pilgrimage.
SHAKESPEARE. Two Gentlemen of Verona.
Act ii. Sc. 7. l. 25.

O, could I flow like thee, and make thy stream
My great example, as it is my theme!
Though deep, yet clear: though gentle,
yet not dull;
Strong without rage, without o'erflowing
full.
DENHAM. Cooper's Hill. l. 189.

Listen and appear to us,
In name of great Oceanus,

By all the nymphs that nightly dance
Upon thy streams with wily glance,
Rise, rise, and heave thy rosy head
From thy coral-paven bed,
And bridle in thy headlong wave,
Till thou our summons answered have Listen and save.
MILTON. Comus. l. 867.

About me round I saw Hill, dale, and shady woods, and sunny plains,
And liquid lapse of murmuring streams;
by these,
Creatures that lived and moved, and walked or flew.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 263.

Flow gently, sweet Afton, among thy green braes;
Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy
praise.

BURNS. Flow Gently, Sweet Afton.

A noise like of a hidden brook
In the leafy month of June,
That to the sleeping woods all night
Singeth a quiet tune.
COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. v.
St. 18.

Ye nymphs that reign o'er sewers and sinks,
The river Rhine, it is well known,
Doth wash your city of Cologne;
But tell me, nymphs! what power
divine
Shall henceforth wash the river Rhine?
Ibid. Cologne. (Concluding lines.)

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decrew;
Where Alph, the sacred river ran,
Through caverns measureless to man,
Down to a sunless sea.
Ibid. Kubla Khan. l. 1.

On Linden, when the sun was low,
All bloodless lay the untrodden snow,
And dark as winter was the flow
Of Iser, rolling rapidly.
CAMPELLE. Hohenlinden. St. 1.

The river glideth at his own sweet
will.
WORDSWORTH. Sonnet XXXVI. Composed upon Westminster Bridge, September 3, 1802.

The stream, aspiring, pants its source to mount
As streams meander level with their fount.
ROBERT MONTGOMERY. *The Omnipresence
of the Deity*. Pt. i.

[We take this to be, on the whole, the worst similitude in the world. In the first place, no stream meanders or can possibly meander level with the fount. In the next place, if streams did meander level with their founts, no two motions can be less like each other than that of meandering level and that of mounting upwards.]

MACAULAY. Review of Montgomery's Poems.]

See the rivers, how they run,
Changeless to the changeless sea.
CHARLES KINGSLEY. Saint's Tragedy.
Act ii. Sc. 2.

I wandered by the brook-side,
I wandered by the mill;
I could not hear the brook flow,
The noisy wheel was still.
RICHARD MONCKTON MILNES (Lord Houghton). The Brookside.

I chatter, chatter, as I flow
To join the brimming river,
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on for ever.
TENNYSON. The Brook.

No check, no stay, this streamlet fears:
How merrily it goes.
'Twill murmur on a thousand years
And flow as now it flows.
WORDSWORTH. The Fountain. St. 6.

But the majestic river floated on,
Out of the mist and hum of that low land,
Into the frosty starlight, and there mov'd,
Rejoicing, through the hush'd Chorasman waste,
Under the solitary moon;—he flow'd
Right for the polar star, past Orgunje, Brimming, and bright, and large: then sands begin
To hem his watery march, and dam his streams,
And split his currents; that for many a league
The shorn and parcell'd Oxus strains along Through beds of strand and matted rushy isles—
Oxus, forgetting the bright speed he had
In his high mountain-cradle in Pamere,
A foild circuitous wanderer—till at last
The long'd-for dash of waves is heard, and wide
His luminous home of waters opens, bright And tranquil, from whose floor the newbathe'd stars
Emerge, and shine upon the Aral Sea.
MATTHEW ARNOLD. Oxus.

Like streams that keep a summer mind
Snow-hid in Jenooary.
LOWELL. The Biglow Papers. *Second
Series*. The Courtin'. St. 22.

ROD.

A whip for the horse, a bridle for the ass, and a rod for the back of fools.
Old Testament. Proverbs xxvi. 3.

He that spareth the rod hateth his son.

Ibid. Proverbs xiii. 24.

There is nothyng that more dyspleaseth
God
Than from ther children to spare the rod.
JOHN SKELTON. Magnyfycence. l. 1954.

Love is a boy, by poets styl'd,
Then spare the rod, and spoil the child.
BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto i. l.
843.

They spare the rod, and spoyle the child.
RALPH VENNING. Mysterics and Revelations.

He that will not use the rod on his child, his child shall be used as a rod on him.

TH. FULLER. Holy and Profane States.
Holy State. The Good Parent.

Diogenes struck the father when the son swore.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii.
Sec. 2. Memb. 2. Subsec. 5.

Virtue best loves those children that she beats.

HERRICK. Hesperides. 822.

The man that's ne'er been flogged has ne'er been taught.

MENANDER. Monoslichia. 422.

There is now less flogging in our great schools than formerly,—but then less is learned there; so that what the boys get at one end they lose at the other.

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life. Vol. vi.
Ch. I. 1775.

O ye! who teach the ingenious youth of nations,
Holland, France, England, Germany, or Spain,
I pray ye flog them upon all occasions,
It mends their morals, never mind the pain.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 1.

Gloster. A staff is quickly found to beat a dog.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry VI. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 171.

For him at least I have a rod in pickle.

O. KEEFE. Midus. Act ii. Sc. 1.

A woman, a spaniel, and a walnut-tree,
The more you beat them, the better they
be.

CHARLES TAYLOR.

[Translation of a proverb long familiar in Spain and Italy.]

ROMAN CATHOLIC.

Extra Ecclesiam nulla salus.

Outside the Church there is no salvation.

ST. CYPRIAN. Epistles iv. 4. and lxiii.
18.

Extra Ecclesiam Catholicam totum potest præter salutem.

Outside of the Catholick Church everything may be had except salvation.

SAINT AUGUSTINE. Vol. ix. 122 B. (Bened. ed.)

[St. Augustine continues: You may have Orders and Sacraments, you may sing Alleluia and answer Amen, you may hold the Gospel and have and preach the faith in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost: but nowhere except in the Catholick Church can salvation be found.]

Roma locuta est, causa finita est.

Rome has spoken, the case is concluded.

[Founded upon this passage from St. Augustine (Sermons, 131, 10):

Jam enim de hac causa duo concilia missa sunt ad sedem Apostolicam. Inde etiam rescripta venerunt: causa finita est; utinam aliquando error finiat!

Already the results of two councils on this (Pelagian) question have been sent to the Apostolic See, and rescripts have been returned from thence. The case is finished; would that some time or other the heresy might come to an end as well.]

There was also a Nonne, a Prioress, That of hir smyling was ful simple and coy;

Hir gretteste ooth was but by sëynt Loy;
And she was cleped madame Eglentyne.
Ful wel sche song the service divyne.

Cui licitus est finis, etiam licent media.

Where the end is lawful the means thereto are lawful also.

BUSENBAUM. Medulla Theol. Moralis. 6, 2.

[This maxim of the Jesuit writer is generally cited as "The end justifies the means."]

Exitus acta probat.

The result justifies the deed.

Motto of Washington.

She may still exist in undiminished vigour when some traveller from New Zealand shall, in the midst of a vast solitude, take his stand on a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's.

MACAULAY. On Ranke's History of the Popes. Often referred to as Macaulay's New Zealander.

[In his New Zealander, Macaulay gave its most brilliant and permanent form to an idea which had been already used by innumerable authors, among others himself.

His essay on Ranke appeared in the Edinburgh Review for October, 1840. In a criticism of Mitford's Greece, contributed so early as 1829 to Knight's Quarterly Magazine, he had said:

When the sceptre shall have passed away from England; when, perhaps, travellers from distant regions shall in vain labor to decipher on some mouldering pedestal the name of our proudest chief; shall hear savage hymns chanted to some misshapen idol, over the ruined dome of our proudest temple; and shall see a single naked fisherman wash his nets in the river of the ten thousand masts; her [Athens's] influence and her glory will still survive, fresh in eternal youth. (Concluding paragraph.)

There may be here a reminiscence of the prophet Ezekiel:

It (Tyre) shall be a place for the spreading of nets in the midst of the sea. . . . Then all the princes of the sea shall come down from their thrones; . . . they shall sit upon the ground, and shall tremble at every moment, and be astonished at thee. And they shall take up a lamentation for thee, and say to thee, How art thou destroyed, that wast inhabited of seafaring men, the renowned city, which wast strong in the sea, she and her inhabitants? (xxvi. 5, 16, 17).

And it shall come to pass, that the fishers shall stand upon it from En-gedi even to En-eglaim; they shall be a place to spread forth nets (xlvii. 10).

Closer parallels are numerous in modern literature:

For my part, I take Europe to be worn out. When Voltaire dies we may say "Good-night." The next Augustan age will dawn on the other side of the Atlantic. There will, perhaps, be a Thucydides at Boston, a Xenophon at New York, and, in time, a Virgil at Mexico, and a Newton at Peru. At last some curious traveller from Lima will visit England, and give a description of the ruins of St. Paul's, like the editions of Baalbec and Palmyra.

HORACE WALPOLE. Letters to Sir Horace Mann. November 24, 1774.

Where now is Britain?

Even as the savage sits upon the stone
That marks where stood her capitol, and hears
The bittern booming in the weeds, he shrinks
From the dismaying solitude.

HENRY KIRKE WHITE. Time. 1. 194.

In the firm expectation, that when London shall be a habitation of bitterns, when St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey shall stand shapeless and nameless ruins in the midst of an unpeopled marsh; when the piers of Westminster Bridge shall become the nuclei of islets of reeds and osiers, and cast the jagged shadows of their broken arches on the solitary stream, some transatlantic commentator will be weighing in the scales of some new and now unimagined system of criticism the respective merits of the Bells, and the Fudges, and their historians.

SHELLEY. Peter Bell the Third. Dedication to Thomas Brown, Esq. (Thomas Moore).

Who knows but that hereafter some traveller like myself will sit down upon the banks of the Seine, the Thames, or the Zuyder Zee, where now, in the tumult of enjoyment, the heart and the eyes are too slow to take in the multitude of sensations,—who knows but that he will sit down solitary amid silent ruins, and weep a people inurned, and their greatness changed into an empty name?

ROMANCE.

Perhaps the self same song that found a path

Through the sad heart of Ruth, when sick for home

She stood in tears amid the alien corn:

The same that oftimes hath Charm'd magic casements, opening on the foam

Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.
KEATS. Ode to a Nightingale. St. 7.

Parent of golden dreams, Romance!

Auspicious queen of childish joys,
Who leadst along, in airy dance,

Thy votive train of girls and boys.

BYRON. To Romance.

Lady of the Mere,
Sole-sitting by the shores of old romance.

WORDSWORTH. A Narrow Girdle of Rough Stones and Crags.

He loved the twilight that surrounds
The border-land of old romance;
Where glitter hauberk, helm, and lance,
And banner waves, and trumpet sounds,
And ladies ride with hawk on wrist,
And mighty warriors sweep along,
Magnified by the purple mist,
The dusk of centuries and of song.

LONGFELLOW. Tales of a Wayside Inn.
Prelude. Pt. v. l. 130.

Oh for a blast of that dread horn<sup>1</sup>

On Fontarabian echoes borne!

ROME.

Prima urbes inter, divum domus,
aurea Roma.

First among cities, home of the gods,
is golden Rome.

AUSONIUS. Ordo Nobilium Urbium. 1.

She alone among nations has received into her bosom those whom she has conquered, and has cherished all humanity as her sons, and not as her slaves; those whom she has subdued she has called her citizens, and has bound to herself the ends of the earth in ties of affection.

CLAUDIANUS. De Consulatu Stilichonis.
iii. 150.

He so beautified the city as to justify his boast, that he had found Rome of brick and left it of marble.

SUETONIUS. ii. 29. (Of Augustus.)

Civis Romanus sum.

I am a Roman citizen.

CICERO. In Verrem. ii. v. 57, 147.

Frangitur ipsa suis Roma superba bonis.

By her own wealth is haughty Rome brought low.

PROPERTIUS. Elegies. iv. 12, 60 (iii. 13, 60).

Once I journeyed far from home
To the gate of holy Rome;
There the Pope, for my offence,
Bade me straight, in penance, thence Wandering onward, to attain
The wondrous land that height Cokaigne.

ROBERT WACE. The Land of Cokaigne.

Horatio. I am more an antique Roman than a Dane.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 333.

On this foundation would I build my fame,

And emulate the Greek and Roman name.

ROWE. Jane Shore. Act iii. Sc. 1.

To the glory that was Greece.
And the grandeur that was Rome.

POE. To Helen.

Oh Rome! my country! city of the
soul!

The orphans of the heart must turn to
thee,

Lone mother of dead empires.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 78.

"While stands the Coliseum, Rome shall
stand;

"When falls the Coliseum, Rome shall fall!

"And when Rome falls—the World."
From our own land

Thus spake the pilgrims o'er this mighty wall

In Saxon times.

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 145.

The Niobe of nations! there she stands,
Childless and crownless, in her voiceless
woe;

An empty urn within her withered
hands,

Whose holy dust was scattered long ago.

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 79.

It was the calm and silent night!

Seven hundred years and fifty-three

Had Rome been growing up to might,

And now was queen of land and sea.

No sound was heard of clashing wars,

Peace brooded o'er the hushed domain;

Apollo, Pallas, Jove, and Mars

Held undisturbed their ancient rein

In the solemn midnight,

Centuries ago.

ALFRED DOMETT. Christmas Hymn.

ROSE.

There is no gathering the rose without being pricked by the thorns.

PILPAY (OR BIDPAI). The Two Travellers.
Ch. ii. Fable 6.

Flowers of all hue, and without thorn
the rose.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 256.

And I will make thee beds of roses,
And a thousand fragrant posies.

MARLOWE. The Passionate Shepherd to
His Love. St. 3.

O, how much more doth beauty beauteous seem,

By that sweet ornament which truth
doth give!

The rose looks fair, but fairer we it deem,

For that sweet odor which doth in it live.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet LIV.

How fair is the Rose! what a beautiful flower.

The glory of April and May!

But the leaves are beginning to fade in an
hour,

And they wither and die in a day.

Yet the Rose has one powerful virtue to
boast,

Above all the flowers of the field:

When its leaves are all dead, and fine
colours are lost,

Still how sweet a perfume it will yield!

ISAAC WATTS. Moral Songs: The Rose.

When we desire to confine our words,
we commonly say they are spoken under
the rose.

THOMAS BROWNE. Vulgar Errors.

Go, lovely rose!

Tell her that wastes her time, and me

That now she knows,

When I resemble her to thee,

How sweet, and fair, she seems to be.

EDMUND WALLER. The Rose.

Die of a rose in aromatic pain.

POPE. Essay on Man. Ep. i. l. 200.

Let opening roses knotted oaks adorn,
And liquid amber drop from every
thorn.

Ibid. Autumn. l. 37.

O, my love's like a red, red rose

That's newly sprung in June.

BURNS. A Red, Red Rose.

I am not the rose, but I have lived near the rose.

H. B. CONSTANT.

[A. Hayward, in the introduction to Mrs. Piozzi's Autobiography and Letters, ascribes to Constant the French form of this phrase, "Je ne suis pas la rose, may j'ai vécu avec elle." The original may be found in Sadi's Gulistan. See NATHAN HASKELL DOLE. Flowers from Persian Poets. Vol. ii. p. 257.]

Red as a rose is she.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. i. St. 9.

You may break, you may shatter the
vase, if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang
round it still.

MOORE. *Farewell! But Whenever You
Welcome the Hour*. (Concluding lines.)

Quo semel est imbuta recens, servabit odorem

Testa diu.

The vase will long the scent retain
It chanced, when newly made, to gain.
HORACE.

[Horace's allusion is to earthen vessels into which wine has once been poured.
Aldrich kins Moore to Horace in his parody of the former: "You may break, you may shatter Watkins if you will, but the scent of the Roederer will hang round him still."
—Marjorie Daw.]

Rose of the Garden! such is woman's lot—

Worshipp'd while blooming—when she fades, forgot.

Rose of the Desert! thus should woman
be

Shining uncourted, lone and safe, like
thee.

MOORE. Rose of the Desert. 1. 5.

'Tis the last rose of summer,
Left blooming alone.

Ibid. The Last Rose of Summer. 1. 1.

No flower of her kindred,
No rosebud is nigh,
To reflect back her blushes,
Or give sigh for sigh.

Ibid. Last Rose of Summer. 1. 5.

What would the rose with all her pride
be worth,
Were there no sun to call her brightness
forth?

Ibid. Love Alone. St. 2.

The budding rose above the rose full blown.

WORDSWORTH. The Prelude. Bk. xi. l. 121.

A lovely being, scarcely formed or moulded,

A rose with all its sweetest leaves yet folded.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto xv. St. 43.

The rose that all are praising,
Is not the rose for me;
Too many eyes are gazing
Upon the faultless tree.
But there's a rose in yonder glen
That scorns the gaze of other men;
For me its beauty saving,—
Oh! that's the rose for me.

THOMAS HAYNES BAYLY. *The Rose that
All are Praising*.

Underneath large blue-bells tented
Where the daisies are rose-scented,
And the rose herself has got Perfume which on earth is not.

KEATS. Ode. Bards of Passion and of Mirth. 1. 13.

Two roses on one slender spray
In sweet communion grew,
Together hailed the morning ray
And drank the evening dew.

MONTGOMERY. The Roses.

As rich and purposeless as is the rose:
Thy simple doom is to be beautiful.

STEPHEN PHILLIPS. Marpessa. ll. 51, 52.

ROYALTY.

(See KINGS.)

Brackenbury. Princes have but their titles for their glories,
An outward honour for an inward toil;
And for unfelt imaginations,
They often feel a world of restless cares:
So that between their titles, and low
name,

There's nothing differs but the outward
fame.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard III. Act i. Sc.
4. l. 78.

Richard. How sweet a thing it is to wear a crown,
Within whose circuit is Elvysium
And all that poets feign of bliss and joy!
Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 28.

Prince Henry. Why doth the crown lie there upon his pillow,
Being so troublesome a bedfellow?
O polish'd perturbation! golden care!
That keep'st the ports of slumber open
wide,
To many a watchful night! Sleep with it now,

Yet not so sound and half so deeply sweet
As he whose brow with homely biggen bound

Snores out the watch of night. O, Majesty!

When thou dost pinch thy bearer, thou dost sit

Like a rich armour worn in heat of day,
That scalds with safety.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc.
5. 1. 25.

Subjects may grieve, but monarchs must redress.

DRYDEN. Annus Mirabilis. cexlii.

Entire and sure the monarch's rule must prove,

Who founds her greatness on her subjects' love.

PRIOR. Prologue Spoken on Her Majesty's Birthday. 1704.

A sovereign's ear ill brooks a subject's questioning.

COLERIDGE. Zapolya. Sc. 1.

Wenn die Könige bau'n, haben die
Kärner zu thun.

When kings are building, draymen have something to do.

SCHILLER. Kant und Seine Ausleger.

For a king

'Tis sometimes better to be fear'd than loved.

BYRON. Sardanapalus. Act i. Sc. 3.

And when Reason's voice, Loud as the voice of Nature, shall have waked

The nations; and mankind perceive that vice

Is discord, war, and misery—that virtue
Is peace and happiness and harmony;
When man's maturer nature shall disdain

The playthings of its childhood; kingly glare

Will lose its power to dazzle; its authority

Will silently pass by; the gorgeous throne

Shall stand unnoticed in the regal hall
Fast falling to decay; whilst falsehood's trade

Shall be as hateful and unprofitable
As that of truth is now.

SHELLEY. Queen Mab.

Wearing the white flower of a blameless
life,

Before a thousand peering littlenesses,
In that fierce light which beats upon a
throne,

And blackens every blot.

TENNYSON. Idyls of the King. Dedication.

God said, "I am tired of kings,
I suffer them no more;

Up to my ear the morning brings
The outrage of the poor."

EMERSON. Boston Hymn.

RUIN.

Final ruin fiercely drives
Her ploughshare o'er creation.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ix. 1.
167.

Stern ruin's ploughshare drives elate
Full on thy bloom.

BURNS. To a Mountain Daisy.

One minute gives invention to destroy;
What to rebuild, will a whole age employ.

CONGREVE. The Double Dealer. Act i.
Sc. 6.

Resolv'd to ruin or to rule the state.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i.
1. 174.

On Prague's proud arch the fires of ruin
glow,

His blood-dyed waters murmuring far below.

CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. Bk. i. 1.
385.

Tully was not so eloquent as thou,
Thou nameless column with the buried base!

What are the laurels of the Cæsar's brow?

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto v. St.
110.

RULE.

No rule is so general, which admits not some exception.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
Sec. 2. Memb. 1. Subsec. 5.

Quod si exceptio facit ne liceat; ibi
necesse est licere, ubi non est exceptum.

If the exception make this thing unlawful, necessarily it is lawful where there is no exception.

Sec. 32.

[Hence, probably, the legal maxim, "Exceptio probat regulam de rebus non exceptis" ("An exception proves the validity of a rule concerning things not excepted"), which in turn has been corrupted into the familiar proverb, "The exception proves the rule."] ]

For nothing goes for sense or light,
That will not with old rules jump right.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto iii. l. 135.

A few strong instincts, and a few plain rules.

WORDSWORTH. Alas! What Boots the Long Laborious Quest?

RUMOR.

(See FAME; GOSSIP.)

Warwick. Rumour doth double, like the voice and echo,
The numbers of the fear'd.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 97.

Rumour. I, from the orient to the drooping west,
Making the wind my post-horse, still unfold

The acts commenced on this ball of
earth:

Upon my tongues continual slanders
ride,

The which in every language I pronounce,

Stuffing the ears of men with false reports.

Ibid. II. Henry IV. Induction. l. 3.

Rumour. Rumour is a pipe Blown by surmises, jealousies, con-jectures;

And of so easy and so plain a stop,
That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,

The still-discordant wavering multitude,
Can play upon it.

Ibid. II. Henry IV. Induction. l. 15.

SACRIFICE.

Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.

New Testament. Romans xii. 1.

Lear. Upon such sacrifices, my Cordelia,

The gods themselves throw incense.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 00.

A flower, when offered in the bud,
Is no vain sacrifice.

ISAAC WATTS. Divine Songs. Song xii.

When bad men combine the good must associate; else they will fall an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle.

EDMUND BURKE. Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontent. Works.
Vol. i. p. 256.

SAILOR.

They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep.

Old Testament. Psalm cvii. 23.

Illi robur et aes triplex
Circa pectus erat, qui fragilem truci
Commisit pelago ratem Primus.

Oak and brass of triple fold
Encompassed sure that heart, which first made bold

To the raging sea to trust.
A fragile bark.

HORACE. Odes. i. 3, 9. (CONINGTON,
trans.)

Give me a spirit that on this life's rough
sea

Loves t' have his sails fill'd with a lusty
wind,

Even till his sail-yards tremble, his masts crack,

And his rapt ship run on herside so low
That she drinks water, and her keel plows air.

CHAPMAN. Tragedy of Charles, Duke of Byron. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Hastings. Who builds his hope in air of your good looks,
Lives like a drunken sailor on a mast;
Ready, with every nod, to tumble down
Into the fatal bowels of the deep.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard III. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 100.

Pass we the joys and sorrows sailors find,
Coop'd in their winged sea-girt citadel,

The foul, the fair, the contrary, the kind,
As breezes rise and fall, and billows swell,
Till on some jocund morn—lo, land!
and all is well.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 28.

O'er the glad waters of the dark blue sea,
Our thoughts as boundless, and our souls
as free,
Far as the breeze can bear, the billows
foam,
Survey our empire, and behold our home!
These are our realms, no limit to their sway,—

Our flag the sceptre all who meet obey.
Ibid. The Corsair. Canto i. St. 1.

Wherever waves can roll, and winds can blow.

COWPER. The Farewell. l. 38.

My soul to-day
Is far away,
Sailing the Vesuvius bay;
My wingèd boat,
A bird afloat,
Swims round the purple peaks remote.
THOMAS BUCHANAN READ. Drifting. St. 1.

With dreamful eyes
My spirit lies
Under the walls of Paradise.
Ibid. Drifting. St. 6.

My soul is an enchanted boat,
Which like a sleeping swan doth float
Upon the silver waves of thy sweet singing;
And thine doth like an angel sit
Beside the helm conducting it,
Whilst all the winds with melody are ringing.
SHELLEY. Prometheus Unbound. Act ii.
Sc. 5.

SAINTS.

Ophelia (sings). To-morrow is Saint Valentine's day,
All in the morning betime.
And I a maid at your window,
To be your Valentine.
SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 5.
l. 48.

King Henry. This day is called the feast of Crispian:
He that outlives this day and comes safe
home,
Will stand a tip-toe when this day is named,
And rouse him at the name of Crispian.
Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 40.

Bastard. Saint George, that swunged the dragon, and e'er since Sits on his horseback at mine hostess'
door.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act ii. Sc.
1. l. 288.

Queen Margaret. But all his mind is bent to holiness,
To number Ave-Marias on his beads;
His champions are the prophets and apostles,

His weapons holy saws of sacred writ,
His study is his tilt-yard, and his loves
Are brazen images of canonized saints.

Ibid. II. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 58.

Lucio. I hold you as a thing ensky'd and sainted.

Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act i. Sc. 4.
l. 34.

I don't like your way of conditioning and contracting with the saints. Do this and I'll do that! Here's one for t'other. Save me and I'll give you a taper or go on a pilgrimage.

ERASMUS. The Shipwreck.

Saint abroad, and a devil at home.

BUNYAN. Pilgrim's Progress. Pt. i.

For virtue's self may too much zeal be
had;

The worst of madmen is a saint run mad.
POPE. To Murray. Ep. vi. of Horace. l.
26.

The saint sustained it, but the woman
died.

Ibid. Epitaph on Mrs. Corbet.

An artful woman makes a modern saint.

PRIOR. Epigrams. The Modern Saint.

There is a land of pure delight
Where saints immortal reign.

WATTS. Hymns. Hymn 66.

Hail to thy returning festival, Old Bishop Valentine! Great is thy name in the rubric. Thou venerable arch flamen of Hymen. . . . Like unto thee, assuredly, there is no other saint in the calendar.

LAMB. Essays of Elia: Valentine's Day.

The saints will aid if men will call,
For the blue sky bends over all!

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. i.
Conclusion.

SATIRE.

Castigat ridendo mores.

He chastises manners with a laugh.

SANTEUIL.

[Adopted as a motto by the Comédie Italienne and the Opéra Comique Theatre in Paris.]

Satire should, like a polished razor keen, Wound with a touch that's scarcely felt or seen.

LADY MARY WORTLEY MONTAGU, Epigram: To the Imitator of the First Satire of Horace. Bk. ii.

Satire is a sort of glass wherein beholders do generally discover everybody's face but their own, which is the chief reason for that kind reception it meets with in the world.

SWIFT. The Battle of the Books. Preface.

SCANDAL.

And there's a lust in man no charm can tame

Of loudly publishing our neighbour's shame;

On eagles' wings immortal scandals fly,
While virtuous actions are but born and die.

JUVENAL. Satire ix. (STEPHEN HARVEY, trans.)

The mightier man, the mightier is the thing

What makes him honour'd, or begets him hate;

For greatest scandal waits on greatest state.

SHAKESPEARE. Lucrece. l. 1004.

At ev'ry word a reputation dies.

POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. l. 16.

[Cf. Sheridan. School for Scandal. Act ii. Sc. 2. '... a character dead at every word!']

Nor do they trust their tongues alone,

But speak a language of their own;

Can read a nod, a shrug, a look,

Far better than a printed book;

Convey a libel in a frown,

And wink a reputation down;

Or, by the tossing of a fan,

Describe the lady and the man.

SWIFT. Journal of Modern Lady. l. 188.

I'm called away by particular business, but I leave my character behind me.

SHERIDAN. School for Scandal. Act ii. Sc. 2.

No scandal about Queen Elizabeth, I hope?

SHERIDAN. The Critic. Act iv. Sc. 1.

Love and scandal are the best sweeteners of tea.

FIELDING. Love in Several Masques. Act iv. Sc. 2.

Her tea she sweetens, as she sips, with scandal.

ROGERS. Written to be Spoken by Mrs. Siddons.

Assail'd by scandal and the tongue of strife,

His only answer was a blameless life:

And he that forged, and he that threw the dart,

Had each a brother's interest in his heart.

COWPER. Hope. l. 570.

Dead scandals form good subjects for dissection.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 31.

For now the poet cannot die,

Nor leave his music as of old,

But round him ere he scarce be cold

Begins the scandal and the cry.

TENNYSON. To —, after reading a Life and Letters.

That foul bird of rapine whose whole prey

Is man's good name.

Ibid. Merlin and Vivien.

SCIENCE.

One science only will one genius fit,

So vast is art, so narrow human wit.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. i. l. 60.

Human science is uncertain guess.

PRIOR. Solomon. Bk. i. l. 740.

'Twas thus by the glare of false science betray'd,

That leads to bewilder, and dazzles to blind.

BEATTIE. The Hermit.

O star-eyed Science, hast thou wander'd there,

To waft us home the message of despair?

CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. l. 325.

Human pride

Is skilful to invent most serious names

To hide its ignorance.

SHELLEY. Queen Mab. vii.

Physician art thou, one all eyes,
 Philosopher, a fingering slave,
 One that would peep and botanize
 Upon his mother's grave?
 WORDSWORTH. A Poet's Epitaph.

Love not the flower they pluck and
 and know it not,
 And all their botany is Latin names.
 EMERSON. Blight.

Put by the Telescope!
 Better without it man may see,
 Stretch'd awful in the hush'd midnight,
 The ghost of his eternity.
 COVENTRY PATMORE. The Unknown Eros.

SCHOOL.

(See EDUCATION.)

Every schoolboy hath that famous testament of Grunnius Corocotta Por-cellus at his fingers' end.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. iii.

Every schoolboy knows it.

JEREMY TAYLOR. On the Real Presence.
 Sec. v. 1.

As every schoolboy knows.

LORD MACAULAY.

Jaques. Then the whining schoolboy, with his satchel
 And shining morning face, creeping like snail

Unwillingly to school.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act ii.
 Sc. 7. l. 147.

What's all the noisy jargon of the schools?

JOHN POMFRET. Reason a Poem. (1700.)

The sounding jargon of the schools.

COWPER. Truth. l. 367.

What's a' your jargon o' your schools,
 Your Latin names for horns and stools;
 If honest nature made you fools.

BURNS. Epistle to J. L.—k.

Beside yon straggling fence that skirts
 the way,

With blossom'd furze unprofitably gay,
 There, in his noisy mansion, skill'd to
 rule,

The village master taught his little
 school;

A man severe he was, and stern to view,—
 I knew him well, and every truant knew;

Well had the boding tremblers learn'd to trace

The day's disasters in his morning face;
 Full well they laugh'd with counter-feited glee

At all his jokes, for many a joke had he;
 Full well the busy whisper circling round Convey'd the dismal tidings when he frown'd.

Yet was he kind, or if severe in aught,
 The love he bore to learning was in fault;
 The village all declar'd how much he knew,

'T was certain he could write and cipher too.

GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 193.

The Schoolmaster is abroad! and I trust more to him, armed with his primer, than I do to the soldier in full military array, for upholding and extending the liberties of his country.

LORD BROUGHAM. Speech in the House of Commons. 1828.

SCOTLAND.

Macduff. Stands Scotland where it did?

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act iv. Sc. 3.
 l. 164.

Much may be made of a Scotchman
 if he be caught young.

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life of Johnson.
 1772.

The noblest prospect which a Scotchman ever sees is the high-road that leads him to England.

Ibid. Boswell's Life of Johnson. 1763.

Oats,—a grain which is generally given to horses, but in Scotland supports the people.

SAMUEL JOHNSON. Dictionary of the English Language.

Joh. Mayor, in the first book of his History of Scotland, contends much for the wholesomeness of oaten bread; it was objected to him, then living at Paris, that his countrymen fed on oats and base grain. . . . And yet Wecker out of Galen calls it horse-meat and fitter juments than men to feed on.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
 l. 2, 1.

From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur's springs,

That makes her lov'd at home, rever'd abroad :

Princes and lords are but the breath of kings:

"An honest man's the noblest work of God." <sup>1</sup>

BURNS. Cotter's Saturday Night. St. 19.

O Scotia! my dear, my native soil!

For whom my warmest wish to heaven is sent!

Long may thy hardy sons of rustic toil
Be blest with health, and peace, and sweet content!

Ibid. Cotter's Saturday Night. St. 20.

Hear, Land o' Cakes and brither Scots
Frae Maiden Kirk to Johnny Groat's.

Ibid. On Captain Grose's Peregrinations Thro' Scotland.

My heart's in the Highlands, my heart is not here;

My heart's in the Highlands a-chasing the deer.

Ibid. My Heart's in the Highlands.

It was a' for our rightfu' King

We left fair Scotland's strand.

Ibid. A' for our Rightfu' King.

It's guid to be merry and wise,

It's guid to be honest and true,

It's guid to support Caledonia's cause,

And bide by the buff and the blue!

Ibid. Here's a Health to Them that's Awa'.

The Scots are poor, cries surly English
pride;

True is the charge, nor by themselves denied.

Are they not then in strictest reason
clear,

Who wisely come to mend their fortunes here?

CHURCHILL. Prophecy of Famine. 1. 195.

O Caledonia! stern and wild,

Meet nurse for a poetic child!

Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,

Land of the mountain and the flood,

Land of my sires! what mortal hand

Can e'er untie the filial band,

That knits me to thy rugged strand!

SCOTT. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto
vi. St. 2.

It requires a surgical operation to get a joke well into a Scotch understanding.

SYDNEY SMITH. Lady Holland's Memoir.

Vol. i. p. 15.

<sup>1</sup> Quoted from POPE. (See HONESTY.)

The whole [Scotch] nation hitherto has been void of wit and humour, and even incapable of relishing it.

WALPOLE. Letters to Sir Horace Mann.
1778.

That knuckle-end of England,—that land of Calvin, oat-cakes, and sulphur.

SYDNEY SMITH. Lady Holland's Memoir.
Vol. ii. p. 17.

And though, as you remember, in a fit

Of wrath and rhyme, when juvenile and curly,

I railed at Scots to show my wrath and
wit,

Which must be owned was sensitive and surly,

Yet 'tis in vain such sallies to permit,
They cannot quench young feelings

fresh and early:

I "scotched, not killed" the Scotchman
in my blood,

And love the land of "mountain and of flood."

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto x. St. 19.

Give me but one hour of Scotland,

Let me see it ere I die.

WILLIAM E. AYTOUN. Lays of the Scottish Cavaliers—Charles Edward at Versailles. 1. 111.

SCOTT, SIR WALTER.

The Ariosto of the North.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St.
40.

It can be said of him, when he departed he took a Man's life with him.
No sounder piece of British manhood was put together in that eighteenth century of Time.

CARLYLE. Essays. Lockhart's Life of Scott.

SCULPTURE.

As when, O lady mine!

With chiselled touch

The stone unhewn and cold

Becomes a living mould.

The more the marble wastes,

The more the statue grows.

MICHAEL ANGELO. Sonnet. (MRS. HENRY ROSCOE, trans.)

So stands the statue that enchants the
world,
So bending tries to veil the matchless
boast,
The mingled beauties of exulting Greece.
THOMSON. Seasons. Summer. l. 1346.

Then marble, soften'd into life, grew warm.

POPE. Second Book of Horace. Epistle i.
l. 46.

And the cold marble leapt to life a
God.

H. H. MILMAN. The Belvedere Apollo.

Too fair to worship, too divine to love.
Ibid. The Belvedere Apollo.

By thunders of white silence.

MRS. BROWNING. Powers' Greek Slave.

I have but one simile, and that's a blunder,
For wordless woman, which is silent thunder.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto vi. St. 57.

SEA.

All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full.

Old Testament. Ecclesiastes i. 7.

We are as near heaven by sea as by land.

SIR HUMPHREY GILBERT. To his Crew of the Squirrel immediately previous to their Shipwreck.

Cease, rude Boreas, blustering railer!

List, ye landmen all, to me:

Messmates, hear a brother sailor

Sing the dangers of the sea.

GEORGE A. STEVENS. The Storm.

Bounding billows, cease your motion,
Bear me not so swiftly o'er.

MARY ROBINSON. Bounding Billows.

We were the first that ever burst
Into that silent sea.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. ii.

Water, water, everywhere,
And all the boards did shrink;
Water, water, everywhere,
Nor any drop to drink.

Ibid. The Ancient Mariner. ii. 9.

And pine with thirst amid a sea of waves.
HOMER. *Odyssey. Bk. xi. l. 722. (POPE,
trans.)*

There the sea I found Calm as a cradled child in dreamless slumber bound.

SHELLEY. The Revolt of Islam. Canto i.
St. 15.

Rocked in the cradle of the deep,
I lay me down in peace to sleep.

EMMA WILLARD. The Cradle of the Deep.

Oh "darkly, deeply, beautifully blue!"
As some one somewhere sings about the sky.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto iv. St. 110.

Blue, darkly, deeply, beautifully blue.

SOUTHEY. Madoc in Wales. Pt. v.

There's not a sea the passenger e'er
pukes in,
Turns up more dangerous breakers than the Euxine.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto v. St. 5.

Some love to roam o'er the dark sea's
foam,

Where the shrill winds whistle free.

CHARLES MACKAY. Some Love to Roam.

Distinct as the billows, yet one as the sea.

J. MONTGOMERY. The Ocean. St. 6.

A wet sheet and a flowing sea,

A wind that follows fast

And fills the white and rustling sails,
And bends the gallant mast!

And bends the gallant mast, my boys,
While, like the eagle free,

Away the good ship flies, and leaves
Old England in the lee.

ALLAN CUNNINGHAM. *Songs of Scotland.
A Wet Sheet and a Flowing Sea.*

What are the wild waves saying,

Sister, the whole day long,

That ever amid our playing

I hear but their low, lone song?

JOSEPH E. CARPENTER. What are the Wild Waves Saying?

The sea! the sea! the open sea!

The blue, the fresh, the ever free.

B. W. PROCTOR (BARRY CORNWALL). The Sea.

I'm on the sea! I'm on the sea!

I am where I would ever be,

With the blue above and the blue below,
And silence wheresoe'er I go.

Ibid. The Sea.

I never was on the dull, tame shore,
But I loved the great sea more and
more.

B. W. PROCTOR (BARRY CORNWALL). The Sea.

The best thing I know between France and England is the sea.

DOUGLAS JERROLD. The Anglo-French Alliance.

For every wave with dimpled face

That leap'd upon the air,
Had caught a star in its embrace

And held it trembling there.

AMELIA B. WELDY. Musings. St. 4.

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill ;
But oh for the touch of a vanish'd hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still !

TENNYSON. To E. L., on His Travels in Greece.

Break, break, break,
At the foot of thy crags, O Sea !
But the tender grace of a day that is dead

Will never come back to me.

Ibid. To E. L., on his Travels in Greece.

The dim, dark sea, so like unto Death,
That divides and yet unites mankind.

LONGFELLOW. The Building of the Ship.

"Would'st thou,"—so the helmsman answered,

"Learn the secret of the sea ?
Only those who brave its dangers Comprehend its mystery !"

Ibid. The Secret of the Sea. Verse viii.

And like the wings of sea-birds
Flash the white-caps of the sea.

Ibid. Twilight.

A God, a God their severance rul'd ;
And bade betwixt their shores to be
The unplumb'd, salt, estranging sea.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Switzerland. vi.
Absence.

Stick close to your desks and never go to sea,

And you all may be rulers of the Queen's Navee !

W. S. GILBERT. H. M. S. Pinafore. Act i.
(Sir Joseph Porter's song.)

SECRET.

For thre may kepe a counsel—if twain be awaie.

CHAUCER. The Ten Commandments of Love. 49.

Three may keope counsayle, if two be
away.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. v.

Aaron. Two may keep counsel, when the third's away.

SHAKESPEARE. Titus Andronicus. Act
iv. Sc. 2. l. 144.

Three may keep a secret, if two of them are dead.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Poor Richard's Almanac.

Hamlet. And whatsoever else shall hap to-night

Give it an understanding, but no tongue.
SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l.
249.

Hotspur. I know you wise ; but yet
no further wise,

Than Harry Percy's wife : constant you
are ;

But yet a woman : and for secrecy,
No lady closer ; for I will believe,
Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not
know :

And so far will I trust thee, gentle Kate !
Lady. How ! so far ?

Hotspur. Not an inch farther.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 110.

When we desire to confine our words,
we commonly say they are spoken under
the rose.

SIR THOMAS BROWNE. Vulgar Errors.

A man can keep another person's secret better than his own : a woman, on the contrary, keeps her secret though she blabs all others.

LA BRUYÈRE. Characters. Of Women.
(ROWE, trans.)

Il faut laver son linge sale en famille.

One should wash his soiled linen in private.

NAPOLEON I.

Is there whom you detest, and seek his
life ?

Trust no soul with the secret—but his wife.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire vi. l. 389.

How can we expect another to keep our secret if we cannot keep it ourselves?

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maxims. No. 90.

None are so fond of secrets as those who do not mean to keep them; such persons covet secrets as a spendthrift covets money, for the purpose of circulation.

COLTON. Lacon. xl.

If a fool knows a secret, he tells it because he is a fool; if a knave knows one, he tells it wherever it is his interest to tell it. But women and young men are very apt to tell what secrets they know from the vanity of having been trusted.

CHESTERFIELD. Letters, Sentences, and Maxims.

SELFISHNESS.

Dauphin. Self-love, my lord, is not so vile a sin

As self-neglecting.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry V. Act ii. Sc. 4.
l. 74.

That man may last, but never lives,
Who much receives, but nothing gives;
Whom none can love, whom none can thank,—

Creation's blot, creation's blank.

THOMAS GIBBONS. When Jesus Dwelt.

By whatever name we call
The ruling tyrant, Self is all in all.

CHURCHILL. The Conference. l. 167.

I have subdued at last the will to live,
Expelling nature from my weary
heart;

And now my life, so calm, contemplative,

No longer selfish, freely may depart.
The vital flame is burning less and less;
And memory fuses to forgetfulness.

P. G. HAMERTON. The Sanyassi.

SELF-RELIANCE.

Ille, velut pelagi rupes immota, resistit.

Like rock engirdled by the sea,
Like rock immovable is he.

VIRGIL. Æneid. vii. 586. (CONINGTON,
trans.)

Come one, come all! This rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I.

SCOTT. Lady of the Lake. Canto v. St.
10.

Where is Truth, if there be no self-
trust?

SHAKESPEARE. The Rape of Lucrece. St.
23.

No thought of flight,
None of retreat, no unbecoming deed
That argued fear; each on himself relied,
As only in his arm the moment lay
Of victory.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. l. 236.

How happy is he born or taught,
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armour is his honest thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill.
SIR HENRY WOTTON. *The Character of a
Happy Life*.

Who God doth late and early pray
More of His grace than gifts to lend;
And entertains the harmless day
With a religious book or friend.
Ibid. The Character of a Happy Life.

Self-confidence is the first requisite to great undertakings.

JOHNSON. Works. viii. 237. (Oxford
ed., 1825.)

Self-defence is a virtue,
Sole bulwark of all right.

BYRON. Sardanapalus. Act ii. Sc. 1.

Self-defence is Nature's eldest law.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt.
i. l. 458.

Nothing great is lightly won,

Nothing won is lost;

Every good deed, nobly done,

Will repay the cost.

Leave to Heaven in humble trust,

All you will to do;

But, if you succeed you must,

Paddle your own canoe.

SARAH K. BOLTON. *Paddle Your Own
Canoe*.

My head is bloody but unbowed.

W. E. HENLEY.

Resolve to be thyself, and know that he
Who finds himself, loses his misery.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Self-dependence.

SERPENT.

Latet anguis in herba.

There lurks a snake in the grass.

VIRGIL. Eclogues. iii. 93.

Serpents lie where flowers grow.

OLD BALLAD. The Spanish Lady's Love.

Be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves.

New Testament. Matthew x. 16.

Now will I show myself to have more of the serpent than the dove; that is, more knave than fool.

Brutus. It is the bright day that brings forth the adder;

And that craves wary walking.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 14.

Johnson said that he could repeat a complete chapter of "The Natural History of Iceland" from the Danish of Horrebaw, the whole of which was exactly thus: "There are no snakes to be met with throughout the whole island."

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life. 1778.

[This is chapter lxxii. But chapter xlii. is still shorter: "There are no owls of any kind in the whole island."]

Man spurns the worm, but pauses ere he wake

The slumbering venom of the folded snake:

The first may turn, but not avenge the blow;

The last expires, but leaves no living foe.

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto i. St. 11.

But the trail of the serpent is over them all.

THOMAS MOORE. Lalla Rookh. Paradise and the Peri. 1. 206.

(With that she tore her robe apart, and half

The polish'd argent of her breast to sight

Laid bare. Thereto she pointed with a laugh,

Showing the aspicks bite.)

TENNYSON. A Dream of Fair Women.

SERVANTS.

Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord.

New Testament. Matthew xxv. 21.

Like master, like man.

Old Proverb.

Such master, such man, and such mistress, such maid,
Such husband and huswife, such houses arraid.

TUSSER. Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry. April's Husbandry. 22.

Such mistress, such Nan;

Such master, such man.

Ibid. April's Abstract. 22.

Posthumus. Every good servant does not all commands:

No bond but to do just ones.

SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act v. Sc. 1. 1. 6.

Orlando. O, good old man, how well in thee appears

The constant service of the antique world,

When service sweat for duty, not for meed!

Thou art not for the fashion of these times,

Where none will sweat but for promotion;

And having that, do choke their service up,

Even with the having.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 3. 1. 56.

A faithful and good servant is a real godsend; but truly 't is a rare bird in the land.

LUTHER. Table Talk. clvi.

[Luther's last words are quoted from Juvenal, Satires vi., 165: "Rara avis in terris, nigroque simillima cygno" ("A rare bird in the land, and very like a black swan").]

Men in great place are thrice servants.

BACON. Essay XI. Of Great Place.

Servant of God, well done; well hast thou fought

The better fight.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. 1. 29.

Corydon and Thyrsis met,

Are at their savoury dinner set,

Of herbs, and other country messes,

Which the neat-handed Phillis dresses.

Ibid. L'Allegro.

They also serve who only stand and wait.

MILTON. Sonnet on His Blindness.

Ere the base laws of servitude began,
When wild in woods the noble savage ran.

DRYDEN. Conquest of Grenada. Act i.
Sc. 1.

A servant with this clause
Makes drudgery divine;
Who sweeps a room as for thy laws
Makes that and th' action fine.
GEORGE HERBERT. The Elxir.

All service ranks the same with God—
With God, whose puppets, best and worst,
Are we: there is no last nor first.
R. BROWNING. Pippa Passes.

From kings to cobblers 't is the same;
Bad servants wound their masters' fame.
GAY. Fables. Pt. ii. Fable vi.

No surly porter stands in guilty state
To spurn imploring famine from the gate.
GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 105.

A pampered menial drove me from the door,

To seek a shelter in a humbler shed.
THOMAS MOSS. The Beggar's Petition.

[Originally published in the Gentleman's Magazine, lxx., p. 41. Goldsmith, to whom Moss had submitted the poem, substituted "a pampered menial" for the original's more commonplace "a liveried servant."]

Small service is true service while it lasts.

WORDSWORTH. To a Child.

They serve God well
Who serve His creatures.
MRS. NORTON. The Lady of La Garaye.

A great man's overfed great man,
what the Scotch call Flunkey.

CARLYLE. Essay on Johnson.

The sooty yoke of kitchen vassalage.
TENNYSON. Gareth and Lynette.

SHADOW.

Thus shadow owes its birth to light.
GAY. Fables: The Persian, Sun, and Cloud.

Shadows are in reality, when the sun is shining, the most conspicuous thing in a landscape, next to the highest lights.

RUSKIN. Painting.

Falstaff. The son of the female is the shadow of the male.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry IV. Act iii.
Sc. 2. l. 141.

Follow a shadow, it still flies you;
Seem to fly it, it will pursue.

BEN JONSON. Women are but Men's Shadows.

Syene, and where the shadow both ways falls,

Merve, Nilotic isles.

MILTON. Paradise Regained. Bk. iv. l. 70.

And now his shadow reach'd her as she run,
His shadow lengthen'd by the setting sun.

POPE. Windsor Forest.

The worthy gentleman who has been snatched from us at the moment of the election, and in the middle of the contest, whilst his desires were as warm and his hopes as eager as ours, has feelingly told us what shadows we are, and what shadows we pursue.

BURKE. Speech at Bristol on Declining the Poll. Vol. ii. p. 420.

For this I see, that we, all we that live,
Are but vain shadows, unsubstantial dreams.

SOPHOCLES. Ajax, 125. (PLUMPTRE, trans.)

Let beeves and home-bred-kine partake
The sweets of Burn-mill meadow:
The swan on still St. Mary's Lake
Floats double—swan and shadow!
WORDSWORTH. Yarrow Unvisited.

In a deep pool, by happy chance we saw
A twofold Image. On a grassy bank
A snow-white Ram, and in the crystal flood Another and the same! Most beautiful,
On the green turf, with his imperial front
Shaggy and bold, and wreathed horns superb,
The breathing creature stood! as beautiful,
Beneath him, show'd his shadowy Counterpart
Each had his glowing mountains, each his sky,
And each seem'd centre of his own fair world:
Antipodes unconscious of each other.
Yet, in partition, with their several spheres,
Blended in perfect stillness to our sight.
Ibid. The Excursion. Bk. ix.

The awful shadow of some unseen Power
Floats, tho' unseen, amongst us.
SHELLEY. Hymn to Intellectual Beauty.

But why lament the common lot

That all must share so soon ;

Since shadows lengthen with the day,

That scarce exist at noon.

MRS. ALARIC A. WATTS. Requiem of Youth.

The Shadow cloak'd from head to foot,

Who keeps the keys of all the creeds.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam. xxiii. Sts. 1, 2. ll. 4, 1.

That shadow my likeness that goes to and fro seeking a livelihood, chattering, chaffering,

How often I find myself standing and looking at it where it flits,

How often I question and doubt whether that is really me.

WALT WHITMAN. Leaves of Grass: Calamus; That Shadow My Likeness. ll. 1-3.

Fortunatus. Man, shackled to his shadow, cannot move

Without the base companionship of self.

ALFRED AUSTIN. Fortunatus the Pessimist. Act i. Sc. 4.

SHAKESPEARE.

Alas ! tis true I have gone here and
there,

And made myself a motley to the view,
Gored mine own thoughts, sold cheap
what is most dear,

Made old offences of affections new ;
Most true it is that I have looked on truth

Askance and strangely.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet 110.

And he the man, whom Nature selfe had made

To mock her selfe, and Truth to imitate,

With kindly counter under Mimick
shade,

Our pleasant Willy, ah ! is dead of late :

With whom all joy and jolly merriment
Is also deaded, and in dolour drent.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. Tears of the Muses.

Soul of the age !

Th' applause ! delight ! the wonder of our stage !

My Shakespeare, rise ! I will not lodge thee by

Chaucer, or Spenser, or bid Beaumont lie
A little further, to make thee a room ;
Thou art a monument, without a tomb,
And art alive still, while thy book doth
live,

And we have wits to read, and praise to give.

BEN JONSON. Underwoods. To the Memory of Shakespeare.

He was not of an age, but for all time,
And all the Muses still were in their prime,

When, like Apollo, he came forth to warm

Our ears, or like a Mercury to charm !

Ibid. To the Memory of Shakespeare.

Though thou hadst small Latin and less Greek.

Ibid. To the Memory of Shakespeare.

Sweet Swan of Avon ! what a sight it were

To see thee in our water yet appear,
And make those flights upon the banks of Thames,

That so did take Eliza and our James.

Ibid. To the Memory of Shakespeare.

What needs my Shakespeare for his honour'd bones,—

The labour of an age in piled stones ?
Or that his hallow'd relics should be hid
Under a starry-pointing pyramid ?

Dear son of memory, great heir of fame,
What need'st thou such weak witness of thy name ?

MILTON. Epitaph on Shakespeare.

Shakespeare, who (taught by none) did first impart

To Fletcher wit—to labouring Jonson art.

He, monarch-like, gave those, his subjects, law ;

And is that nature which they paint and draw.

DRYDEN. Prologue to His Version of The Tempest.

But Shakespeare's magic could not copied be ;

Within that circle none durst walk but
he.

Ibid. Prologue to His Version of The Tempest.

So bold, yet so judiciously you dare,
That your least praise is to be regular.
Time, place, and action, may with pains
be wrought;
But genius must be born, and never can
be taught.

This is your portion; this your native
store;
Heaven, that but once was prodigal before,
To Shakespeare gave as much; she could not give him more.

DENDEN. Epistle to Congreve.

Shakespeare (whom you and every playhouse bill

Style the divine, the matchless, what you will)

For gain, not glory, wing'd his roving
flight,

And grew immortal in his own despite.

POPE. Satire v. l. 69.

On Avon's bank, where flowers eternal blow,

If I but ask, if any weed can grow?

One tragic sentence if I dare deride
Which Betterton's grave action dignified, Or well-mouth'd Booth with emphasis proclaims,

(Though but, perhaps, a muster-roll of names,)

How will our fathers rise up in a rage,
And swear all shame is lost in George's age!

Ibid.

When Learning's triumph o'er her barb'- rous foes

First rear'd the stage, immortal Shakespeare rose;

Each change of many-colored life he drew,

Exhausted worlds, and then imagin'd
new;

Existence saw him spurn her bounded reign,

And panting Time toil'd after him in vain,

His powerful strokes presiding Truth
impress'd,

And unresisted Passion storm'd the breast.

DR. JOHNSON. Prologue at Opening of Drury Lane Theatre. 1747. l. 1.

Happy in tragic and in comic powers,
Have we not Shakespeare? is not Jonson ours?

For them, your natural judges, Britons,
vote;

They'll judge like Britons, who like Britons wrote.

CHURCHILL. Rosciad. l. 223.

Things of the noblest kind his genius
drew,

And look'd through nature at a single view:

A loose he gave to his unbounded soul,
And taught new lands to rise, new seas
to roll;

Call'd into being scenes unknown before,
And passing nature's bounds, was something more.

Ibid. Rosciad. l. 264.

Kitty. Shikspur? Shikspur? Who wrote it? No, I never read Shikspur.

Lady Bab. Then you have an immense pleasure to come.

REV. JAMES TOWNLEY. *High Life Below
Stairs.* Act ii. Sc. 1.

Thou soft flowing Avon, by thy silver
stream

Of things more than mortal sweet
Shakespeare would dream;

The fairies by moonlight dance round
his green bed,

For hallowed the turf is which pillowed his head.

GARRICK.

The playbill, which is said to have announced the tragedy of Hamlet, the character of the Prince of Denmark being left out.

SCOTT. The Talisman. Introduction.

Iago's soliloquy, the motive-hunting of a motiveless malignity—how awful it is!

COLERIDGE. Notes on Some Other Plays of Shakespeare.

Our myriad-minded Shakespeare.

Ibid. Biographia Litteraria. Ch. xv.

There, Shakespeare, on whose forehead climb

The crowns o' the world. Oh, eyes sublime,

With tears and laughter for all time!

MRS. BROWNING. Vision of Poets. St. 101.

Nor sequent centuries could hit
Orbit and sum of Shakespeare's wit.

R. W. EMERSON. May-Day and Other Pieces. Solution.

When Shakespeare is charged with debts to his authors, Landor replies:
"Yet he was more original than his originals. He breathed upon dead bodies and brought them into life."

Ibid. Letters and Social Aims. Quotation and Originality.

The passages of Shakespeare that we most prize were never quoted until within this century.

Ibid. Representative Men: Shakespeare.

Others abide our question. Thou art
free.

We ask and ask. Thou smilest and art
still,

Out-topping knowledge.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Shakespeare.

The sightless Milton, with his hair
Around his placid temples curled;
And Shakespeare at his side,—a freight
If clay could think and mind were weight,

For him who bore the world!

ROBERT BROWNING. The Italian Itinerant.

SHAME.

If yet not lost to all the sense of shame.

HOMER. The Iliad. Bk. vi. l. 350. (POPE,
trans.)

Dicere quod puduit, scribere jussit
amor.

What shame forbade me speak, Love
bade me write.

OVID. Heroid. iv. 10.

In shame there is no comfort, but to be beyond all bounds of shame.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. Arcadia. Bk. ii.

Juliet. He was not born to shame: Upon his brow shame is ashamed to sit;

For 'tis a throne where honor may be crown'd

Sole monarch of the universal earth.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
iii Sc. 2. l. 91.

So spake the Cherub; and his grave
rebuke,

Severe in youthful beauty, added grace
Invincible: abashed the Devil stood,
And felt how awful goodness is, and saw Virtue in her shape how lovely; saw, and pined

His loss.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 844.

Honteux comme un renard qu'une
poule aurait pris.

As sheepish as a fox captured by a fowl.

LA FONTAINE. Fables. i. 18.

Then made he that attempt in which to fail

Is shameful—still more shameful to prevail.

I will be brief nor have I heart to dwell
On crimes they almost share who paint too well.

CRABBE. The Sisters.

SHEEP; SHEPHERD.

Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice; and there shall be one fold and one shepherd.

New Testament. John x. 16.

They who differ pole-wide serve
Perchance the common Master,
And other sheep He hath than they
Who graze one narrow pasture!

WHITTIER. A Spiritual Manifestation.

In summer's heat, and winter's cold,
He fed his flock, and penn'd the fold.

GAY. Fables. Introduction.

Ye shepherds, give ear to my lay,
And take no more heed of my sheep;
They have nothing to do but to stray,
I have nothing to do but to weep.

SHEPSTONE. Pastoral Ballad.

Ill fares it with the flock,
If shepherds wrangle when the wolf is nigh.

SIR W. SCOTT. Halidon Hill Act i. Sc. 2.

One sickly sheep infects the flock,
And poisons all the rest.

DR. I. WATTS. Songs for Children. xxi.

One rotten sheep spoils the whole flock.

BLAKE. King Edward the Third.

SHELL.

I have seen
A curious child, who dwelt upon a tract
Of inland ground, applying to his ear
The convolutions of a smooth-lipped shell,
To which, in silence hushed, his very soul
Listened intensely; and his countenance soon Brightened with joy, for from within were heard
Murmurings, whereby the monitor expressed Mysterious union with his native sea.

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. iv.

But I have sinuous shells of pearly hue
Within, and they that lustre have imbibed
In the sun's palace-porch, where when un-yoked
His chariot-wheel stands midway in the wave:

Shake one, and it awakens; then apply
Its polish'd lips to your attentive ear,
And it remembers its august abodes,
And murmurs as the ocean murmurs there.

LANDOR. Gebir. Bk. v.

The soul of music slumbers in the shell,
Till worked and kindled by the master's spell,
And feeling hearts—touch them but lightly
—pour
A thousand melodies unheard before.

ROGERS. Human Life.

See what a lovely shell,
Small and pure as a pearl,
Lying close to my foot,
Frail, but a work divine,
Made so fairly well
With delicate spire and whorl,
How exquisitely minute,
A miracle of design!

TENNYSON. Maud. Pt. ii. Ch. ii. St. 1.

I wiped away the weeds and foam,
I fetched my sea-born treasures home;
But the poor, unsightly, noisome things
Had left their beauty on the shore,
With the sun and the sand and the wild uproar.

EMERSON. Each and All.

SHERIDAN, RICHARD BRINSLEY.

Good at a fight, but better at a play;
Godlike in giving, but the devil to pay.
BYRON. On a Cast of Sheridan's Hand.

Who ran Through each mode of the lyre, and was master of all.

Ibid. On the Death of Sheridan.

Whose wit in the combat, as gentle as bright,
Ne'er carried a heart-stain away on its blade.

Ibid. On the Death of Sheridan.

Mourning that Nature formed but one such man,
And broke the die—in moulding Sheridan.

Ibid. On the Death of Sheridan. l. 147.

Natura il fece, e poi ruppe la stampa.
Nature made him, and then broke the mould.

ARIOSTO. Orlando Furioso. Canto x. St. 84.

No autumn, nor no age ever approach
This heavenly piece, which nature having wrought
She lost her needle, and did then despair
Ever to work so lively and so fair.

MASSINGER AND FIELD. Fatal Dowry.

Nature's richest, sweetest store,
She made an Hoyland, and can make no
more.

CHATTERTON. To Miss Hoyland.

SHIP.

Enobarbus. The barge she sat in, like a burnish'd throne, Burn'd on the water: the poop was beaten gold;
Purple the sails, and so perfumed, that
The winds were love-sick with them:
the oars were silver
Which to the tune of flutes kept stroke, and made
The water which they beat to follow faster,
As amorous of their strokes. For her own person,
It beggar'd all description.

SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra.
Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 196.

Enobarbus. Her gentlewomen, like the Nereids,

So many mermaids, tended her i' the eyes,
And made their bends adornings; at the helm

A seeming mermaid steers; the silken tackle

Swell with the touches of those flower-soft hands

That yarely frame the office. From the barge

A strange invisible perfume hits the sense

Of the adjacent wharfs.

SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 200.

Posthumus. The swiftest harts have posted you by land;

And winds of all the corners kiss'd your sails,

To make your vessel nimble.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 27.

Shylock. But ships are boards, sailors are but men: there be land-rats and water-rats, land-thieves and water-thieves—I mean pirates; and then there is the peril of the waters, winds, and rocks.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 22.

Ships, ships, I will descree you

Amidst the main,

I will come and try you,

What you are protecting,

And projecting,

What's your end and aim.

One goes abroad for merchandise and trading,

Another stays to keep his country from invading,

A third is coming home with rich and wealthy lading,

Hallo! my fancie, whither wilt thou go?

WILLIAM HAEVEY. Hallo! My Fancie.

Ships dim-discover'd dropping from the clouds.

THOMSON. The Seasons: Summer. l. 946.

But now secure the painted vessel glides,

The sunbeams trembling on the floating tides:

While melting music steals upon the sky,
And soften'd sounds along the waters die.
Smooth flow the waves, the zephyrs gently play,
Belinda smiled, and all the world was gay.

POPE. Rape of the Lock.

Thus I steer my bark, and sail

On even keel, with gentle gale.

MATTHEW GREEN. The Spleen. l. 814.

Though pleased to see the dolphins play,
I mind my compass and my way.

Ibid. The Spleen. l. 826.

Being in a ship is being in a jail, with the chance of being drowned.

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life. 1759.

As idle as a painted ship

Upon a painted ocean.

COLERIDGE. Ancient Mariner. Pt. ii.

She walks the waters like a thing of life,

And seems to dare the elements to strife.

Who would not brave the battle-fire—the wreck—

To move the monarch of her peopled deck?

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto i. 3.

Like ships, that sailed for sunny isles,
But never came to shore.

T. K. HERVEY. The Devil's Progress.

And see! she stirs!

She starts,—she moves,—she seems to feel

The thrill of life along her keel!

LONGFELLOW. The Launch of the Ship.

Without a breeze, without a tide,

She steadies with upright keel.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. iii.

SHIPWRECK.

Miranda. O, I have suffer'd

With those that I saw suffer! a brave vessel,

Who had no doubt some noble creature in her,

Dash'd all to pieces. O, the cry did knock

Against my very heart! poor souls! they perish'd.

SHAKESPEARE. Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 5.

He who has suffered shipwreck, fears to sail

Upon the seas, though with a gentle gale.
HERRICK. Shipwreck.

What though the sea be calm? Trust to the shore:

Ships have been drown'd where late they danc'd before.

Ibid. Safety on the Shore.

Again she plunges! hark! a second shock

Bilges the splitting Vessel on the Rock—
Down on the vale of death, with dismal cries

The fated victims shuddering cast their eyes,

In wild despair; while yet another stroke,

With strong convulsion rends the solid oak:

Ah, Heaven!—behold her crashing ribs divide!

She loosens, parts, and spreads in ruin o'er the Tide.

FALCONER. Shipwreck. Canto iii. l. 64.

Then rose from sea to sky the wild farewell—

Then shriek'd the timid and stood still the brave,—

Then some leap'd overboard with dreadful yell,

As eager to anticipate their grave;
And the sea yawned around her like a hell,

And down she sucked with her the whirling wave.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 52.

And fast through the midnight dark and drear,

Through the whistling sleet and snow,
Like a sheeted ghost, the vessel swept
Towards the reef of Norman's Woe.

LONGFELLOW. The Wreck of the Hesperus. St. 15.

SHOES; SHOEMAKER.

Ne sutor supra crepidam.

A cobbler should stick to his last.

PLINY. 35, 10.

[When a cobbler, not content with pointing out defects in a shoe of Apelles' painting, presumed to criticise the drawing of the leg, the artist checked him with the above rebuke.]

Second Citizen. I am indeed, sir, a surgeon to old shoes; when they are in great danger I recover them. As proper men as ever trod upon meat's leather have gone upon my handiwork.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 27.

Arviragus. And put
My clouted brogues from off my feet.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 214.

Him that makes shoes go barefoot himself.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

Who is worse shod than the shoemaker's wife?

JOHN HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. ix.

Ye tuneful cobblers! still your notes prolong,

Compose at once a slipper and a song;
So shall the fair your handiwork peruse,

Your sonnets sure shall please—perhaps your shoes.

BYRON. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers. l. 751.

Marry, because you have drank with the King,

And the King hath so graciously pledged you,

You shall no more be called shoemakers;

But you and yours, to the world's end,
Shall be called the trade of the gentle craft.

ANON. George a-Greene. 1599.

[According to tradition the king was Edward IV., who once drank incognito with a party of shoemakers and pledged them.]

SICKNESS.

Cassius. He had a fever when he was in Spain,

And when the fit was on him, I did mark

How he did shake; 'tis true, this god did shake:

His coward lips did from their colour fly,
And that same eye whose bend doth awe the world

Did lose his lustre.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 119.

Timon. My long sickness
Of health and living now begins to mend,
And nothing brings me all things.
SHAKESPEARE. Timon of Athens. Act v.
Sc. i. l. 189.

Portia. What, is Brutus sick,
And will he steal out of his wholesome
bed,
To dare the vile contagion of the night?
Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act ii. Sc. i. l. 263.

So, when a raging fever burns,
We shift from side to side by turns;
And 't is a poor relief we gain
To change the place, but keep the pain.
ISAAC WATTS. Spiritual Hymns. Hymn
146.

See the wretch, that long has tost
On the thorny bed of pain
At length repair his vigour lost,
And breathe and walk again:
The meanest flow'ret of the vale,
The simplest note that swells the gale,
The common sun, the air, the skies,
To him are opening paradise.
GRAY. Ode on a Vicissitude.

SIGH.

(See SORROW.)

Sigh'd and look'd and sigh'd again.
DRYDEN. Alexander's Feast. l. 120.

Sighed and looked unutterable things.
THOMSON. The Seasons: Summer. l. 1188.

Implores the passing tribute of a sigh.
GRAY. Elegy in a Country Churchyard.
St. 20.

Who hath not paused while Beauty's pensive eye
Ask'd from his heart the homage of a sigh?
CAMPBELL. The Pleasures of Hope. ii.

To sigh, yet feel no pain,
To weep, yet scarce know why,
To sport an hour with Beauty's chain,
Then throw it idly by.
THOMAS MOORE. Songs from M. P.: The Blue Stocking.

Sighs

Which perfect Joy, perplexed for utterance,
Stole from her sister, Sorrow.
TENNYSON. The Gardener's Daughter. l.
249.

SILENCE.

Φησιν σωπῶν.

His silence answers yes.
EURIPIDES. Orestes. 1592.

Qui tacet consentire videtur.
He who is silent is understood to consent.
BONIFACE VIII. Septi Decretalium Liber.
Bk. v. Tit. xii. de Regulis Juris, 43.

Silence gives consent.
OLIVER GOLDSMITH. *The Good-natured
Man.* Act ii.

Be silent or let thy words be worth
more than silence.

PYTHAGORAS. Stobæus, Florilegium.
xxxiv. 7.

Speak fitly or be silent wisely.
GEORGE HERBERT.

Intelligisne me esse philosophum? . . .
Intellexeram, si tacuisses.
Do you understand that I am a philosopher? . . . I should have so understood had you remained silent.
BOETHIUS. De Consolatione Philosophiæ.
ii. Prosa 7.
[Hence the phrase, "Si tacuisses, philo-sophus mansisses.]"

When Demaratus was asked whether he held his tongue because he was a fool or for want of words, he replied, "A fool cannot hold his tongue."

PLUTARCH. Of Demaratus.

A fool's mouth is his destruction.
Old Testament. Proverbs. xviii. 6.

My tongue within my lips I reign;
For who talks much must talk in vain.
GAY. Introduction to the Fables. Pt. i.
l. 57.

The cur's bark is worse than his bite;
the deepest rivers flow most silently.

QUINTUS CURTIUS. *De Rebus Gestis Al-
exandri Magni.* vii. 4, 13.

Suffolk. Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep;
And in his simple show he harbors treason.
The fox barks not when he would steal the lamb.
SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry VI. Act iii.
Sc. i. l. 53.

Passions are likened best to floods and
streams:
The shallow murmur, but the deep are dumb.

RALEIGH. The Silent Lover.

Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the
way.

POPE. Epistle to Arbuthnot. l. 315.

Curæ leves loquuntur, ingentes stupent.
Light sorrows speak, but deeper ones
are dumb.

SENECA. Hippocrates. 607.

Striving to tell his woes, words would not
come;
For light cares speak, when mighty griefs
are dumb.

SAMUEL DANIEL. Complaint of Rosamond. St. 114.

Small griefs find tongues: full casks are ever found
To give (if any, yet) but little sound.

HERRICK. Hesperides. 38.

There are deeds
Which have no form, sufferings which have
no tongue.

SHELLEY. The Cenci. Act iii. Sc. 1.

I tell thee hopeless grief is passionless.
MRS. BROWNING.

[See under GRIEF.]

Much talk, much foolishness.

The Talmud.

[From the Talmudic saying Corneille derived his line:
Mais qui parle beaucoup dit beaucoup de
sottises.

He who talks much says many foolish
things.

Sequel to Le Menteur. Act iii. Sc. 1.]

The firste vertue, sone, if thou wilt lere,
Is to restraine and kepen wel thy tonge.

CHAUCER. Canterbury Tales: The Manciples Tale. l. 17281.

And I oft have heard defended,—
Little said is soonest mended.

GEORGE WITHER. The Shepherd's Hunting.

Silence in love bewrays more woe
Than words, though ne'er so witty:

A beggar that is dumb, you know,
May challenge double pity.

RALEIGH. The Silent Lover. St. 9.

Bassanio. O! my Antonio, I do know
of these,

That therefore only are reputed wise,
For saying nothing.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
i. Sc. 1. l. 97.

Hamlet. The rest is silence.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 368.

Bassanio. Sometimes from her eyes
I did receive fair speechless messages.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 1.
l. 163.

Sæpe tacens vocem verbaque vultus habet.
The silent countenance often speaks.

OVID. Ars Amatoria. i. 574.

Countess. Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none: be able for thine
enemy

Rather in power, than use; and keep thy friend

Under thy own life's key: be check'd
for silence,

But never tax'd for speech.

SHAKESPEARE. All's Well that Ends Well.
Act i. Sc. 1. l. 73.

The heart hath treble wrong,
When it is barr'd the aidance of the
tongue.

Ibid. Venus and Adonis. l. 329.

Think all you speak; but speak not all
you think:

Thoughts are your own; your words are
so no more.

Where Wisdom steers, wind cannot make
you sink:

Lips never err, when she does keep the
door.

DELAUNE. Epigram.

They that govern the most make the
least noise.

JOHN SELDEN. Table Talk: Power.

Because half-a-dozen grasshoppers under
a fern make the field ring with their im-portunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle reposed beneath the shadow of the British oak, chew the cud and are silent,
pray do not imagine that those who make the noise are the only inhabitants of the field; that of course they are many in number; or that, after all, they are other than
the little shrivelled, meagre, hopping, though loud and troublesome insects of the
hour.

BURKE. Reflections on the Revolution in France. Vol. iii. p. 344.

Come then, expressive silence, muse
His praise.

THOMSON. Hymn. l. 118.

There is a silence where hath been no
sound,

There is a silence where no sound may
be,—

In the cold grave, under the deep, deep
sea,

Or in the wide desert where no life is found.

THOMAS HOOD. Sonnet: Silence.

Silent in seven languages.

SCHLEIERMACHER. Reported in Letter of Zeller to Goethe. March 15, 1830.

All silent and all damned.

WORDSWORTH. Peter Bell. Pt. 1. (In original issue, omitted afterward.)

Silence! Oh well are Death and Sleep
and Thou

Three brethren named, the guardians
gloomy-winged,

Of one abyss, where life and truth and
joy

Are swallowed up.

SHELLEY. Fragments: Silence.

A sound so fine, there's nothing lives
'Twixt it and silence.

JAMES SHERIDAN KNOWLES. Virginius.
Act v. Sc. 2.

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard

Are sweeter; therefore, ye soft pipes,
play on,—

Not to the sensual ear, but, more en-
dear'd,

Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone.

KEATS. Ode on a Grecian Urn.

Speech is great, but silence is greater.

CARLYLE. Essays: Characteristics of Shakespeare.

As the Swiss inscription says:
Sprechen ist silbern, Schweigen ist golden—
Speech is silvern, Silence is golden; or,
as I might rather express it, Speech is
of Time, Silence is of Eternity.

Ibid. Sartor Resartus. Bk. iii. Ch. iii.

Under all speech that is good for anything there lies a silence that is better.
Silence is deep as Eternity; Speech is shallow as Time.

Ibid. Essays: Memoirs of the Life of Scott.

The uttered part of a man's life, let
us always repeat, bears to the unuttered,
unconscious part a small unknown proportion. He himself never knows it, much less do others.

Ibid. Memoirs of the Life of Scott.

Of every noble work the silent part is best
Of all expression that which cannot be expressed.

W. W. STORY. The Unexpressed.

And silence, like a poultice comes,
To heal the blows of sound.

O. W. HOLMES. The Music-grinder.

The silent organ loudest chants

The master's requiem.

EMERSON. Dirge.

Three silences there are: the first of
speech,

The second of desire, the third of
thought.

LONGFELLOW. *The Three Silences of Mo-
linos.*

SIMPLICITY.

And simple truth miscalled simplicity
And captive good attending captain ill.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. lxi.

Elegant as simplicity and warm as ecstasy.

COWPER. Table Talk. 1. 588.

Nothing is more simple than greatness; indeed, to be simple is to be great.

EMERSON. Miscellanies: Literary Ethics.

And as the greatest only are,

In his simplicity sublime.

TENNYSON. Burial of the Duke of Wellington.

We have exchanged the Washing-tonian dignity for the Jeffersonian simplicity, which was in truth only another
name for the Jeffersonian vulgarity.

BISHOP HENRY C. POTTER. Address at the Washington Centennial Service. New York, April 30, 1889.

SIN.

He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone.

New Testament.

If we desire to judge all things justly,
we must first persuade ourselves that none
of us is without sin.

SENECA. Of Anger. ii. 28, 1.

Bonus iudex damnat improbanda, non
odit.

The upright judge condemns the crime, but does not hate the criminal.

Ibid. Of Anger. i. 16, 7.

Condemn the fault, and not the actor of
it.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 2. 1. 35.

She hugged th' offender, and forgave th' offence.
Sex to the last.

DRYDEN. Cymon and Iphigenia.

How shall I lose the sin, yet keep the sense,
And love th' offender, yet detest th' offence?
POPE. Eloisa to Abeldard. l. 191.

Cæsar said he loved the treason, but
hated the traitor.

PLUTARCH. Life of Romulus.

Princes in this case
Do hate the Traitor, tho' they love the Treason.

S. DANIEL. Tragedy of Cleopatra. Act
iv. Sc. 1.

This principle is old, but true as fate,
Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate.
MIDDLETON. The Honest Whore. Act iv.

Magna pars hominum est quæ non pec-
catis irascitur, sed peccantibus.

A large part of mankind is angry not with
the sins, but with the sinners.

SENECA. De Ira. ii. 28, 8.

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always he
that has done something.

MARCUS AURELIUS. Meditations. ix. 5.

Hell gives us art to reach the depth of
sin;

But leaves us wretched fools, when we
are in.

FLETCHER. The Queen of Corinth. Act
iv. Sc. 3.

Our compell'd sins
Stand more for number than for accompt.
SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 4. l. 57.

Escalus. Some rise by sin, and some
by virtue fall:

Some run from brakes of vice, and answer none;

And some condemned for a fault alone.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 1.
l. 38.

King. My offence is rank, it smells to heaven.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 36.

Lear. I am a man
More sinned against than sinning.
Ibid. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 60.

He that falls into sin is a man; that grieves at it is a saint; that boasteth of
it is a devil.

THOS. FULLER. Holy and Profane States:
Holy State, of Self-praising.

Man-like is it to fall into sin,
Fiend-like is it to dwell therein;
Christ-like is it for sin to grieve,
God-like is it all sin to leave.

FR. VON LOGUN. Sinngedichte: Sin.
(LONGFELLOW, trans.)

Anger and just rebuke, and judgment
given,

That brought into this world a world of
woe,
Sin and her shadow Death, and Misery
Death's harbinger.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. l. 10.

Compound for sins they are inclined to,
By damning those they have no mind to.
BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l.
215.

See sin in state, majestically drunk;
Proud as a peeress, prouder as a punk.
POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. l. 69.

Our outward act is prompted from within,
And from the sinner's mind proceeds
the sin.

PRIOR. Henry and Emma. l. 481.

[For, in the eye of heaven, a wicked deed
Devised is done.

JUVENAL. Satires. xiii. 209.]

Sin is too dull to see beyond himself.
TENNYSON. Queen Mary. Act v. Sc. 2.

SKELETON; SKULL.

Hamlet. Why may not that be the skull of a lawyer? Where be his quiddities now, his quillets, his cases, his tenures, and his tricks?

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. l.
107.

Hamlet. Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him, Horatio: a fellow of infinite jest,
of most excellent fancy. He hath borne me on his back a thousand times; and now, how abhorred in my imagination
it is! my gorge rises at it. Here hung those lips that I have kissed I know not how oft. Where be your gibes now;
your gambols, your songs? your flashes
of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar? Not one now, to mock your own grinning? Quite chap-fallen?
Now get you to my lady's chamber, and tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to this favour she must come.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 204.

Look on its broken arch, its ruin'd wall,
 Its chambers desolate, and portals foul:
 Yes, this was once Ambition's airy hall,
 The dome of Thought, the palace of the
 Soul!
 Behold through each lack-lustre, eyeless
 hole;
 The gay recess of Wisdom and of Wit,
 And Passion's host, that never brook'd
 control:
 Can all saint, sage, or sophist ever writ,
 People this lonely tower, this tenement
 reft?
 BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 6.
 [Meditations on a skull found in the Acropolis.]

EDMUND WALLER. On Tea.

Behold this ruin! 'Twas a skull
 Once of ethereal spirit full.
 This narrow cell was Life's retreat,
 This space was Thought's mysterious seat.
 What beauteous visions filled this spot!
 What dreams of pleasure long forgot!
 Nor hope, nor joy, nor love, nor fear,
 Have left one trace of record here.

ANON. Lines to a Skeleton.

Every family has a skeleton in the closet.

Proverb.

Mrs. Craigie. Dearest, every man—even the most cynical—has one enthusiasm—he is earnest about some one thing; the all-round trifier does not exist. If there is a skeleton—there is also an idol in the cupboard!

JOHN OLIVER HOBBS. The Ambassador.
 Act ii.

SLANDER.

(See CALUMNY; GOSSIP.)

Pisanio. No, 'tis Slander;
 Whose edge is sharper than the sword,
 whose tongue
 Outvenoms all the worms of Nile;
 whose breath
 Rides on the posting winds, and doth belie
 All comers of the world: Kings, Queens,
 and States,
 Maids, Matrons, nay, the secrets of the grave
 This viperous slander enters.
 SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc.
 4. l. 35.

Slander's mark was ever yet the fair;
 The ornament of beauty is suspect,

<sup>1</sup> And keeps the palace of the soul.

A crow that flies in heaven's sweetest
 air.
 So thou be good, slander doth but ap-
 prove
 Thy worth the greater.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. lxx.

Slander,
 Whose whisper o'er the world's diameter,
 As level as the cannon to his blank,
 Transports his poison'd shot.
Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 40.

I'll devise some honest slanders
 To stain my cousin with: One doth not
 know
 How much an ill word may empoison liking.
Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iii.
 Sc. 1. l. 85.

Done to death by slanderous tongues,
 Was the Hero that here lies.
Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v.
 Sc. 3. l. 3.

Andacter calumniare, semper aliquid
 haeret.
 Hurl your calumnies boldly; something is sure to stick.
 BACON. De Augmentis Scientiarum. viii.
 2.

Colomniez, calomniez, il en reste toujours
 quelque chose.
 Calumniate, calumniate, some of it will remain always.
 BEAUMARCHAIS. Barbier de Séville.
 [Archbishop Whately used to say, "If you only throw dirt enough, some of it is sure to stick."]

I hate the man who builds his name
 On ruins of another's fame.
 GAY. Fables. xlv. l. 1.

Squint-eyed Slander.
 BEATTIE. The Judgment of Paris.

Slander, the foulest whelp of sin.
 POLLOCK. Course of Time. Bk. viii. l.
 725.

Skilled by a touch to deepen scandal's
 tints,
 With all the kind mendacity of hints,
 While mingling truth with falsehood,
 sneers with smiles,
 A thread of candor with a web of wiles;

A plain blunt show of briefly-spoken
seeming,
To hide her bloodless heart's soul-
harden'd scheming;
A lip of lies, a face formed to conceal;
And, without feeling, mock at all who
feel:
With a vile mask the Gorgon would
disown,
A cheek of parchment, and an eye of stone.

BYRON. Sketch. l. 55.

Slander, meanest spawn of Hell—
And woman's slander is the worst.

TENNYSON. The Letters.

The tiny-trumpeting gnat can break our dream
When sweetest; and the vermin voices
here
May buzz so loud—we scorn them—but they sting.

Ibid. Lancelot and Elaine.

SLAVERY.

(See NEGRO.)

Whatever day

Makes man a slave, takes half his worth
away.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xvii. l. 392.

(POPE, trans.)

None can be free who is a slave to,
and ruled by, his passions.

PYTHAGORAS. Stobæus, Florilegium. xviii.
23.

The most onerous slavery is to be a slave
to oneself.

SENECA. Natural Questions. iii. Præfat. 17.

He that is one man's slave, is free
from none.

CHAPMAN. The Gentleman Usher. Act i.
Sc. 1.

Every bondman in his own hand bears
The power to cancel his captivity.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc.
3. l. 101.

O execrable son! so to aspire
Above his brethren, to himself assuming
Authority usurped from God, not given,
He gave us only over beast, fish, fowl,
Dominion absolute; that right we hold
By His donation; but man over men

He made not lord, such title to himself
Reserving, human left from human free.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. xii. l. 64.

The meanest Briton scorns the highest slave.

ADDISON. The Campaign.

Disguise thyself as thou wilt, still,
Slavery, said I, still thou art a bitter
draught.

STERNE. Sentimental Journey. The Passport.

I would not have a slave to till my
ground,
To carry me, to fan me while I sleep
And tremble when I wake, for all the wealth
That sinews bought and sold have ever
earn'd.

COWPER. The Task. Bk ii. l. 29.

Lord Mansfield first established the grand doctrine that the air of England
is too pure to be breathed by a slave.

CAMPBELL. Lives of the Lord Chancellors.
Vol. ii. p. 418.

[The reference is to Mansfield's decision
in the case of James Somerset, a negro slave
from Jamaica, who, accompanying his master to England, claimed his freedom and was brought into court on a writ of Habeas Corpus (1772). The decision upheld the argument of Hargrave, Somerset's counsel, that England is "a soil whose air is deemed too pure for slaves to breathe in." But the words were Hargrave's, not Lord Mans-
field's. As reported in the State Trials, vol.
xx, p. 1, Lord Mansfield declared that—

Every man who comes into England is entitled to the protection of the English law, whatever oppression he may heretofore have suffered, and whatever may be the color of his skin:

Quamvis ille niger, quamvis tu candidus.

Cowper has summarized the plea of Har-grave and its endorsement by Mansfield in
the famous lines:

Slaves cannot breathe in England; if their lungs

Receive our air, that moment they are free!
They touch our country and their shackles
fall.

The Task. Bk. ii. The Timepiece. l. 40.

Later John Philpot Curran amplified the
idea:

I speak in the spirit of the British law,
which makes liberty commensurate with
and inseparable from British soil; which proclaims even to the stranger and sojourner, the moment he sets his foot upon British earth, that the ground on which he treads is holy and consecrated by the genius of universal emancipation.

Before any of these British authorities Bodinus, a French jurist who flourished in the sixteenth century had said:

Servi peregrini, ut primum Galliæ fines penetrauerunt eodem momento liberi sunt.
Foreign slaves, as soon as they come within the limits of France, are free.

Works. Bk. i. Ch. v.]

That execrable sum of all villainies commonly called the slave-trade.

Her fustian flag in mockery over slaves.

MOORE. To the Lord Viscount Forbes.
Written from Washington, D. C.

The compact which exists between the North and the South is a covenant with death and an agreement with hell.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON. Resolution Adopted by the Antislavery Society.
Jan. 27, 1843.

No more slave States; no slave Territories.

Platform of the Free Soil National Convention. 1848.

Where Slavery is, there Liberty cannot be; and where Liberty is, there Slavery cannot be.

CHARLES SUMNER. Speech: Slavery and the Rebellion.

I do not see how a barbarous community and a civilized community can constitute a state. I think we must get rid of slavery or we must get rid of freedom.

EMERSON. The Assault upon Mr. Sumner's Speech. May 26, 1856.

I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free.

LINCOLN. Speech. June 16, 1858.

This is a world of compensations, and he who would be no slave must consent to have no slave. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and, under a just God, they cannot long retain it.

Ibid. Letter. April 6, 1859. Declining to Attend Festival in Honor of Anniversary of Jefferson's Birthday.

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

New Testament. Mark iv.

Men! whose boast it is that ye
Come of fathers brave and free,
If there breathe on earth a slave,
Are ye truly free and brave?

LOWELL. Stanzas on Freedom.

SLEEP.

He giveth His beloved sleep.

Old Testament. Psalm cxxvii. 2.

Of all the thoughts of God that are
Borne inward into souls afar,
Along the Psalmist's music deep,
Now tell me if that any is,
For gift or grace, surpassing this—
"He giveth His beloved sleep?"

MRS. BROWNING. Sleep.

Diogenes the Cynic, when a little before his death he fell into a slumber, and his physician rousing him out of it asked him whether anything ailed him, wisely answered, "Nothing, sir; only one brother anticipates another,—Sleep before Death."

PLUTARCH. Apothegms. Diogenes.

Sleep and death, two twins of winged race,
Of matchless swiftness, but of silent pace.

POPE. Iliad. Bk. xvi. l. 831.

Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable Night,
Brother to Death, in silent darkness born.

SAMUEL DANIEL. To Delia. Sonnet 51.

Come, gentle sleep! attend thy votary's prayer,
And, though Death's image, to my couch repair;

How sweet, though lifeless, yet with life to lie,

And, without dying, oh how sweet to die!

JOHN WOLCOTT. Epigram on Sleep.

[See under DEATH.]

Stulte, quid est somnus gelidæ nisi
moris imago?

O fool, what else is sleep but chill
death's likeness?

OVID. Amores. ii. 9, 41.

Macduff. Shake off this drowsy sleep,
death's counterfeit,
And look on death itself.

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 81.

Falstaff. I would 'twere bed-time,
Hal, and all well.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 125.

Iachimo. O sleep, thou ape of death.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 31.

Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak ; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. lxxviii. (LOCKHART, trans.)

God bless the man who first invented sleep,
So Sancho Panza said, and so say I ;
And bless him also that he did not keep
His great discovery to himself, nor try
To make it,—as the lucky fellow might,—
A close monopoly by patent-right.

JOHN G. SAXE. Early Rising.

Come Sleep ; oh sleep, the certain knot
of Peace,
The baiting place of wit, the balm of
woe,
The poor man's wealth, the prisoner's
release,
The indifferent judge, between the
high and low.

SIR PHILIP SYDNEY. Astrophel and Stella.
St. 39.

Belarius. Weariness
Can snore upon the flint, when resty
sloth
Finds the down pillow hard.
SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc. 6.
l. 34.

The lowliest cot will give thee peaceful
sleep,
While Caius tosses on his bed of down.
MARTIAL. Epigrams. ix. 93, 3.

Friar Lawrence. Care keeps his watch
in every old man's eye,
And where care lodges, sleep will never
lie ;
But where unbruised youth with un-
stuff'd brain
Doth couch his limbs, there golden
sleep doth reign.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
ii. Sc. 3. l. 34.

I have not slept one wink.
Ibid. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 103.

Macbeth. Methought, I heard a voice
cry, Sleep no more !
Macbeth does murder Sleep !—The innocent sleep.

Sleep, that knits up the ravell'd sleeve
of care,

The death of each day's life, sore
Labour's bath,

Balm of hurt minds, great Nature's
second course,

*Chief nourisher in life's feast.
SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc.
2. l. 34.

Witch. Sleep shall neither night nor
day

Hang upon his pent-house lid.
Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 19.

King Henry. O sleep, O gentle sleep, Nature's soft nurse, how have I frightened
thee,

That thou no more wilt weigh my eye-
lids down,

And steep my senses in forgetfulness ?
Why rather, sleep, liest thou in smoky
cribs,

Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee,
And hush'd with buzzing night-flies to
thy slumber,

Than in the perfum'd chambers of the great,

Under the canopies of costly state,
And lull'd with sounds of sweetest
melody ?

O thou dull god, why liest thou with
the vile

In loathsome beds, and leav'st the
kingly couch

A watch-case or a common 'larum-bell ?
Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 4.

King Henry. Canst thou, O partial sleep, give thy repose

To the wet sea-boy in an hour so rude ;
And in the calmest and most stillest
night,

With all appliances, and means to boot,
Deny it to a king ? Then, happy low,
lie down !

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.
Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 26.

Bottom. And I pray you let none of your people stir me : I have an exposition of sleep come upon me.

Ibid. A Midsummer's Night's Dream.
Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 42.

The timely dew of sleep.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 146.

Ten thousand Angels on her slumbers
wait
With glorious Visions of her future
state.

DRYDEN. Hind and Panther.

Sweet are the slumbers of the virtuous
man.

ADDISON. Cato. Act v. Sc. 4.

Ede s'endormit du sommeil des justes.
She slept the sleep of the just.

RACINE. *Abrégé de l'Histoire de Port
Royal*. (Quevres, 1865, vol. iv. p.
519.)

Each night we die;
Each morn are born anew: each day a
life!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 286.

Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy
sleep!

He, like the world, his ready visit pays Where fortune smiles—the wretched he
forsakes.

Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 1.

Oh, we're a' noddin', nid, nid, noddin';
Oh, we're a' noddin' at our house at
hame.

LADY NAIRNE. We're a Noddin'.

Thou hast been called, O sleep! the
friend of woe;

But 'tis the happy who have called thee
so.

SOUTHEY. Curse of Kehama. Canto xv.
St. 12.

Oh sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. v.

Our life is two-fold; sleep hath its own
world,

A boundary between the things mis-
named

Death and existence: Sleep hath its own
world,

And a wide realm of wild reality.

BYRON. Dream. l. 1.

Strange state of being! (for 'tis still to
be)

Senseless to feel, and with seal'd eyes to
see.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iv. St. 30.

O soft embalmer of the still midnight!
Shutting, with careful fingers and ben-
nign,

Our gloom-pleased eyes, embower'd from
the light,

Enshaded in forgetfulness divine.

KEATS. To Sleep. Sonnet ix.

O magic sleep! O comfortable bird That broodest o'er the troubled sea of
the mind

Till it is hush'd and smooth!

Ibid. Endymion. l. 456.

Sleep, my little one, sleep, my pretty
one, sleep.

TENNYSON. The Princess. iii. St. 2. last
line.

SMELL.

Falstaff. The rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nostril.

SHAKESPEARE. *The Merry Wives of
Windsor*. Act iii. Sc. 5. l. 94.

Trinculo. He hath a very ancient and fishlike smell.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act ii. Sc. 2.

In Köln, a town of monks and bones,
And pavement fang'd with murderous
stones,

And rags and hags, and hideous wenches,
I counted two-and-seventy stenchs,
All well defined, and several stinks!

COLERIDGE. Cologne.

Do you not smell a rat?

BEN JONSON. Tale of a Tub. Act iv. Sc.
3.

I smell a rat.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l.
821.

SMILE.

Hamlet. One may smile, and smile,
and be a villain.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. l.
108.

Smile with an intent to do mischief or
cozen him whom he salutes.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. *Demo-
critus to the Reader*.

Cæsar. Seldom he smiles, and smiles
in such a sort
As if he mock'd himself, and scorn'd
his spirit

That could be mov'd to smile at anything.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc.
2. l. 205.

But owned that smile, if oft observed and
near,
Waned in its mirth, and wither'd to a sneer.
BYRON. Lara. Canto i. St. 17.

To whom the angel, with a smile that glowed
Celestial rosy red, love's proper hue.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 618.

For smiles from reason flow
To brute deny'd, and are of love the food.
Ibid Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. l. 239.

When bold Sir Plume had drawn
Clarissa down,
Chloe stepp'd in, and kill'd him with a
frown;
She smiled to see the doughty hero slain,
But at her smile the beau revived again.
POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto v. l. 67.

A smile is ever the most bright and beautiful with a tear upon it. What is the dawn without the dew? The tear is rendered by the smile precious above
the smile itself.

LANDOR. Imaginary Conversations:
Dante and Gemma Donati.

With a smile on her lips and a tear
in her eye.

SCOTT. Marmion. Canto v. St. 12.

Reproof on her lips, but a smile in her
eye.

SAMUEL LOVER. Rory O'More.

In came Mrs. Fezziwig, one vast substantial smile.

DICKENS. Christmas Carol. Stave 2.

With the smile that was child-like
and bland.

BRET HARTE. Plain Language from
Truthful James. St. 4. l. 6.

SNOW.

Her cap, far whiter than the driven
snow,
Emblems right meet of decency does
yield.

WILLIAM SHENSTONE. The Schoolmistress.
St. 6.

Through the sharp air a flaky torrent
flies,
Mocks the slow sight, and hides the
gloomy skies;

The fleecy clouds their chilly bosoms
bare,
And shed their substance on the floating
air.

CRABBE. Inebriety.

Out of the bosom of the Air,
Out of the cloud-folds of her garments
shaken,
Over the woodlands brown and bare,
Over the harvest-fields forsaken,
Silent and soft and slow
Descends the snow.

LONGFELLOW. Snow-flakes.

Announced by all the trumpets of the
sky,
Arrives the snow, and, driving o'er the
fields,
Seems nowhere to alight: the whited
air

Hides hills and woods, the river, and
the heaven,
And veils the farmhouse at the garden's
end.

The sled and traveller stopped, the
courier's feet

Delayed, all friends shut out, the house-mates sit

Around the radiant fireplace, enclosed
In a tumultuous privacy of storm.

EMERSON. The Snow-storm.

The frolic architecture of the snow.

Ibid. The Snow-storm.

SNOB.

He who meanly admires a mean
thing is a Snob—perhaps that is a safe
definition of the character.

THACKERAY. Book of Snobs. Ch. ii.

. . . rough to common men,
But honeying to the whisper of a lord.

ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. The Princess.
Prologue. ll. 114, 115.

SOLDIER.

Othello. 'Tis the soldiers' life
To have their balmy slumbers wak'd
with strife.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3. l.
257.

Iago. 'Tis the curse of the service,
Preferment goes by letter and affection,
Not by the old gradation, where each
second

Stood heir to the first.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act i. Sc. 1.

Falstaff. Food for powder: they'll fill a pit as well as better; tush, man, mortal
men, mortal men.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 71.

Iago. A soldier's a man: O man's life's but a span;
Why, then, let a soldier drink?

Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3.

Acheruntis pabulum.

Food for Acheron.

PLAUTUS. Casina. ii. 1, 2.

Fie, my lord, fie! a soldier and
afear'd?

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 1.
l. 41.

Cassius. I said, an elder soldier, not a better:

Did I say "better"?

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 56.

But we are soldiers;

And may that soldier a mere recreant
prove,

That means not, hath not, or is not in love!

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act I. Sc.
3. l. 286.

The country rings with loud alarms,
And raw in fields the rude militia
swarms;

Mouths without hands; maintain'd at
vast expense,

In peace a charge, in war a weak defence:

Stout once a month they march, a blus-
tering band,

And ever, but in times of need, at hand.
This was the morn, when, issuing on

the guard,

Drawn up in rank and file they stood prepared

Of seeming arms to make a short essay,
Then hasten to be drunk, the business
of the day.

DRYDEN. Cymon and Iphigenia. l. 399.

There's but the twinkling of a star
Between a man of peace and war.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto iii. l.
957.

Such is the country maiden's fright,

When first a red-coat is in sight;

Behind the door she hides her face;

Next time at distance eyes the lace.

GAY. Fables. Pt. i. Fable 13.

The sex is ever to a soldier kind.

POPE. The Odyssey of Homer. Bk. XIV.
l. 246.

The broken soldier, kindly bade to stay,
Sat by his fire, and talk'd the night
away;

Wept o'er his wounds, or, tales of sorrow done,

Shoulder'd his crutch, and show'd how
fields were won.

GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 155.

Of boasting more than bomb afraid,
A soldier should be modest as a maid.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire iv.

Glory is the sodger's prize,

The sodger's wealth is honour.

BURNS. When Wild War's Deadly Blast.

Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows not break-
ing;

Dream of battled fields no more,

Days of danger, nights of waking.

SIR W. SCOTT. The Lady of the Lake.
Canto i. 31.

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat

The soldier's last tattoo;

No more on Life's parade shall meet

The brave and fallen few.

On Fame's eternal camping-ground

Their silent tents are spread,

And Glory guards, with solemn round

The bivouac of the dead.

THEODORE O'HARA. The Bivouac of the
Dead. St. 1.

Who, doomed to go in company with Pain

And Fear and Bloodshed,—miserable
train!—

Turns his necessity to glorious gain.

WORDSWORTH. Character of the Happy
Warrior.

Controls them and subdues, transmutes,
bereaves
Of their bad influence, and their good receives.

WORDSWORTH. Character of the Happy Warrior.

But who, if he be called upon to face
Some awful moment to which Heaven
has joined

Great issues, good or bad for humankind,
Is happy as a lover.

Ibid. Character of the Happy Warrior.

And through the heat of conflict keeps
the law

In calmness made, and sees what he foresaw.

Whom neither shape of danger can dis-
may,

Nor thought of tender happiness betray.

Last night, among his fellow-roughs

He jested, quaffed, and swore;

A drunken private of the Buffs,

Who never looked before.

To-day, beneath the foeman's frown,

He stands in Elgin's place,

Ambassador from Britain's crown,

And type of all her race.

SIR FRANCIS DOYLE. The Private of the Buffs.

Their's not to make reply,

Their's not to reason why,

Their's but to do and die.

TENNYSON. Charge of Light Brigade.
St. 2. ll. 5-7.

Why, soldiers, why
Should we be melancholy, boys?

Why, soldiers, why,
Whose business 'tis to die.

ANON.

Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that,
an' "Tommy, 'ow's yer soul?"

But it's "Thin red line of 'eroes" when
the drums begin to roll.

RUDYARD KIPLING. Tommy.

O it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that,
an' "Tommy, go away,"

But it's "Thank you, Mister Atkins,"
when the band begins to play.

Ibid. Tommy.

SONG.

Then from a neighbouring thicket the
mocking-bird, wildest of singers,
Swinging aloft on a willow-spray that
hung o'er the water, Shook from his little throat such floods
of delirious music

That the whole air and the woods and
the waves seemed silent to listen.

H. W. LONGFELLOW. Evangeline. Pt. ii.
2. ll. 133-6.

That's the wise thrush; he sings each
song twice over,

Lest you should think he never could
recapture

The first fine careless rapture.

Ibid. Home-Thoughts from Abroad. ll.

June's bridesman, poet o' the year,
Gladness on wings, the bobolink, is here;
Half-hid in tip-top apple-blossoms he
swings,

Or climbs against the breeze with quiv-
erin' wings,

Or givin' way to 't in a mock despair,
Runs down a brook o' laughter, thru'
the air.

LOWELL. The Biglow Papers. Ser. ii.
letter 6.

I think that life is not too long;

And therefore I determine,

That many people read a song

Who will not read a sermon.

PRÆD. Ballad of Brazenhead.

SONNET.

Scorn not the sonnet. Critic, you have frowned,

Mindless of its just honors; with this key

Shakespeare unlocked his heart.

WORDSWORTH. Scorn not the Sonnet.

With this same key
Shakespeare unlocked his heart? once more Did Shakespeare? If so, the less Shakespeare he!

R. BROWNING. House.

And when a damp Fell round the path of Milton, in his hand

The thing became a trumpet; whence
he blew

Soul-animating strains,—alas! too few.
WORDSWORTH. Scorn not the Sonnet.

Yon silvery billows breaking on the beach

Fall back in foam beneath the star-shine
clear,

The while my rhymes are murmuring
in your ear

A restless lore like that the billows
teach;

For on these sonnet-waves my soul
would reach

From its own depths, and rest within
you, dear,

As, through the billowy voices yearning
here,

Great nature strives to find a human
speech.

A sonnet is a wave of melody:
From heaving waters of the impassion'd
soul

A billow of tidal music one and whole Flows in the "octave"; then returning
free,

Its ebbing surges in the "sestet" roll
Back to the deeps of Life's tumultuous
sea.

THEODORE WATTS. *The Sonnet's Voice:
A Metrical Lesson by the Seashore.*

The Sonnet is a world, where feelings
caught

In webs of phantasy, combine and fuse

Their kindred elements 'neath mystic
dews

Shed from the ether round man's dwelling wrought;

Distilling heart's content, star-fragrance
fraught

With influences from the breathing
fires

Of heaven in everlasting endless
gyres

Enfolding and encircling orbs of
thought.

Our Sonnet's world hath two fixed hemi-
spheres:

This, where the sun with fierce strength
masculine

Pours his keen rays and bids the noon-
day shine;

That, where the moon and the stars,
concordant powers,

Shed milder rays, and daylight disappears

In low melodious music of still hours.
JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS. The Sonnet.
iii.

SOPHIST; SOPHISM.

Who shames a scribbler? Break one
cobweb through,

He spins the slight, self-pleasing thread
anew:

Destroy his fib, or sophistry, in vain,
The creature's at his dirty work again.
POPE. Prologue to the Satires. l. 89.

Here the self-torturing sophist, wild
Rousseau,

The apostle of affliction, he who threw Enchantment over passion, and from
woe

Wrung overwhelming eloquence, first
drew

The breath which made him wretched.
BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St.
77.

SORROW.

(See GRIEF; MISERY; MISFORTUNE.)

Constance. Oh! if thou teach me to believe this sorrow,

Teach thou this sorrow how to make me
die;

And let belief and life encounter so,
As doth the fury of two desperate men,
Which, in the very meeting, fall, and
die.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iii. Sc.
1. l. 99.

Richard. In wooing sorrow let's be brief,

Since, wedding it, there is such length
in grief.

Ibid. Richard II. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 93.

Hysterica passio, down, thou climbing
sorrow,

Thy element's below.

Ibid. King Lear. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 57.

Lear. Henceforth I'll bear
Affliction till it do cry out itself,
Enough, enough, and die.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6. l. 75.

Horatio. A countenance more in sorrow than in anger.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 232.

Do not drop in for an after-loss,
Ah, do not, when my heart hath 'scap'd
this sorrow,
Come in the rearward of a conquer'd
woe;
Give not a windy night a rainy morrow,
To linger out a purpos'd overthrow.

Ibid. Sonnet. xc.

The path of sorrow, and that path
alone,
Leads to the land where sorrow is unknown.

COWPER. To an Afflicted Protestant Lady.

Ah, what a warning for a thoughtless
man,
Could field or grove, could any spot of
earth,
Show to his eye an image of the
pangs
Which it hath witnessed,—render back
an echo
Of the sad steps by which it hath been trod!

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. vi.

Lift not the festal mask!—enough to
know,
No scene of mortal life but teems with mortal woe.

SIR W. SCOTT. Lord of the Isles. Canto ii. l.

I was not always a man of woe.

Ibid. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto i. St. 12

I stood in unimaginable trance
And agony that cannot be remembered.

COLERIDGE. Remorse. Act iv. Sc. 3.

A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn.

Ibid. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. vii.

Doch grosse Seelen dulden still.

Great souls suffer in silence.

SCHILLER. Don Carlos. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 52.

Meine Ruh ist hin,

Mein Herz ist schwer.

My peace is gone, my heart is
heavy.

GOETHE. Faust. Pt. i. l. 15.

To sorrow

I bade good-morrow

And thought to leave her far away behind;

But cheerly, cheerly,

She loves me dearly;

She is so constant to me and so kind.

KEATS. Endymion. Bk. iv.

Sorrow more beautiful than beauty's
self.

Ibid. Hyperion. Bk. iv.

Your sorrow, only sorrow's shade,
Keeps real sorrow far away.

TENNYSON. Margaret.

Comfort? comfort scorn'd of devils!
this is truth the poet sings,
That a sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things

Ibid. Locksley Hall.

[The poet is Dante, and the particular passage is one of the most famous in the
Divine Comedy (Inferno, Canto v., l. 121):

Nessun maggior dolore
Che ricordarsi del tempo felice
Nella miseria.

No greater grief than to remember days
Of joy when misery is at hand.

(CARY, trans.)

There is no greater sorrow
Than to be mindful of the happy time
In misery.

(LONGFELLOW, trans.)

Chaucer has the same thought:

For of fortunes sharpe adversite,
The worst kind of infortune is this,—
A man that hath been in prosperite,
And it remember whan it passed is.

Troilus and Cressida. Bk. iii. l. 1625.

Probably both Chaucer and Dante found
their inspiration in Boëthius:

In omne adversitate fortunæ infeliciissi-
mum genus est infortunii fuisse felicem.

In every reverse of fortune, the most unhappy condition of misfortune is to have known happiness.

De Consolatione Philosophiæ. ii. 4.]

Of joys departed,
Not to return, how painful the remembrance!

ROBERT BLAIR. The Grave. l. 109.

SOUL.

For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

New Testament. Matthew xvi. 26.

Yet stab at thee who will,
No stab the soul can kill!

SIR WALTER RALEIGH. The Farewell.

I have a soul that like an ample shield
Can take in all, and verge enough for
more.

DRYDEN. Don Sebastian. Act i. Sc. 1.

Give ample room and verge enough.

GRAY. The Bard. li. 1.

The soul, uneasy, and confined from
home,

Rests and expatiates in a life to come.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. 1. l. 97.

Or looks on heaven with more than
mortal eyes,

Bids his free soul expatiate in the skies,

Amid her kindred stars familiar roam,

Survey the region, and confess her home!

Ibid. Windsor Forest. l. 264.

Above the vulgar flight of common
souls.

ARTHUR MURPHY. Zenobia. Act v. Sc.
1. l. 154.

A charge to keep I have,

A God to glorify:

A never-dying soul to save

And fit it for the sky.

CHARLES WESLEY. Hymns. 318.

There was a little man and he had a
little soul;

And he said, "Little soul, let us try,
try, try."

MOORE. Little Man and Little Soul.

Those obstinate questionings

Of sense and outward things,

Fallings from us, vanishings,

Blank misgivings of a creature

Moving about in worlds not realized,

High instincts before which our mortal
nature

Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised.

WORDSWORTH. Ode on the Intimations of Immortality. St. 9.

For the gods approve

The depths and not the tumult of the
soul.

Ibid. Laodamia.

But who would force the soul, tilts with a straw

Against a champion cased in adamant.

Ibid. Ecclesiastical Sonnets. *Persecution
of the Scottish Covenanters.* Pt. iii. 7.

The soul of man is larger than the sky,
Deeper than ocean, or the abysmal dark
Of the unfathomed centre.

HARTLEY COLERIDGE. Poems. To Shakespeare.

And I have written three books on the
soul,

Proving absurd all written hitherto,

And putting us to ignorance again.

ROBERT BROWNING. Cleon.

Light flows our war of mocking words,
and yet,

Behold, with tears mine eyes are wet!

I feel a nameless sadness o'er me roll.

Yes, yes, we know that we can jest,

We know, we know that we can smile!

But there's a something in this breast,

To which thy light words bring no rest,

And thy gay smiles no anodyne;

Give me thy hand, and hush awhile,

And turn those limpid eyes on mine,

And let me read there, love! thy in-
most soul.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. The Buried Life.

'T is an awkward thing to play with
souls,

And matter enough to save one's own:

Yet think of my friend, and the burning coals:

We played with for bits of stone!

BROWNING. A Light Woman.

Yet still, from time to time, vague and
forlorn,

From the soul's subterranean depth up-
borne

As from an infinitely distant land,

Come airs, and floating echoes, and convey

A melancholy into all our day.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. The Buried Life.

SPEECH.

Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh.

New Testament. Matthew xii. 34.

[Frequently quoted in the Latin form from
the Vulgate:

Ex abundancia cordis os loquitur.]

My tongue will tell the anger of my heart;
O, else my heart, concealing it, will break.

SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew.
Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 00.

Quid de quoque viro, et cui dicas,
æpe caveto.

Beware, if there is room
For warning, what you mention, and to whom.

HORACE. Epistles 1, 18, 68. (CONINGTON,
trans.)

If you your lips would keep from slips
Five things observe with care;
To whom you speak, of whom you speak,
And how, and when, and where.

ANON.

[Quoted by W. E. Norris in Thirty Hall.
Vol. i. p. 315.]

The windy satisfaction of the tongue.
POPE. Odyssey of Homer. Bk. iv. l. 1092.

Then he will talk—good gods, how he
will talk!

NATHANIEL LEE. Alexander the Great.
Act 1. Sc. 1.

Mend your speech a little,
Lest it may mar your fortunes.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act 1. Sc. 1.
l. 96.

I want that glib and oily art,
To speak and purpose not.

Ibid. King Lear. Act 1. Sc. 1. l. 228.

A still-soliciting eye, and such a tongue
As I am glad I have not.

Ibid. King Lear. Act 1. Sc. 1. l. 234.

Bid me discourse, I will enchant thine
ear.

Ibid. Venus and Adonis.

Alonso. I cannot too much muse Such shapes, such gesture, and such sound, expressing (Although they want the use of tongue)
a kind

Of excellent dumb discourse.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 36.

With thee conversing I forget all
time.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 639.

With thee conversing I forget the way.
GAY. Trivia. Bk. ii. l. 480.

Prince above princes, gently hast thou told

Thy message, which might else in telling wound

And in performing end us.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. xi. l. 298.

But far more numerous was the herd of such,
Who think too little, and who talk too
much.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i.
l. 533.

They never taste who always drink;
They always talk who never think.

PRIOR. Upon a Passage in Scaligeriana.

They only babble who practise not reflection.

SHERIDAN. Pizarro. Act i. Sc. 1.

But still his tongue ran on, the less
Of weight it bore, with greater ease.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto ii. l.
443.

They would talk of nothing but high life, and high-lived company, with other fashionable topics, such as pictures, taste, Shakespeare, and the musical glasses.

GOLDSMITH. The Vicar of Wakefield.
Ch. ix.

Speech, thought's canal! speech,
thought's criterion, too!

Thought in the mine, may come forth
gold or dross;

When coin'd in words, we know its real
worth.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 469.

Words learned by rote a parrot may
rehearse,

But talking is not always to converse;
Not more distinct from harmony divine
The constant creaking of a country sign.

COWPER. Conversation. l. 7.

La parole a été donné à l'homme
pour déguiser sa pensée.

Speech has been given to man to conceal his thoughts.

[A famous mot currently attributed to Talleyrand during his lifetime. After Talleyrand's death, Harel, the famous fabri-cator of mots which he attributed to the illustrious, claimed that he himself had put this phrase into Talleyrand's mouth. In any event, the phrase was not original. The verbal form, with the change of a single word, is borrowed from Molière:—

La parole a été donnée à l'homme pour
exprimer ses pensées.

Le Mariage Forcé. Sc. v.

It will be seen that the mere substitution
of "déguiser" (to disguise) for "exprimer"
(to express) converts a truism into a paradox.

But the paradox itself was stolen, as well as its verbal clothing. Voltaire, in his satiric dialogue, Le Chapon et la Poularde, written in 1766, makes his capon complain of the treachery of men:

Il<sup>s</sup> ne se servent de la pensée que pour autoriser leurs injustices, et emploient les paroles que pour déguiser leurs pensées.

Men use thought only to justify their wrong doings, and employ words only to conceal their thoughts.

Oeuvres Complètes. Vol. xxix., p. 83, ed. 1822.

Seven years previous Goldsmith had said much the same thing:

The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them.

The Bee, No. 3. Oct. 20, 1759.

Now, in this same year, 1759, there appeared a posthumous collection of "Samuel Butler's Remains," which Goldsmith reviewed in the Critical Review for July 1, 1759. It is not impossible that Goldsmith's eye may have fallen upon the following passage:

He who does not make his words rather serve to conceal than discover the sense of his heart, deserves to have it pulled out like a traitor's, and strewn publicly to the rabble.

BUTLER. Remains. Vol. ii. p. 25.

O monstrous, dead, unprofitable world,
That thou canst hear, and hearing, hold
thy way!

A voice oracular hath peal'd to-day,
To-day a hero's banner is unfurl'd.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Written in Emerson's Essays.

Goldsmith may also have been familiar with these lines of Young's:

Where Nature's end of language is declin'd,
And men talk only to conceal the mind.

Love of Fame. Satire ii. l. 207.

Likewise, both Goldsmith and Young may have read one or both of these passages:

In short, this seems to be the true inward judgment of all our politic sages, that speech was given to the ordinary sort of men whereby to communicate their mind, but to wise men whereby to conceal it.

ROBERT SOUTH. Sermon Preached in Westminster Abbey. April 30, 1676.

Speech was made to open man to man, and not to hide him; to promote commerce, and not betray it.

LLOYD. State Worthies. (1665; edited by Whitworth). Vol. i. p. 503.

A far-off likeness to the thought may be found in the following quotations:

It oft falls out,

To have what we would have, we speak not what we mean.

Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 4.

Perspicite tecum tacitus quid quisque loquatur:

Sermo hominum mores et celat et indicat idem.

Consider in silence whatever any one says: speech both conceals and reveals the inner soul of man.

DIONYSIUS CATO. Distich. iv. 20.

It is easy for men to talk one thing and think another.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 322.

Who dares think one thing, and another tell,

My heart detests him as the gates of hell.

POPE. The Iliad of Homer. Bk. ix. l. 412.

Thought is deeper than all speech;

Feeling deeper than all thought;

Souls to souls can never teach

What unto themselves was taught.

C. P. CRANCH. Gnosis.

God's great gift of speech abused

Makes thy memory confused.

TENNYSON. A Dirge.

In after-dinner talk,

Across the walnuts and the wine.

Ibid. The Miller's Daughter. St. 4.

And not to serve for a table-talk.

MONTAIGNE.

Let it serve for table-talk.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 5.

That large utterance of the early gods!

KEATS. Hyperion. Bk. i.

Thou mindest me of gentle folks,

Old gentle-folks are they,

Thou sayst an undisputed thing

In such a solemn way.

HOLMES. The Katydid.

And when you stick on conversation's burrs,

Don't strew your pathway with those dreadful urs.

Ibid. A Rhymed Lesson: Urania.

Who hath given man speech? or who hath set therein

A thorn for peril and a snare for sin?

A. C. SWINBURNE. Atalanta in Calydon (Chorus).

SPENSER, EDMUND.

Here nigh to Chaucer, Spenser, stands thy hearse,

Still nearer standst thou to him in thy verse

Whilst thou didst live, lived English
poetry;
Now thou art dead, it fears that it shall
die.

ANON. Epitaph on Spenser.

[The quatrain is preserved in William Camden's Reges Reginae Nobiles et alii in Ecclesia Collegiata B. Petri Westmonasterii Sepulti usque ad annum, 1606.]

Discouraged, scorned, his writings vilified,

Poorly—poor man—he lived; poorly—
poor man—he died.

PHINEAS FLETCHER. The Purple Island.
iv. 19.

The nobility of the Spencers has been illustrated and enriched by the trophies
of Marlborough, but I exhort them to consider the Faerie Queene as the most precious jewel of their coronet.

EDWARD GIBBON. Memoirs. p. 3.

A silver trumpet Spenser blows,
And as its martial notes to silence flee,
From a virgin chorus flows

A hymn in praise of spotless Chastity.
'Tis still Wild! warblings from the Æolian lyre

Enchantment softly breathe, and tremblingly expire.

KEATS. Ode to Apollo. St. 6.

Spenser to me, whose deep conceit is such
As passing all conceit needs no defence.

RICHARD BARNFIELD. To His Friend,
Master R. I.

[This couplet is also in Passionate Pilgrim.
St. 6.]

Like Spenser ever in thy Fairy Queene, Whose like (for deep conceit) was never
scene:

Crowned mayst thou unto thy more re-
nowne

(As King of Poets) with a Lawrell Croune.

Ibid. Remembrance of Some English
Poets.

Old Spenser next, warmed with poetic
rage,
In ancient tales amused a barbarous age.

But now the mystic tale that pleased of
yore

Can charm an understanding age no
more.

. . .

We view well-pleased at distance all the sights

Of arms and palfreys, battle-fields and fights

And damsels in distress and courteous
knights;

But, when we look too near, the shades
decay,

And all the pleasing landscape fades
away.

JOSEPH ADDISON. An Account of the Greatest English Poets.

SPIDER.

There webs were spread of more than
common size,

And half-starved spiders prayed on half-
starved flies.

CHURCHILL. The Prophecy of Famine.
l. 327.

The spider's touch, how exquisitely fine!
Feels at each thread, and lives along the
line.

POPE. Essay on Man. Es. l. 1. 217.

Much like a subtle spider, which doth sit
In middle of her web, which spreadeth
wide:

If aught do touch the utmost thread of it,
She feels it instantly on every side.

SIR JOHN DAVIES. The Immortality of
the Soul. Sec. xviii. Feeling.

Or almost like a spider, who, confin'd
In her web's centre, shakt with every winde,
Moves in an instant if the buzzing flye
Stir but a string of her lawn canaple.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Workes.
First Week. Sixth Day. JOHN SYL-VESTER, trans.

Our souls sit close and silently within,
And their own web from their own entrails
spin;

And when eyes meet far off, our sense is
such,

That, spider-like, we feel the tenderest
touch.

DRYDEN. Marriage à la Mode. Act ii.
Sc. 1.

"Will you walk into my parlour?" said
a spider to a fly,

"'Tis the prettiest little parlour that ever you did spy."

MARY HOWITT. The Spider and the Fly.

SPIRE.

Who taught that heaven-directed
spire to rise?

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 261.

How the tall temples, as to meet their
gods,
Ascend the skies!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vi. l. 781.

Ye swelling hills and spacious plains!
Besprent from shore to shore with steeple
towers,

And spires whose "silent finger points
to heaven."

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. vi. l. 17.

[The quotation marks are an acknowledgment of indebtedness to Coleridge.]

An instinctive taste teaches men to build their churches in flat countries, with spire steeples, which, as they cannot be referred to any other object, point as with silent
finger to the sky and star.

The Friend. Sec. i. No. 14.]

At leaving even the most unpleasant
people

And places, one keeps looking at the steeple.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 14.

I waited for the train at Coventry;
I hung with grooms and porters on the
bridge;

To watch the three tall spires; and
there I shaped

The city's ancient legend into this.

TENNYSON. Godiva.

Full seven-score years our city's pride—
The comely Southern spire—

Has cast its shadow, and defied

The storm, the foe, the fire;
Sad is the sight our eyes behold;

Woe to the three-hilled town,
When through the land the tale is told—

The brave "Old South" is down.

O. W. HOLMES. *An Appeal for the Old
South Church*.

SPIRIT.

Aërial spirits, by great Jove design'd
To be on earth the guardians of mankind:

Invisible to mortal eyes they go,
And mark our actions, good or bad,
below:

The immortal spies with watchful care
preside,

And thrice ten thousand round their charges glide.

HESIOD. Works and Days. l. 164.

Millions of spiritual creatures walk the
earth
Unseen, both when we wake and when we
sleep.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 677.

Unnumber'd spirits round thee fly,
The light militia of the lower sky.

POPE. The Rape of the Lock. Canto i. l.
41.

Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. l.
153.

Ariel. Pardon, master:

I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 298.

Glendower. I can tell spirits from the vasty deep.

Hotspur. Why, so can I; or so can any man; but will they come, if you
do call for them?

Ibid. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 52.

When some were saying that if Caesar should march against the city they could not see what forces there were to resist him, Pompey replied with a smile, bidding them
be in no concern, "for whenever I stamp
my foot in any part of Italy there will rise up forces enough in an instant, both horse
and foot."

PLUTARCH. Life of Pompey.

Of calling shapes, and beck'ning shadows dire

And airy tongues that syllable men's names.

MILTON. Comus. l. 207.

Spirits when they please

Can either sex assume, or both; so soft
And uncompounded is their essence
pure,

Not tied or manacled with joint or limb,
Nor founded on the brittle strength of
bones,

Like cumbrous flesh; but in what shape
they choose,

Dilated or condensed, bright or obscure,
Can execute their aëry purposes,

And works of love or enmity fulfil.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 423.

Spirits that live throughout

Vital in every part, not as frail man
In entrails, heart or head, liver or reins,
Cannot but by annihilating die;

Nor in their liquid texture mortal
wound
Receive, no more than can the fluid
air:
All heart they live, all head, all eye, all
ear,
All intellect, all sense; and as they please
They limb themselves, and color, shape,
or size
Assume, as likes them best, condense or rare.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. l. 344.

Take, O boatman, thrice thy fee,—
Take, I give it willingly;
For, invisible to thee,
Spirits twain have crossed with me.
UHLAND. The Passage. Edinburgh Review. October, 1832. (SARAH AUSTIN,
trans.)

The stranger at my fireside cannot see
The forms I see, nor hear the sounds I
hear;
He but perceives what is; while unto me
All that has been is visible and clear.
LONGFELLOW. Haunted House.

If only in dreams may man be fully
blest,
Is heav'n a dream? Is she I clasp'd a
dream?
Or stood she here even now where dew-
drops gleam
And miles of furze shine golden down
the West?
I seem to clasp her still—still on my
breast
Her bosom beats,—I see the blue eyes
beam:—
I think she kiss'd these lips, for now
they seem Scarce mine: so hallow'd of the lips
they press'd!
Yon thicket's breath—can that be
eglantine?
Those birds—can they be morning's
choristers?
Can this be earth? Can these be banks
of furze?
Like burning bushes fir'd of God they
shine!
I seem to know them, though this body
of mine
Pass'd into spirit at the touch of hers!
THEODORE WATTS. The First Kiss.

SPRING.

The seson pricketh every gentil herte,
And maketh him out of his slepe to sterter.

Cæsar. The ides of March are come.
Soothsayer. Ay, Cæsar; but not gone.
SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 1.

Cæsar said to the soothsayer, "The ides
of March are come"; who answered him calmly, "Yes, they are come, but they are not past."
PLUTARCH. Life of Cæsar.

It was a lover, and his lass,
With a hey, and a ho, and a hey
nonino,
That o'er the green corn-field did pass,
In spring-time, the only pretty ring
time,
When birds do sing, hey ding a ding,
ding;
Sweet lovers love the spring.

2. l. 43.

When proud-pied April, dressed in all
his trim,
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything.
SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet xcvi.

Unruly blasts wait on the tender
spring.

Ibid. Rape of Lucrece.

Sweet spring, full of sweet days and
roses,

A box where sweets compacted lie.
GEORGE HERBERT. Virtue.

Now the bright morning-star, Day's
harbinger,
Comes dancing from the east, and leads
with her
The flowery May, who, from her green
lap, throws
The yellow cowslip, and the pale primrose.

Hail, bounteous May, that dost inspire
Mirth and youth, and warm desire!
Woods and groves are of thy dressing;
Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing.
Thus we salute thee with our early song,
And welcome thee and wish thee long.
MILTON. Song on May Morning.

Come, gentle Spring, ethereal mildness,
come;
And from the bosom of your dropping
cloud,
While music wakes around, veiled in a shower
Of shadowing roses, on our plains descend.

GOLDSMITH. The Traveller. 1. 172.

Now spring returns: but not to me returns

The vernal joy my better years have
known;
Dim in my breast life's dying taper
burns,
And all the joys of life with health
are flown.

BYRON. Lara. Canto ii. St. 2.

Spring would be but gloomy weather,
If we had nothing else but Spring.
T. MOORE. Juvenile Poems. To ———.

The bud is in the bough, and the leaf is
in the bud,
And Earth's beginning now in her veins
to feel the blood,
Which, warmed by summer suns in the
alembic of the vine,
From her founts will overrun in a ruddy
gush of wine.
The perfume and the bloom that shall
decorate the flower,
Are quickening in the gloom of their
subterranean bower;
And the juices meant to feed trees,
vegetables, fruits,
Unerringly proceed to their pre-
appointed roots.

HORACE SMITH. First of March.

BISHOP HEBER. Hymn for Seventh Sunday after Trinity.

In the spring a livelier iris changes on
the burnish'd dove;

In the spring a young man's fancy
lightly turns to thoughts of love.

TENNYSON. Locksley Hall. 1. 19.

And even into my inmost ring

A pleasure I discern'd,
Like those blind motions of the Spring,
That show the year is turn'd.

Ibid. The Talking Oak.

You must wake and call me early, call
me early, mother dear,
To-morrow 'll be the happiest time of
all the glad New Year;
Of all the glad New Year, mother, the
maddest, merriest day;
For I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother,
I'm to be Queen o' the May.

Ibid. The May-Queen. St. i.

SPY.

Then she rode back, clothed on with chastity :
 And one low churl, compact of thankless earth,
 The fatal byword of all years to come.
 Boring a little augur-hole in fear,
 Peep'd—but his eyes, before they had their will
 Were shrivell'd into darkness in his head,
 And dropt before him. So the Powers,
 who wait
 On noble deeds, cancell'd a sense mis-used.

TENNYSON. Godiva.

STAGE.

(See THEATRE.)

Jaques. All the world's a stage,
 And all the men and women merely players.
 They have their exits and their entrances ;
 And one man in his time plays many parts,
 His acts being seven ages. At first the infant, Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.
 And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel
 And shining morning face, creeping like snail Unwillingly to school. And then the lover, Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
 Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a soldier,
 Full of strange oaths and bearded like the bard ;
 Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel,
 Seeking the bubble reputation
 Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the justice,
 In fair round belly with good capon lined,
 With eyes severe and beard of formal cut,
 Full of wise saws and modern instances ;

And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
 Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloon,
 With spectacles on nose and pouch on side ;
 His youthful hose, well saved, a world too wide
 For his shrunk shank ; and his big manly voice,
 Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
 And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
 That ends this strange eventful history,
 Is second childishness and mere oblivion,
 Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. l. 139.

I take the world to be but as a stage,
 Where net-maskt men do play their personage.

DU BARTAS. Dialogue Between Heraclitus and Democritus.

Pythagoras said, that this world was like a stage
 Whereon many play their parts : the lookers-on the sage Philosophers are, saith he, whose part is to learn
 The manners of all nations, and the good from the bad to discern.

R. EDWARDS. Damon and Pithias.

Is it not a noble farce, wherein kings, republics, and emperors have for so many ages played their parts, and to which the whole vast universe serves for a theatre ?

MONTAIGNE. Essays : Of the Most Excellent Men.

The world's a stage on which all parts are played

THOMAS MIDDLETON. A Game at Chess. Act v. Sc. 1.

Bassanio. I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano ;
 A stage, where every man must play a part,
 And mine a sad one.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 76.

Duke S. Thou seest, we are not all alone unhappy ;

The world's a theatre, the earth a stage
 Which God and Nature do with actors fill.

THOMAS HEYWOOD. Applying for Actors.

The world's a stage where God's omnipotence,
His justice, knowledge, love, and providence
Do act the parts.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Dayes.
First week, First day.

Life's little stage is a small eminence,
Inch-high the grave above.
YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 360.

The world's a stage,—as Shakspeare said
one day:

The stage a world—was what he meant to
say.

O. W. HOLMES. A Prologue.

The growing drama has outgrown such
toys

Of simulated stature, face, and speech :
It also peradventure may outgrow
The simulation of the painted scene, Boards, actors, prompters, gaslight, and
costume,

And take for a worthier stage the soul
itself,

Its shifting fancies and celestial lights,
With all its grand orchestral silences
To keep the pauses of its rhythmic sounds.

MES BROWNING. Aurora Leigh. Bk. v.

Where they do agree on the stage,
their unanimity is wonderful.

SHERIDAN. The Critic. Act ii. Sc. 2.

Lo where the stage, the poor, degraded
stage,

Holds its warped mirror to a gaping
age.

CHARLES SPRAGUE. Curiosity.

STARS.

These blessed candles of the night.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
v. Sc. 1. l. 220.

There's husbandry in heaven ;
Their candles are all out.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 5.

Lorenzo. Look, how the floor of
heaven

Is thick inlay'd with patines of bright
gold ;

There's not the smallest orb, which thou
behold'st,

But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-ey'd cheru-
bims.

Such harmony is in immortal souls ;
But, while this muddy vesture of
decay

Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear
it.

SHAKESPEARE. The Merchant of Venice.
Act v. Sc. 1. l. 58.

From little signs, like little stars,
Whose faint impression on the sense
The very looking straight at mars,
Or only seen by confluence.

COVENTRY PATMORE. The Angel in the House.

You meaner beauties of the night,
That poorly satisfy our eyes
More by your number than your light ;
You common people of the skies,—
What are you when the moon shall
rise ?

SIR H. WOTTON. On His Mistress, the Queen of Bohemia.

Planets and the pale populace of Heaven.
R. BROWNING. Balaustion's Adventure.

As night the life-inclining stars best
shows,

So lives obscure the starriest souls disclose.

GEORGE CHAPMAN. Epilogue to Translations.

Fairest of stars, last in the train of night,
If better thou belong not to the dawn.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 166.

The starry cope

Of heaven.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 992.

Hither, as to their fountain, other
stars

Repairing, in their golden urns draw
light.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 00.

A broad and ample road, whose dust is
gold,

And pavement stars,—as stars to thee
appear

Seen in the galaxy, that milky way
Which nightly as a circling zone thou
seest

Powder'd with stars.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 00.

Thus some, who have the stars survey'd,
Are ignorantly led

To think those glorious lamps were made

To light Tom Fool to bed.

Rowe. On a Fine Woman Who Had a Dull Husband. iv.

Roll on, ye stars! exult in youthful prime,

Mark with bright curves the printless steps of time;

Near and more near your beamy cars approach

And lessening orbs on lessening orbs encroach;

Flowers of the sky! ye, too, to age must yield,

Frail as your silken sisters of the field! Star after star from heaven's high arch shall rush,

Suns sink on suns, and systems systems crush,

Headlong, extinct, to one dark centre fall,

And death, and night, and chaos, mingle all!

Till o'er the wreck, emerging from the storm,

Immortal nature lifts her changeful form,

Mounts from her funeral pyre on wings of flame,

And soars and shines, another and the same.

ERASMUS DARWIN. Economy of Vegetation. Canto iv.

When twilight dews are falling soft

Upon the rosy sea, love,

I watch the star whose beam so oft

Has lighted me to thee, love.

THOMAS MOORE. When Twilight Dews.

Her blue eyes sought the west afar,

For lovers love the western star.

SCOTT. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto iii.

With battlements that on their restless fronts

Bore stars.

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. ii.

The stars are mansions built by Nature's hand,

And, haply, there the spirits of the blest dwell, clothed in radiance, their immortal vest.

Ibid. Sonnets. Pt. ii. Sonnet 25.

But he is risen, a later star of dawn.

WORDSWORTH. A Morning Exercise.

Ye stars! which are the poetry of Heaven,

If in your bright leaves we would read the fate

Of men and empires,—'tis to be forgiven, That in our aspirations to be great,

Our destinies o'erleap their mortal state, And claim a kindred with you; for ye

are

A beauty and a mystery, and create In us such love and reverence from afar,

That fortune, fame, power, life, have named themselves a star.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 88.

This is the excellent foppery of the world! that, when we are sick in fortune (often the surfeit of our own behaviour) we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars; as if we were villains by necessity; fools by heavenly compulsion; knaves, thieves, and treachers by spherical predominance; drunkards, liars, and adulterers by an enforced obedience of planetary influence; and all that we are evil in by a divine thrusting on. An admirable evasion of man, to lay his goatish disposition to the charge of a star!

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act i. Sc. 2. 1. 00.

The sentinel stars set their watch in the sky.

CAMPBELL. The Soldier's Dream.

The starres, bright centinels of the skies.

HABINGTON. Castara: Dialogue between Night and Araphel.

The stars that have most glory, have no rest.

S. DANIEL. Civil War. Bk. viii. civ.

Silently one by one, in the infinite meadows of heaven,

Blossomed the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels.

LONGFELLOW. Evangeline. Pt. i. iii. 1. 83.

Star to star vibrates light; may soul to soul

Strike thro' a finer element of her own.

TENNYSON. Aylmer's Field.

Many a night from yonder ivied casement, ere I went to rest,

Did I look on great Orion sloping slowly to the west.

Ibid. Locksley Hall. St. 4.

And you, ye stars,
Who slowly begin to marshal,
As of old, in the fields of heaven,
Your distant, melancholy lines!
MATTHEW ARNOLD. Empedocles on Etna.

STATE.

It seems to me that only Themistocles, of all men, has truthfully, or at any rate carefully, shown briefly what are the words which the poet Alcaeus sang long ago, for many receiving them, one from another, they afterwards came to be. Nor stones nor timbers nor the art of building forms cities, but whenever and wherever there may be found men ready to defend themselves, there is the city and the fortress.

ARISTIDES. Orations (Jebb's edition). Vol. ii.

[This probably gives the sense of what the ancients considered one of the greatest odes of Alcaeus. But a single line of the original has survived—

Fighting men are the city's fortress.

It was the version given by Aristides which inspired Sir William Jones:

What constitutes a State?

Not high-raised battlement, or labored mound,

Thick wall or moated gate;

Not cities fair, with spires and turrets crowned,

No; men, high-minded men,

Men who their duties know,
But know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain

And sovereign law, that state's collected will,

O'er thrones and globes elate,
Sits empress, crowning good, repressing ill.
Ode in Imitation of Alcaeus.

L' état !—c'est moi !

The state !—it is I !

Ascribed to LOUIS XIV.

Marcellus. Something is rotten in the state of Denmark.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 90.

States, as great engines, move slowly.

BACON. Advancement of Learning. Bk ii.

What war could ravish, commerce could bestow,

And he returned a friend, who came a foe.

Converse and love, mankind may strongly draw,
When love was liberty, and nature law.
Thus states were formed; the name of king unknown,
Till common interest placed the sway in one.

'Twas virtue only (or in arts or arms,
Diffusing blessings, or averting harms),
The same which in a sire the sons obey'd,

A prince the father of a people made.

POPE. Essay on Man.

A thousand years scarce serve to form a state;

An hour may lay it in the dust.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 84.

Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!

Sail on, O Union, strong and great!

Humanity with all its fears,

With all the hopes of future years,

Is hanging breathless on thy fate!

LONGFELLOW. The Building of the Ship. l. 367.

STATURE.

Lear. Ay, every inch a king.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act. iv. Sc. 6. l. 114.

Her stature tall,—I hate a dumpy woman.

BYRON. Don Juan. Ca. i. St. 61.

Whose little body lodged a mighty mind.

POPE. The Iliad of Homer. Bk. v. l. 999.

STORM.

And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.

New Testament. Matthew vii. 25.

And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

Ibid. Matthew vii. 27.

Dorion, ridiculing the description of a tempest in the "Nautilus" of Timo-theus, said that he had seen a more formidable storm in a boiling saucepan.

ATHENAEUS. The Deipnosophists. viii 19.

[Hence the proverb, "a tempest in a teapot."]

Why does pouring oil on the sea make it clear and calm? Is it for that the winds, slipping the smooth oil, have no force, nor cause any waves?

PLUTARCH. Natural Questions. ix.

Remember to throw into the sea the oil which I give to you, when straightway the winds will abate, and a calm and smiling sea will accompany you throughout your voyage.

BEDE. Ecclesiastical History. Bk. iii. Ch. xv.

[Hence the expression, "To throw oil on troubled waters."]

The mariner of old said to Neptune in a great tempest, "O God! thou mayest save me if thou wilt, and if thou wilt thou mayest destroy me; but whether or no, I will steer my rudder true."

MONTAIGNE. Essays: Of Glory.

I have seen tempests, when the scolding winds

Have riv'd the knotty oaks, and I have seen

The ambitious ocean swell and rage and foam,

To be exalted with the threat'ning clouds,

But never till to-night, never till now,
Did I go through a tempest dropping fire.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 5.

Lear. Blow winds and crack your cheeks! rage! blow!

You cataracts and hurricanes, spout
Till you have drenched our steeples.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. i.

I saw him beat the surges under him,
And ride upon their backs; he trod the water,

Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted

The surge most swoln that met him: his bold head

'Bove the contentious waves he kept,
and oar'd

Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke

To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd,

As stooping to relieve him: I not doubt
He came alive to land.

SHAKESPEARE. The Tempest. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 114.

Alonzo. O, it is monstrous! monstrous!

Methought the billows spoke, and told me of it;

The winds did sing it to me; and the thunder,

That deep and dreadful organ-pipe, pronounced

The name of Prosper; it did bass my trespass,

Therefore my son i' the ooze is bedded; and

I'll seek him deeper than e'er plummet sounded

And with him there lie mudded.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 95.

'T was when the sea was roaring

With hollow blasts of wind,

A damsel lay deploring,

All on a rock reclin'd.

GAY. The What d'ye call it. Act ii. Sc. 8.

Come as the winds come, when

Forests are rended;

Come as the waves come, when

Navies are stranded.

SCOTT. Pibroch of Donald Dhu.

Come hither, hither, my little page!

Why dost thou weep and wail?

Or dost thou dread the billows' rage,

Or tremble at the gale?

But dash the tear-drop from thine eye;

Our ship is swift and strong:

Our fleetest falcon scarce can fly

More merrily along.

BYRON. Childe Harold. St. 13.

Come hither, come hither, my little daughter

And do not tremble so.

This ship can weather the stoutest gale

That ever wind did blow.

LONGFELLOW. The Wreck of the Hesperus.

The sky is changed!—and such a change! O night,

And storm and darkness, ye are wondrous strong,

Yet lovely in your strength, as is the
light
Of a dark eye in woman! Far along,
From peak to peak, the rattling crags
among Leaps the live thunder! Not from
one lone cloud,
But every mountain now hath found
a tongue,
And Jura answers, through her misty
shroud,
Back to the joyous Alps, who call to her aloud!

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 92.

And this is in the night:—Most glorious night!
Thou wert not sent for slumber! let
me be
A sharer in thy fierce and far delight,—
A portion of the tempest and of thee!
How the lit lake shines, a phosphoric
sea,
And the big rain comes dancing to
the earth!
And now again 'tis black,—and now,
the glee
Of the loud hills shakes with its
mountain-mirth,
As if they did rejoice o'er a young
earthquake's birth.

Ibid. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto
iii. St. 93.

A strong nor'wester's blowing, Bill!
Hark! don't you hear it roar now?
Lord help 'em, how I pity them
Unhappy folks on shore now!

WILLIAM PITT. The Sailor's Consolation.

O pilot! 'tis a fearful night,
There's danger on the deep.

THOMAS HAYNES BAYLY. The Pilot.

Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!

O. W. HOLMES. Old Ironsides.

The beating of her restless heart
Still sounding through the storm.

Ibid. The Steamboat.

[Emerson misquotes and improves on Holmes:

The pulses of her iron heart
Go beating through the storm.
Society and Solitude: Civilization.]

STRENGTH.

Isabella. Oh, it is excellent
To have a giant's strength; but it is tyrannous

To use it as a giant.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 2. l. 108.

Oh fear not in a world like this,
And thou shalt know ere long,
Know how sublime a thing it is
To suffer and be strong.

LONGFELLOW. The Light of Stars.

One still strong man in a blatant land,
Whatever they call him, what care I,
Aristocrat, democrat, autocrat—one
Who can rule and dare not lie.

TENNYSON. Maud. Pt. i. X. St. 5.

STUDY.

(See LEARNING.)

Pythias once, scoffing at Demosthenes, said that his arguments smelt of the lamp.

PLUTARCH. Life of Demosthenes.

Whence is thy learning? Hath thy toil
O'er books consumed the midnight oil?

GAY. Fables. Introduction.

There is no other Royal path which leads to geometry.

EUCLID to PTOLEMY I. See Proclus' Commentaries on Euclid's Elements. Bk.
ii. Ch. iv.

Biron. What is the end of study?
Let me know?

King. Why, that to know, which else
we should not know.

Biron. Things hid and barr'd, you mean, from common sense?

King. Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost.
Act i. Sc. 1. l. 55.

[See under SCIENCE.]

Tranio. Mi perdonate, gentle master
mine,
I am in all affected as yourself;
Glad that you thus continue your resolve

To suck the sweets of sweet philosophy.
Only, good master, while we do admire
This virtue and this moral discipline,
Let's be no stoics, nor no stocks I pray;

Or so devote to Aristotle's checks,
 As Ovid be an outcast quite abjured :
 Talk logic with acquaintance that you
 have,
 And practise rhetoric in your common
 talk :
 Music and poesy use to quicken you :
 The mathematics and the metaphysics
 Fall to them as you find your stomach
 serves you :
 No profit grows where is no pleasure
 ta'en ;—
 In brief, Sir, study what you most affect.
 SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew. Act
 i. Sc. 1. l. 21.

It seems to me (said she) that you are
 in some brown study.

JOHN LYLY. Euphues. p. 80.

We spent them not in toys, in lusts, or
 wine,

But search of deep philosophy,
 Wit, eloquence, and poetry ;
 Arts which I lov'd, for they, my friend,
 were thine.

COWLEY. *On the Death of Mr. William
 Harvey*.

Learning by study must be won ;
 'Twas ne'er entail'd from son to son.

GAY. Fables. The Pack Horse and Carrier.
 l. 41.

STUPIDITY.

Peter was dull ; he was at first
 Dull,—Oh, so dull—so very dull !

Whether he talked, wrote, or rehearsed—

Still with this dulness was he cursed—
 Dull—beyond all conception—dull.

SHELLEY. Peter Bell the Third. Pt. vii.
 xi.

Against stupidity the very gods
 Themselves contend in vain.

SCHILLER. The Maid of Orleans. Act iii.
 Sc. 6.

La faute en est aux dieux, qui la
 firent si bête.

The fault rests with the gods, who have made her so stupid.

GRESSET. Mechant. ii. 7.

Schad' um die Leut'! Sind sonst wackre
 Brüder.

Aber das denkt, wie ein Seifensieder.

A pity about the people! they are brave enough comrades, but they have heads like a soapboiler's.

SCHILLER. Wallenstein's Lager. xl. 347.

STYLE.

It is most true, stylus virum arguit,—
 our style bewrays us.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. *Demo-
 critus to the Reader*.

Le style est l'homme même.

The style is the man himself.

BUFFŒ. *Discours de Réception (Recueil de
 l'Académie, 1750)*.

Style is the dress of thoughts.

CHESTERFIELD. Letters.

Dress covers the mortal body and adorns
 it, but style is the vehicle of the spirit.

SYDNEY SMITH. *Letter to Miss G. Har-
 court, 1842*.

Master, alike in speech and song,
 Of Fame's great antiseptic,—style.
 LOWELL. To Holmes on his Birthday. 1884.

SUCCESS.

Success the mark no mortal wit,
 Or surest hand, can always hit.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l. 879.

What though success will not attend on
 all,

Who bravely dares must sometimes risk
 a fall.

SMOLLETT. Advice. l. 207.

'Tis not in mortals to command success ;
 But we'll do more, Sempronius : we'll deserve it.

ADDISON. Cato. Act i. Sc. 2.

'Tis man's to fight, but Heaven's to give
 success.

POPE. Iliad of Homer. Bk. vi. l. 427.

Success, a sort of suicide,
 Is ruin'd by success.

YOUNG. Resignation. Pt. ii.

The true touchstone of desert—success.

BYRON. Marino Faliero. Act i. Sc. 2.

They who strive
 With Fortune, win or weary her at last.
Ibid. Werner. Act i. Sc. 1.

Born for success he seemed,
With grace to win, with heart to hold,
With shining gifts that took all eyes.

EMERSON. In Memoriam.

God will estimate
Success one day.

R. BROWNING. Prince Hohenstiel-Schwangau.

SUICIDE.

(See DEATH.)

Hamlet. O that this too too-solid flesh
would melt,

Thaw, and resolve itself into a dew!
Or that the Everlasting had not fixed
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter!

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 129.

Hamlet. To sleep! perchance to dream:
ay, there's the rub;

For in that sleep of death what dreams
may come,

When we have shuffled off this mortal
coil,

Must give us pause: there's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life;

For who would bear the whips and
scorns of time,

Th' oppressor's wrong, the proud man's
contumely,

The pangs of despised love, the law's
delay,

The insolence of office, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy
takes,

When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? Who would far-
dels bear,

To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after
death,—

The undiscovered country, from whose
bourn

No traveller returns,—puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear those ills we
have

Than fly to others that we know not of?

Thus, conscience does make cowards of
us all;

And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of
thought;

And enterprises of great pith and moment,

With this regard their currents turn
awry,

And lose the name of action.—Soft you
now!

The fair Ophelia! Nymph, in thy ori-sons

Be all my sins remember'd.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1.
l. 65.

As, to behold desert a beggar born,
And needy nothing trimm'd in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
And gilded honor shamefully misplaced,
And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
And strength by limping sway disabled,
And art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly (doctor-like) controlling skill,
And simple truth miscall'd simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill:
Tired with all these, from these would I be
gone;

Save that, to die, I leave my love alone,

Ibid. Sonnet lxxvi.

Death may be call'd in vain, and cannot
come,

Tyrants can tie him up from your relief:

Nor has a Christian privilege to die.

Alas, thou art too young in thy new Faith.

Brutus and Cato might discharge their
souls,

And give them furlo's for another world:
But we like sentries are oblig'd to stand
In starless nights, and wait th' appointed hour.

DRYDEN. Don Sebastian. Act ii. Sc. 1.

When all the blandishments of life are
gone,

The coward sneaks to death, the brave
live on.

GEORGE SEWELL. The Suicide. From
Martial. Bk. xi. Ep. 56.

There is no refuge from confession but
suicide; and suicide is confession.

DANIEL WEBSTER. Argument on the Murder of Captain White. April 6, 1830.

Less base the fear of death than fear of
life;

O, Britain! infamous for suicide!
An island, in thy manners, far disjoin'd
From the whole world of rationals
beside!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. l. 441.

Self-murder! name it not; our island's
shame;
That makes her the reproach of neighb'ring
states.

ROBERT BLAIR. The Grave. l. 403.

One more unfortunate
Weary of breath,
Rashly importunate,
Gone to her death.

THOMAS HOOD. The Bridge of Sighs. l. 1.

Over the brink of it
Picture it—think of it,
Dissolute man
Lave in it—drink of it
Then, if you can.
Ibid. The Bridge of Sighs, l. 76.

Again the voice spake unto me :
"Thou art so steep'd in misery,
Surely 'twere better not to be."

TENNYSON. The Two Voices.

SUMMER.

Sumer is icumen in,
Lhude sing cucu!
Groweth sed, and bloweth med,
And springth the wude nu,
Sing cucu!

[Tradition assigns to this lyric the honour of being the most ancient song, with or without the musical notes, in the English language. In all probability it was composed as early as 1250. It is preserved in the Harleian MS. No. 978, and was first published in Sir John Hawkins' History of Music.]

This is very midsummer madness.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Of evening tinct,
The purple-streaming Amethyst is thine.
THOMSON. Seasons: Summer. l. 150.

The leafy month of June.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. v.

It is the month of June,
The month of leaves and roses,
When pleasant sights salute the eyes,
And pleasant scents the noses.
N. P. WILLIS. The Month of June.

The soft blue sky did never melt
Into his heart; he never felt
The witching of the soft blue sky!
WORDSWORTH. Peter Bell. Pt. i. St. 15.

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days;
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays.
LOWELL. The Vision of Sir Launfal.

SUN.

The glorious sun,
Stays in his course and plays the al-
chemist;
Turning, with splendor of his precious
eye,
The meagre cloddy earth to glittering
gold.
SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 77.

Aaron. As when the golden sun sa-
lutes the morn,
And having gilt the ocean with his
beams,
Gallops the zodiac in his glistening
coach,
And overlooks the highest peering hills.
Ibid. Titus Andronicus. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 5.

Perdita. The self-same sun that shines
upon his court
Hides not his visage from our cottage.
Ibid. Winter's Tale. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 455.

O thou that with surpassing glory
crown'd,
Look'st from thy sole dominion like the
god
Of this new world; at whose sight all
the stars
Hide their diminish'd heads!
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 32.

Blush, grandeur, blush; proud courts, withdraw your blaze!
Ye little stars! hide your diminish'd rays.
POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 282.

There swift return
Diurnal, merely to officiate light
Round this opacous earth, this punctual spot.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 21.

Whether the sun, predominant in heaven,
Rise on the earth or earth rise on the
sun,
He from the east his flaming road begin
Or she from the west her silent course
advance

With inoffensive pace, that spinning
sleeps

On her soft axle, while she paces even
And bears thee soft with the smooth air along,—

Solicit not thy thoughts with matters
hid;

Leave them to God above, him serve
and fear.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 160.

Together both, ere the high lawns appear'd

Under the opening eye-lids of the morn,
We drove afield, and both together
heard

What time the grey-fly winds her sultry
horn,

Batt'ning our flocks with the fresh dews
of night

Oft till the star that rose at evening
bright,

Tow'rd's Heav'n descent had sloped his west'ring wheel.

Ibid. Lycidas. l. 25.

So sinks the day-star in the ocean bed,
And yet anon repairs his drooping head,
And tricks his beams, and with new-spangled ore

Flames in the forehead of the morning ☉ sky.

Ibid. Lycidas. l. 168.

Let others hail the rising sun:

I bow to that whose course is run.

GARRICK. On the Death of Mr. Pelham.

Pompey bade Sylla recollect that more worshipp'd the rising than the setting sun.

PLUTARCH. Life of Pompey.

He (Tiberius) upbraided Macro in no obscure and indirect terms "with forsaking the setting sun and turning to the rising."

TACITUS. Annals. Bk. iv. Ch. xlvii. 20.

On this question of principle, while actual suffering was yet afar off, they [the Colonies] raised their flag against a power to which, for purposes of foreign conquest and subjugation, Rome in the height of her glory is not to be compared,
—a power which has dotted over the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drum-beat, following the sun, and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England.

DANIEL WEBSTER. Speech. May 7, 1834.
p. 110.

The martial airs of England

Encircle still the earth.

AMELIA B. RICHARDS. The Martial Airs of England.

Till now the name of names, England, the name of might,

Flames from the austral bounds to the ends of the boreal night;

And the call of her morning drum goes in a girdle of sound,

Like the voice of the sun in song, the great globe round and round.

W. E. HENLEY. Poems: Rhymes and Rhythms, II. To R. F. B. stt. 8 and 9.

Why should the brave Spanish soldier brag the sun never sets in the Spanish dominions, but ever shineth on one part or other we have conquered for our king?

CAPTAIN JOHN SMITH. Advertisements for the Unexperienced, etc. (Mass. Hist.
Soc. Coll., Third Series, vol. iii. p. 49.)

It may be said of them (the Hollanders) as of the Spaniards, that the sun never sets on their dominions.

GAGE. New Survey of the West Indies.
Epistle Dedicatory. London, 1648.

Philip II. I am called

The richest monarch in the Christian world;
The sun in my dominions never sets.

SCHILLER. Don Carlos. Act i. Sc. 6.

The sun never sets on the immense empire of Charles V.

Altera figlia

Di quel monarca, a cui

Nè anco, quando annotta il sol tramonta.

Ibid. February, 1807.

(The proud daughter of that monarch to whom when it grows dark [elsewhere] the sun never sets.)

GUARINI. Pastor Fido (1590). On the marriage of the Duke of Savoy with Catherine of Austria.

[The boast is equally true of America.
When it is 6 P. M. at Attou Island, Alaska, it is 9.36 A. M. the next day on the eastern coast of Maine.]

Most glorious orb! that wert a worship
ere

The mystery of thy making was revealed!

Thou earliest minister of the Almighty,
Which gladdened, on their mountain tops, the hearts

Of the Chaldean shepherds, till they poured

Themselves in orisons! Thou material
God!

And representative of the Unknown—
Who chose thee for His shadow !

BYRON. Manfred. Act iii. Sc. 2.

There sinks the nebulous star we call
the sun.

TENNYSON. Pt. iv. l. 1.

SUNDAY.

And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath : therefore the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

New Testament. Mark li. 27, 28.

Whose sore task

Does not divide the Sunday from the week.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 76.

So sang they, and the empyrean rung
With Hallelujahs. Thus was Sabbath kept.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 632.

Hanging of his cat on Monday
For killing of a mouse on Sunday.

Drunken Barnaby's Four Journeys (edition of 1865, p. 5).

No place is sacred, not the church is
free,

Even Sunday shines no Sabbath-day to
me.

POPE. Epistle to Dr. Arbuthnot. Prologue to the Satires. l. 11.

See Christians, Jews, one heavy Sabbath
keep,

And all the western world believe and
sleep.

Ibid. The Dunciad. Bk. iii. l. 99.

Of all the days that's in the week

I dearly love but one day,

And that's the day that comes betwixt
A Saturday and Monday.

HENRY CAREY. Sally in Our Alley.

Hail, Sabbath ! thee I hail, the poor man's day :

On other days the man of toil is doom'd
To eat his joyless bread, lonely—the ground

Both seat and board—screened from the winter's cold

And summer's heat, by neighb'ring
hedge or tree ;

But on this day, embosom'd in his home,
He shares the frugal meal with those he loves.

GRAHAME. Sabbath.

Now really this appears the common case

Of putting too much Sabbath into Sunday.

But what is your opinion, Mrs. Grundy ?
THOMAS HOOD. An Open Question.

Take the Sunday with you through the
week,

And sweeten with it all the other days.
LONGFELLOW. Michael Angelo. Pt. i. 5.

Yes, child of suffering, thou may'st well be sure

He who ordained the Sabbath loves the poor !

O. W. HOLMES. Urania ; or, A Rhymed Lesson. l. 325.

SUNRISE.

But when Aurora, daughter of the dawn,
With rosy lustre purpled o'er the lawn.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. iii. l. 621.
(POPE'S trans.)

Up rose the sonne, and up rose Emelie.
CHAUCER. The Knight's Tale. l. 2275.

At last, the golden orientall gate
Of greatest heaven gan to open fayre,
And Phœbus, fresh as brydegrome to his mate,

Came dauncing forth, shaking his dewie
hayre ;

And hurls his glistring beams through gloomy ayre.

SPENSER. Faerie Queene. Bk. i. Canto
v. St. 2.

Romeo. It was the lark, the herald of the morn,

No nightingale : look, love, what envious streaks

Do lace the severing clouds in yonder
east :

Night's candles are burnt out, and jo-cund day

Stands tip-toe on the misty mountain's top.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
iii. Sc. 5. l. 6.

But yonder comes the powerful king of
day,
Rejoicing in the east.

THOMSON. Summer. l. 81.

Wake! for the Sun, who scatter'd into flight
The Stars before him from the Field
of Night,
Drives Night along with them from Heav'n, and strikes
The Sultan's Turret with a Shaft of Light.

FITZGERALD. Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. l.

Day!
Faster and more fast,
O'er night's brim, day boils at last;
Boils, pure gold, o'er the cloud-cup's brim

Where spurting and suppress'd it lay—
For not a froth-flake touched the rim
Of yonder gap in the solid gray
Of the eastern cloud, an hour away;
But forth one wavelet, then another,
curled,

Till the whole sunrise, not to be sup-
prest,
Rose, reddened, and its seething breast Flickered in bounds, grew gold, then overflowed the world.

ROBERT BROWNING. Pippa Passes. Sc. 1.

SUNSET.

Now was the hour that wakens fond desire

In men at sea, and melts their thoughtful
heart

Who in the morn have bid sweet friends
farewell,

And pilgrim, newly on his road, with love

Thrills if he hear the vesper bell from far

That seems to mourn for the expiring
day.

DANTE. Purgatorio. viii. 1. (CARY
trans.)

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day.
GRAY. Elegy in a Country Churchyard.
St. 1.

The gaudy, blabby, and remorseful day
Is crept into the bosom of the sea.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry VI. Act iv.
Sc. 1. l. 1.

Slow sinks, more lovely ere his race be
run,

Along Morea's hills the setting sun;
Not, as in Northern climes, obscurely
bright,

But one unclouded blaze of living light!
O'er the hushed deep the yellow beam
he throws,

Gilds the green wave, that trembles as it glows.

BYRON. The Corsair.

SUPERFLUITY.

In silvam non ligna feras insanius.

It would be as silly as to carry sticks into the forest.

HORACE. Satires. i. 10, 34.

[Hence the proverb, In silvam ligna ferre
(to carry logs into the wood) = to labour in vain, to "carry coals to Newcastle." The Greeks have a proverb to the same effect,
Γλαυκ' Ἀθηναίε, Owls to Athens (ARISTOPHANES,
The Birds. 301), the owl being Athene's bird; so, too, Fish to the Hellespont.]

Salisbury. Therefore, to be possess'd with double pomp,

To guard a title that was rich before,
To gild refined gold, to paint the lily,
To throw a perfume on the violet,
To smooth the ice, or add another hue
Unto the rainbow, or with taper-light To seek the beauteous eye of heaven to garnish,

Is wasteful, and ridiculous excess.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iv. Sc.
2. l. 11.

Rosalind. Can one desire too much of a good thing.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 123.

To enlarge or illustrate the power and effect of love is to set a candle in
the sun.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Sec. ii.
Memb. 1. Subsec. 2.

How commentators each dark passage shun
And hold their farthing candle to the sun.

YOUNG. Satire vii. l. 97.

SUPERSTITION.

Oh, rather give me commentators plain,
Who with no deep researches vex the brain,
Who from the dark and doubtful love to
run,
And hold their glimmering tapers to the
sun.

CRABBE. The Parish Register. Part. 1.
Introduction.

Alas! you know the cause too well;
The salt is spilt, to me it fell.
Then to contribute to my loss,
My knife and fork were laid across;
On Friday, too! the day I dread;
Would I were safe at home, in bed!
Last night (I vow to Heaven 'tis true)
Bounce from the fire a coffin flew.
Next post some fatal news shall tell:
God send my Cornish friends be well!

GAY. Fables. Pt. i. Fable 37.

Superstition is the religion of feeble minds.

BURKE. Reflections on the Revolution in France.

The many chambered school
Where superstition weaves her airy dreams.

WORDSWORTH. The Excursion. Bk. iv.

Foul Superstition! howsoe'er disguised, Idol, saint, virgin, prophet, crescent,
cross,

For whatsoever symbol thou art prized,
Thou sacerdotal gain, but general loss!

Who from true worship's gold can separate thy dross?

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 44.

SURFEIT.

Occidit miseros crambe repetita magistros.

Like warmed-up cabbage served at each repast,

The repetition kills the wretch at last.

JUVENAL. Satires. vii. 154. (GIFFORD, trans.)

[Said of recitations which masters had to endure in school.]

With much we surfeit, plenty makes us poor.

DRAYTON. Legend of Matilda the Fair.

Nerissa. They are sick that surfeit with too much, as they that starve with nothing: it is no mean happiness therefore to be seated in the mean; superfluity comes sooner by white hairs; but competency lives longer.

SHAKESPEARE. The Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 5.

Friar Laurence. These violent delights have violent ends,
And in their triumph die; like fire and powder,
Which, as they kiss, consume; the sweetest honey

Is loathsome in its own deliciousness,
And in the taste confounds the appetite:

Therefore, love moderately; long love doth so;

Too swift arrives as tardy as too slow.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 6. l. 9.

Claudio. As surfeit is the father of much fast,

So every scope by the immoderate use Turns to restraint.

Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 130.

King. There lives within the very flame of love

A kind of wick, or snuff, that will abate it;

And nothing is at a like goodness still;
For goodness, growing to a pleurisy,
Dies in his own too-much.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 7. l. 115.

Beauty soon grows familiar to the lover,
Fades in his eye, and palls upon the sense.
The virtuous Marcia towers above her sex.

ADDISON. Cato. Act i. Sc. 4.

Lysander. A surfeit of the sweetest things

The deepest loathing to the stomach brings.

SHAKESPEARE. A Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 137.

SUSPICION.

Northumberland. See, what a ready tongue suspicion hath!

He that but fears the thing he would not know,

Hath, by instinct, knowledge from others' eyes,

That what he feared is chanced.

SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry IV. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 84.

Suspicion always haunts the guilty mind;

The thief doth fear each bush an officer.
Ibid. Henry VI. Pt. iii. Act v. Sc. 6. l. 11.

Hamlet. All is not well ;
I doubt some foul play.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc.
2. l. 255.

Cæsar. Would he were fatter ! but I fear him not :

Yet if my name were liable to fear,
I do not know the man I should avoid
So soon as that spare Cassius.

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 198.

Suspicion's but at best a coward's virtue.

OTWAY. Venice Preserved. Act iii. Sc. 1.

There is nothing makes a man suspect much, more than to know little.

BACON. Essay XXXI. of Suspicion.

All seems infected that the infected spy,
As all looks yellow to the jaundiced eye.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. l. 568.

SWALLOW.

One swallow maketh not a spring, nor a woodcock a winter.

ARISTOTLE. Ethics. Bk. i.

One swallow maketh not summer.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. v.

One foul wind no more makes a winter,
than one swallow makes a summer.

C. DICKENS. Martin Chuzzlewit. Ch. xliii.

The swallow follows not the summer more willing than we do your lordship.

SHAKESPEARE. Timon of Athens. Act iii.
Sc. 6. l. 31.

Banquo. This guest of summer,
The temple-haunting martlet, does ap-
prove,

By his love'd mansionry, that the heaven's breath

Smells wooingly here ; no jutty, frieze, Buttress, nor coign of vantage, but this
bird

Hath made its pendent bed, and procreant cradle :

Where they most breed and haunt, I have observ'd,

The air is delicate.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 6. l. 3.

When autumn scatters his departing
gleams,

Warned of approaching winter, gathered, play

The swallow-people ; and tossed wide
around,

O'er the calm sky in convolution swift,
The feathered eddy floats ; rejoicing
once,

Ere to their wintry slumbers they retire.
THOMSON. The Seasons : Autumn. l. 836.

Nature's licensed vagabond, the swallow.

TENNYSON. Queen Mary. Act v. Sc. 1.

It's surely summer, for there's a swallow :

Comes one swallow, his mate will follow,
The bird-race quicken and wheel and thicken.

CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI. A Bird Song.
St. 2.

SWAN.

You think that upon the score of fore-knowledge and divining I am infinitely inferior to the swans. When they perceive approaching death they sing more merrily than before, because of the joy they have in going to the God they serve.

SOCRATES. In Phædo. 77.

Prince Henry. 'Tis strange that death should sing.

I am the cygnet to this pale faint swan,
Who chants a doleful hymn to his own
death :

And, from the organ-pipe of frailty, sings
His soul and body to their lasting rest.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act v. Sc. 7.
l. 21.

Othello. I will play the swan and die in music.

Ibid. Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 247.

Portia. He makes a swan-like end, Fading in music.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 2.
l. 44.

There, swan-like, let me sing and die.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 86.

York. As I have seen a swan With bootless labour swim against the tide,

And spend her strength with over-matching waves.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry VI. Act i. Sc. 4.
l. 19.

The swan, with arched neck Between her white wings mantling proudly, rows

Her state with oary feet.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 438.

The stately-sailing swan
Gives out his snowy plumage to the gale ;
And, arching proud his neck, with oary feet
Bears forward fierce, and guards his osierisle,
Protective of his young.

THOMSON. The Seasons: Spring. 1. 775.

On thy fairy bosom, silver lake,
The wild swan spreads his snowy sail,
And round his breast the ripples break
As down he bears before the gale.

JAMES G. PERCIVAL. To Seneca Lake.

SWEETNESS.

Queen. Sweets to the sweet ; farewell !
SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1.
1. 266.

[See under LIKE.]

Sweets with sweets war not, joy delights in joy.

Ibid. Sonnet. viii.

Gaunt. Things sweet to taste prove in digestion sour.

Ibid. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 237.

The bitter goes before the sweet.
Yea, and for as much as it doth, it makes the sweet the sweeter.

BUNYAN. Pilgrim's Progress. Pt. II.

The little sweet doth kill much bitterness.
KEATS. Isabella. xiii.

The fly that sips treacle is lost in the sweets.

GAY. Beggar's Opera. Act ii. Sc. 2.

For the rest, whatever we have got has been by infinite labor and search, and ranging through every corner of nature ; the difference is, that, instead of dirt and poison, we have rather chosen to fill our hives with honey and wax, thus furnishing mankind with the two noblest of things, which are, sweetness and light.

SWIFT. The Battle of the Books: The Spider and the Bee.

The sweetest thing that ever grew
Beside a human door.

WORDSWORTH. Lucy Gray. St. 2.

SWINE.

Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

New Testament. Matthew vii. 6.

The wrong sow by th' eare.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. ix.

Shear swine, all cry and no wool.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l. 852.

Moche Crye and no Wull.

JOHN FORTESCUE. De Laudibus Legum Anglicarum. Ch. x.

How Instinct varies in the grov'ling
swine.

POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. i. l. 221.

The hog that ploughs not, nor obeys thy call,

Lives on the labours of this lord of all.

Ibid. Essay on Man. Epis. iii. l. 41.

Thus says the prophet of the Turk,
Good Musselman, abstain from pork.

COWPER. Love of the World Reproved.

[This poem is founded on an ancient Arabian apologue, which feigned that Ma-homed allowed his followers to eat every portion of the hog, save only one, which he slyly left unspecified. Therefore, Mohammedans let the hog entirely alone, lest they might eat the forbidden portion. But the later followers of the prophet thought it hard

From the whole hog to be debarred,

because a single part had been forbidden.
So one took a leg, another a shoulder, a third, and a fourth, and so on, each his particular titbit :

With sophistry their sauce they sweeten
Till quite from tail to snout 'tis eaten.

Hence the proverb to go the whole hog.]

SWORD.

Then said Jesus unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place: for all they that take the sword, shall perish with the sword.

New Testament. Matthew xxvi. 52.

"Put up the sword!" The voice of Christ once more
Speaks, in the pauses of the cannon's roar . .
O men and brothers ! let that voice be heard,
War fails, try peace ; put up the useless
sword.

DISARMAMENT.

Better die with the sword, than by the sword.

S. DANIEL. Civil War. Bk. vii. 26.

Richelieu. Take away the sword—
States can be saved without it.

BULWER LYTTON. Richelieu. Act ii.
Sc. 2.

Impatient straight to flesh his virgin sword.

POPE. The Odyssey of Homer. Bk. xx. l. 461.

When valour preys on reason
It eats the sword it fights with.

SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 199.

Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem.

By the sword she seeks a quiet peace with liberty.

Motto of Massachusetts.

The trenchant blade, Toledo trusty,
For want of fighting was grown rusty,
And ate into itself, for lack
Of somebody to hew and hack.

SAMUEL BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto 1. l. 359.

SYMPATHY.

Non ignara mali miseris succurrere disco.

Being myself no stranger to suffering,
I have learned to relieve the sufferings of others.

VIRGIL. Æneid. i. 630.

Yet, taught by time, my heart has learned to glow,

For other's good, and melt at other's woe.
HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xviii. l. 269.
(POPE, trans.)

Accept these grateful tears! for thee they flow,—

For thee, that ever felt another's woe!
Ibid. Iliad. Bk. xix. l. 319. (POPE,
trans.)

Si vis me flere, dolendum est
Primum ipsi tibi.

If you wish me to weep, you must mourn first yourself.

HORACE. Ars Poetica. cii.

But spite of all the criticising elves,
Those who would make us feel, must feel themselves.

CHURCHILL. Rosciad. l. 961.

Needs there groan a world in anguish just to teach us sympathy.

R. BROWNING. La Saisiaz.

(The well-sung woes will soothe my pensive ghost;)

He best can paint 'em who shall feel 'em
most.

POPE. Eloiza to Abelard. Last line.

Zelmane. None can speak of a wound with skill, if he hath not a wound felt.

SIR P. SIDNEY. Arcadia. Bk. i. Domo
and Zelmane.

Romeo. He jests at scars, that never felt a wound.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
ii. Sc. ii. l. 72.

For let our finger ache, and it endues
Our other healthful members even to that sense

Of pain.

Ibid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 146.

When the head aches, all the members partake of the pain.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. ii.

For I no sooner in my heart divin'd,
My heart, which by a secret harmony Still moves with thine, joined in connection sweet.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. x. l. 357.

A brother's sufferings claim a brother's pity.

ADDISON. Cato. Act 1. Sc. 1.

Speed the soft intercourse from soul to
soul,

And waft a sigh from Indus to the Pole.
POPE. Eloise to Abelard. l. 57.

To each his sufferings: all are men

Condemn'd alike to groan;

The tender for another's pain,

The unfeeling for his own.

GRAY. Prospect of Elon College. 10.

In misery's darkest cavern known,

His useful care was ever nigh

Where hopeless anguish pour'd his groan,

And lonely want retired to die.

DR. JOHNSON. Verses on the Death of Mr.
Robert Levett.

And the weak soul, within itself unbless'd,

Leans for all pleasure on another's breast.

GOLDSMITH. The Traveller. l. 271.

Taught by that Power that pities me,
I learn to pity them.

Ibid. The Hermit. St. 6.

Their cause I plead—plead it in heart
and mind;

A fellow feeling makes one wondrous
kind.

DAVID GARRICK. Epilogue on Quitting
the Stage. 1770.

[The credit of the famous last line is given sometimes to Shakespeare and sometimes to Byron. The latter quotes it in "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" with "one" changed to "us."]

I would help others, out of a fellow-feeling.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

Our sympathy is cold to the relation of distant misery.

GIBBON. Decline and Fall. Ch. xlix.

We have lived and loved together
Through many changing years;
We have shared each other's gladness,
And wept each other's tears.

CHARLES JEFFERYS. We have Lived and Loved Together.

Nor peace nor ease the heart can know
Which, like the needle true,
Turns at the touch of joy or woe,
But turning, trembles too.

MRS. GREVILLE. A Prayer for Indifference.

And the touched needle trembles to the pole.

POPE. Temple of Fame. l. 431.

He thought as a sage, though he felt as a man.

BEATTIE. The Hermit. l. 8.

True beauty dwells in deep retreats,
Whose veil is unremoved
Till heart with heart in concord beats,
And the lover is beloved.

WORDSWORTH. To ——. Let other Bards of Angels Sing.

She<sup>1</sup> gave me eyes, she gave me ears;
And humble cares, and delicate fears;
A heart, the fountain of sweet tears;
And love and thought and joy.

WORDSWORTH. The Sparrow's Nest.

Sensations sweet,
Felt in the blood, and felt along the heart.

Ibid. Lines Composed a Few Miles Above Tintern Abbey.

What gem hath dropp'd sparkles o'er his chain?

The tear most sacred, shed for other's pain,

<sup>1</sup> The allusion is to Wordsworth's wife.

That starts at once—bright pure—from Pity's mine,

Already polish'd by the hand divine!

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto ii. St. 15.

Every woe a tear can claim,
Except an erring sister's shame.
Ibid. The Giaour.

Striking the electric chain wherewith
we are darkly bound.

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 23.

For there are moments in life, when the heart is so full of emotion, That if by chance it be shaken, or into its depths like a pebble

Drops some careless word, it overflows,
and its secret,

Spilt on the ground like water, can never be gathered together.

LONGFELLOW. Courtship of Miles Standish. Pt. vi. l. 12.

No one is so accursed by fate,
No one so utterly desolate,
But some heart, though unknown,
Responds unto his own.

Ibid. Endymion.

Somewhere or other there must surely
be

The face not seen, the voice not heard,
The heart that not yet—never yet—ah
me!

Made answer to my word.

CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI. Somewhere or Other.

Shall I weep if a Poland fall? shall I shriek if a Hungary fail?

Or an infant civilization be ruled with rod or with knout?

I have not made the world, and He that made it will guide.

TENNYSON. Maud.

Why waste a word or let a tear escape
While other sorrows wait you in the world?
R. BROWNING. Balaustion's Adventure.

TALE.

We spend our years as a tale that is told.
Old Testament. Psalm xc. 3.

And what so tedious as a twice told tale?

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xi. last line.
(POPE trans.)

[Bryant's version is more literal but less succinct:

I hate

To tell again a tale once fully told.

Pope possibly had in mind the line which Shakespeare puts into the mouth of Lewis:

Lewis. Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 108.]

Soft as some song divine thy story flows.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xi. l. 458.

'Tis hard to venture where our betters fail.
Or lend fresh interest to a twice-told tale.

BYRON. Hints from Horace.

Quid rides? Mutato nomine de te Fabula narratur.

Wherefore do you laugh?

Change but the name, of thee the tale is told.

HORACE. Satires I. i. 69. (FRANCIS trans.)

Who so shall tell a tale after a man,
He must rehearse, as nigh he ever can Everich word, if it be in his charge,
All speke he never so rudely and so large.

Or elles he must tellen his tale untrue,
Or feinen things or finden wordes new.

CHAUCER. Canterbury Tales. Prologue.
l. 733.

To tell tales out of schoole.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt. 1. ch. x.

He cometh unto you with a tale which holdeth children from play, and old men from the chimney corner.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. The Defense of Poesy.

Duke. And what's her history?

Viola. A blank, my lord.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act ii.
Sc. 4. l. 113.

Queen Elizabeth. An honest tale speeds best, being plainly told.

Ibid. Richard III. Act iv. Sc. 4. l. 358.

Prince. Mark now, how a plain tale shall put you down.

Ibid. I. King Henry IV. Act ii. Sc. 4.

An honest tale speeds best, being plainly
told.

Ibid. King Richard III. Act iii. Sc. 1.
l. 38.

Touchstone. And thereby hangs a tale!

Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. l. 28.

Cf. Taming of the Shrew. Act iv. Sc. 1.

l. 60. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 9.

Merry Wives of Windsor. Act i. Sc. 4.
l. 159.

Lady Capulet. That book in many's eyes doth share the glory
That in gold clasps locks in the golden story.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
i. Sc. 3. l. 91.

Othello. Yet, by your gracious patience,

I will a round unvarnish'd tale deliver
Of my whole course of love; what drugs, what charms,

What conjuration, and what mighty magic,

(For such proceeding I am charg'd withal)

I won his daughter with.

Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 122.

Othello. Her father lov'd me; oft invited me;

Still question'd me the story of my life,
From year to year; the battles, sieges,
fortunes,

That I have pass'd.

I ran it through, even from my boyish
days,

To the very moment that he bade me tell it.

Wherein I spoke of most disastrous chances,

Of moving accidents by flood and field;
Of hair-breadth 'scapes i' the imminent

deadly breach;

Of being taken by the insolent foe,
And sold to slavery; of my redemption thence,

And portance in my travel's history:

Wherein of antres vast, and desarts
wild,

Rough quarries, rocks, and hills whose heads touch heaven,

It was my hint to speak.

Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 128.

Hamlet. The story is extant, and writ in choice Italian.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 274.

King. And tell sad stories of the death of kings.

Ibid. Richard II. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 156.

Do not believe what I tell you here any more than if it were some tale of a tub.

RABELAIS. Works. Bk. iv. Ch. 38.

And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the vale.

MILTON. L'Allegro. l. 67.

[It is more than probable that the word "tale" here means "tally" or "score." Yet possibly Goldsmith had Milton in mind when he wrote:

The hawthorn bush with seats beneath the shade,
For talking age and whispering lovers made.

The Deserted Village. l. 13.]

I will tell you now
What never yet was heard in tale or song,
From old or modern bard, in hall or bower.

Ibid. Comus. l. 43.

For seldom shall she hear a tale
So sad, so tender, and so true.

WM. SHENSTONE. Jemmy Dawson.

He left the name at which the world grew pale,

To point a moral, or adorn a tale.

DR. JOHNSON. Vanity of Human Wishes. l. 222.

This story will never go down.

FIELDING. Tumble-Down Dick. Air 1.

Story? God bless you, I have none to tell, sir!

CANNING. Friend of Humanity and the Needy Knife-grinder.

Three stories high, long, dull, and old
As great lords' stories often are.

GEORGE COLMAN THE YOUNGER. The Maid of the Moor.

A sight to dream of, not to tell!

COLERIDGE. Christabel. Pt. i.

'Tis an old tale and often told;

But did my fate and wish agree,

Ne'er had been read, in story old,

Of maiden true, betrayed for gold,

That loved, or was avenged, like me.

SCOTT. Marmion. Canto ii. St. 27.

Still from the sire the son shall hear

Of the stern strife, and carnage drear,

Of Flodden's fatal field,

Where shiver'd was fair Scotland's spear,

And broken was her shield!

Ibid. Marmion. Canto vi. St. 34.

I cannot tell how the truth may be;

I say the tale as 'twas said to me.

Ibid. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto ii. St. 22.

[Bret Harte rather improves upon Scott, and has at least given literary assent to an already popular misquotation:

I tell the tale as 'twas told to me.

A schoolboy's tale, the wonder of an hour!

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 2.

Oh, Reader! had you in your mind

Such stores as silent thought can bring,

Oh, gentle Reader! you would find

A tale in everything.

WORDSWORTH. Simon Lee.

Tell me the tales that to me were so dear

Long, long ago; long, long ago.

THOMAS HAINES BAYLY. Long, long Ago.

But that's another story.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

[This is a favorite saying of his hero, Private Mulvaney, and constantly reappears in his short stories.]

TALENT.

And sure th' Eternal Master found

His single talent well employ'd.

DR. JOHNSON. Verses on the Death of Mr. Robert Levett. St. 7.

Talents angel-bright,

If wanting worth, are shining instruments

In false ambition's hand, to finish faults
Illustrious, and give infamy renown.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vi. l. 273.

Es bildet ein Talent sich in der Stille,

Sich ein Charakter in dem Strom der Welt.

A talent is developed in retirement, character is formed in the rush of the world.

GOETHE. Tasso. Act i. Sc. 2.

Every man has his gift, and the tools go to him that can use them.

C. KINGSLEY. The Saints' Tragedy. Act ii. Sc. 6.

TASTE.

Touch not, taste not, handle not.

New Testament. Colossians ii. 21.

De gustibus non est disputandum.

There can be no disputing about tastes.

Proverb.

[The French proverb, Chacun à son gout, "everyone to his taste," embodies a similar sentiment.]

Hamlet. Come, give us a taste of your quality.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 452.

What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice
Of attic taste?

MILTON. To Mr. Laurence.

Such and so various are the tastes of men.

AKENSIDE. Pleasures of the Imagination. Bk. iii. l. 567.

I wish you all sorts of prosperity, with a little more taste.

LE SAGE. Gil Blas. Bk. vii. Ch. 4.

Sir Peter. Zounds! madam, you had no taste when you married me!

SHERIDAN. School for Scandal. Act ii. Sc. 1.

By doing his work, he makes the need felt which he can supply. He creates the taste by which he is enjoyed. He provokes the wants to which he can minister.

EMERSON. Essays. First Series. Self-reliance.

TAX.

In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes.

FRANKLIN. Letter to M. Leroy. 1789.

No statesman e'er will find it worth his pains

To tax our labours and excise our brains.

CHURCHILL. Night. l. 271.

The Deil's awa wi' th' Exciseman.

BURNS. The Deil's awa wi' the Exciseman. Chorus. l. 2.

The schoolboy whips his taxed top, the beardless youth manages his taxed horse with a taxed bridle, on a taxed road; and the dying Englishman, pouring his medicine, which has paid seven per cent., flings himself back on his chintz bed, which has paid twenty-two per cent., and expires in the arms of an apothecary, who has paid a license of a hundred pounds for the privilege of putting him to death.

SYDNEY SMITH. Essays: Review of Seybert's Annals.

The beggar is taxed for a corner to die in.

LOWELL. Vision of Sir Launfal. Prelude to Part. 1.

Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation.

ABRAHAM S. HEWITT. Democratic Platform. of 1884.

TEA.

Tea does our fancy aid,
Repress those vapours which the head invade,
And keeps that palace of the soul serene.

EDMUND WALLER. Of Tea.

Here, thou, great Anna! whom three realms obey,

Dost sometimes counsel take and sometimes tea.

POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto iii. l. 7.

Tea! thou soft, thou sober, sage, and venerable liquid;—thou female tongue-running, smile-soothing, heart-opening, wink-tipping cordial, to whose glorious insipidity I owe the happiest moment of my life, let me fall prostrate.

COLLEY CIBBER. The Lady's Last Stake. Act i. Sc. 1.

For her own breakfast she'll project a scheme,

Nor take her tea without a stratagem.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire vi. l. 190.

Now stir the fire and close the shutters fast,

Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round,

And while the bubbling and loud hissing urn

Throws up a steamy column, and the cups

That cheer but not inebriate wait on each,

So let us welcome peaceful evening in.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. iv. l. 34. Winter Evening. l. 34.

(Tar water) is of a nature so mild and benign and proportioned to the human constitution as to warm without heating, to cheer but not inebriate.

BISHOP BERKELEY. Siris. Par. 217.

[Quoted by Scott, head of Chap. vii., St. Roman's Well.]

TEARS.

Behold who ever wept, and in his tears
Was happier far than others in their smiles.

PETARCH. The Triumph of Eternity!
l. 95. (Charlemont.)

Valentine. Eye-offending brine.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act i.
Sc. 1. l. 30.

Lord. If the boy have not a woman's gift
To rain a shower of commanded tears,
An onion will do well for such a shift.
Ibid. Taming of the Shrew. Induction.
Sc. 1. l. 124.

Hubert. How now, foolish rheum!

Ibid. King John. Act iv. Sc. i. l. 33.

Enobarbus. The tears live in an onion that should water this sorrow.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 176.

Father. See, see what showers arise, Blown with the windy tempest of my heart.

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act ii. Sc. 5. l. 85.

King Henry. He has strangled
His language in his tears.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 157.

Q. Katherine. I am about to weep;
but, thinking that
We are a queen, or long have dream'd so, certain
The daughter of a king, my drops of tears

I'll turn to sparks of fire.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 70.

Richard. I cannot weep; for all my body's moisture
Scarce serves to quench my furnace-burning heart.

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 79.

Wolsey. Cromwell, I did not think to shed a tear
In all my miseries; but thou hast forc'd
me,
Out of thy honest truth, to play the
woman.

Ibid. Henry VIII. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 428.

Exeter. I had not so much of man in
me,
And all my mother came into mine eyes
And gave me up to tears.

SHAKESPEARE. Henry V. Act iv. Sc.
6. l. 30.

Lear. O, let not women's weapons,
water-drops,
Stain my man's cheeks!

Ibid. King Lear. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 280.

Gentleman. There she shook
The holy water from her heavenly eyes,
And clamour moistened.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 31.

King Lear. No, I'll not weep:
I have full cause of weeping; but this
heart

Shall break into a hundred thousand flaws

Or ere I'll weep.

Ibid. King Lear. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 286.

Duncan. My plenteous joys, Wanton in fulness, seek to hide themselves

In drops of sorrow.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 38.

Othello. One, whose subdu'd eyes,
Albeit unused to the melting mood,
Drop tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum.

Ibid. Othello. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 348

Othello. If that the earth could teem with woman's tears,
Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile.

Ibid. Othello. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 256.

Q. Margaret. Gloster's show
Beguiles him, as the mournful crocodile
With sorrow snares relenting passengers.

Ibid. II. Henry VI. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 225.

O father, what a hell of witchcraft lies
In the small orb of one particular tear!
But with the inundation of the eyes
What rocky heart to water will not wear?

Ibid. A Lover's Complaint. l. 288.

Antony. Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears,
If you have tears, prepare to shed them
now.

Ibid. Julius Caesar. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 173.

Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail

Or knock the breast, no weakness, no
contempt,

Dispraise or blame—nothing but well
and fair,

And what may quiet us in death so noble.

MILTON. Samson Agonistes. l. 1721.

Thrice he assay'd, and thrice in spite of scorn

Tears, such as angels weep, burst forth.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. i. l. 619.

Without the meed of some melodious tear.

Ibid. Lycidas. l. 14.

What precious drops are those Which silently each other's track pursue,

Bright as young diamonds in their infant
dew?

DRYDEN. Conquest of Grenada. Pt. ii.
Act iii. Sc. 1.

The social smile, the sympathetic tear.
GRAY. Education and Government.

Weep no more, Lady! weep no more,
Thy sorrow is in vain;

For violets plucked, the sweetest showers
Will ne'er make grow again.

PERCY. Reliques. The Friar of Orders
Gray.

No radiant Pearl, which crested Fortune wears,

No gem that twinkling hangs from women's ears,

Not the bright stars which Night's blue arch adorn

Nor rising suns that gild the vernal morn,

Shine with such lustre as the tear that flows

Down Virtue's manly cheek for other's woes.

ERASMUS DARWIN. The Botanic Garden.
Pt. ii. Canto 3. l. 459.

And the tear that we shed, though in secret it rolls,

Shall long keep his memory green in our souls.

MOORE. Oh, Breathe Not His Name.

The glorious angel who was keeping
The gates of Light, beheld her weeping;
And, as he nearer drew and listen'd
To her sad song, a tear-drop glisten'd

Within his eyelids, like the spray
From Eden's fountain, where it lies
On the blue flow'r, which—Bramins
say—

Blooms nowhere but in Paradise.

MOORE. Lalla Rookh. Paradise and
the Peril.

Child of mortality, whence comest thou? Why is thy countenance sad, and why are thine eyes red with weep-
ing?

MRS. BARBAULD. Hymns in Prose. xiii.

The tear, down childhood's cheek that
flows,

Is like the dewdrop on the rose;
When next the summer breeze comes by
And waves the bush, the flower is dry.

SCOTT. Rokeby. Canto iv. St. ii.

But woe awaits a country, when
She sees the tears of bearded men.

Ibid. Marmion. Canto v. St. 16.

Oh! too convincing—dangerously dear—
In woman's eyes th' unanswerable tear!
That weapon of her weakness she can wield

To save, subdue, at once her spear and shield.

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto ii. St. 15.

She was a good deal shocked,—not shocked at tears;

For women shed and use them at their liking;

But there is something when man's eye
appears

Wet, still more disagreeable and striking.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto v. St. 118.

Oh would I were dead now,

Or up in my bed now,

To cover my head now,

And have a good cry.

HOOD. A Table of Errata.

E'en like the passage of an angel's tear
That falls through the clear ether silently.

KEATS. To One who has been long in City
pent.

There shall be love when genial morn
appears,
Like pensive Beauty smiling through her tears.
CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. 1. 95.

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean.
Tears from the depth of some divine
despair
Rise in the heart and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy autumn-fields,
And thinking of the days that are no
more.
TENNYSON. Princess. iv. Song. 1. 1.

TEMPERANCE.

(See MODERATION.)

Impostor! do not charge most innocent
Nature
As if she would her children should be riotous
With her abundance. She, good cateress,
Means her provision only to the good,
That live according to her sober laws,
And holy dictate of spare Temperance.
MILTON. Comus. 1. 762.

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of
sense,
Lie in three words, health, peace, and competence.
But health consists with temperance
alone;
And peace, O Virtue! peace is all thy own.
POPE. Essay on Man. Ep. iv. 1. 79.

Call'd to the temple of impure delight
He that abstains, and he alone, does
right.
If a wish wander that way, call it home;
He cannot long be safe whose wishes roam.
COWPER. The Progress of Error. 1. 557.

TEMPTATION.

Angelo. Most dangerous
Is that temptation that doth goad us on
To sin in loving virtue.
SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure.
Act ii. St. 2. 1. 181.

Devils soonest tempt, resembling spirits of light.
SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost. Act
iv. Sc. 3l. 257.

Temptations hurt not, though they have access;
Satan o'ercomes none but by willingness.
HERRICK. Hesperides.

The devil tempts us not—'tis we tempt him,
Reckoning his skill with opportunity.
GEORGE ELIOT. Felix Holt. Ch. xlvii.

The subtlest tempter hath the smoothest style,
Sirens sing sweetest when they would betray.
DRAYTON. Legend of Matilda the Fair.

He comes too near that comes to be denied.
SIR THOS. OVERBURY. A Wife. St. 36.

In part she is to blame that has been tried:
He comes too near that comes to be denied.
LADY M. W. MONTAGU. The Lady's Resolve.

The devil was piqu'd such saintship
to behold,
And longed to tempt him like good Job
of old;
But Satan now is wiser than of yore.
And tempts by making rich, not making
poor.
POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. 1. 349.

As the Sandwich Islander believes that the strength and valor of the enemy he kills, passes into himself, so we gain the strength of the temptation
we resist.

EMERSON. Essays. First Series. Compensation.

But in spite of all temptations,
To belong to other nations,
He remains an Englishman!
GILBERT AND SULLIVAN. H. M. S. Pinafore. Act ii.

Why comes temptation, but for man to meet
And master and make crouch beneath his foot,
And so be pedestaled in triumph?
BROWNING. The Ring and the Book. The Pope. 1. 1185.

THANKS.

Thank you for nothing.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote.

Bolingbroke. Evermore thanks, the exchequer of the poor.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 3.
l. 65.

Hamlet. Beggar that I am, I am even poor in thanks.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 280.

Your bounty is beyond my speak-
ing,

But though my mouth be dumb, my heart shall thank you.

NICHOLAS ROWE. Jane Shore. Act ii. Sc. 1.

Words are but empty thanks.

COLLEY CIBBER. Woman's Wit. Act v.

Thank you, good sir, I owe you one.

COLMAN THE YOUNGER. The Poor Gentlemen. Act i. Sc. 2.

When I'm not thanked at all, I'm thanked enough,

I've done my duty, and I've done no
more.

FIELDING. The Life and Death of Tom Thumb the Great. Act i. Sc. 3.

Some hae meat and canna eat,

And some would eat that want it;

But we hae meat, and we can eat,

Sae let the Lord be thankit.

BURNS. Grace before Meat.

THIEF; THIEVING.

Set a thief to catch a thief.

Old Proverb.

[Zeno first started that doctrine that knavery is the best defense against a knave.]

PLUTARCH. Of Bashfulness.

Stolen sweets are always sweeter;

Stolen kisses much completer;

Stolen looks are nice in chapels;

Stolen, stolen be your apples.

THOMAS RANDOLPH. Song of Fairies.

Timon. I'll example you with thievery:

The sun's a thief, and with his great attraction

Robs the vast sea; the moon's an arrant
thief,

And her pale fire she snatches from the
sun;

The sea's a thief, whose liquid surge resolves

The moon into salt tears; the earth's a
thief,

That feeds and breeds by a composture stolen

From general excrement: each thing's a thief.

SHAKESPEARE. Timon of Athens. Act iv.
Sc. 3. l. 438.

Duke. The robb'd, that smiles, steals something from the thief.

He robs himself that spends a bootless
grief.

Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 208.

Othello. He that is robb'd, not wanting what is stol'n,

Let him not know't, and he's not robb'd
at all.

Ibid. Othello. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 342.

What loss feels he that wots not what he loses?

BROOME. The Merry Beggars. Act i. Sc. 1.

Angelo. Thieves for their robbery have authority

When judges steal themselves.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure.
Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 176.

Angus. Those he commands, move
only in command,

Nothing in love: now does he feel his title

Hang loose about him, like a giant's robe

Upon a dwarfish thief.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 2. l. 19.

I this morning said

In my extremity, entreat the thief!

Try if he have in him no honest touch!

A thief might save me from a murderer.

'Twas a thief said the last kind word to Christ:

Christ took the kindness and forgave the theft.

ROBERT BROWNING. The Ring and the Book, VI.: Giuseppe Caponsacchi.
ll. 865-70.

THOUGHT.

Cogito, ergo sum.

I think, therefore I am.

DESCARTES.

And which of you with taking thought can add to his stature one cubit?

New Testament. Luke xii. 25.

[The Revised Version reads "and which of you by being anxious can add a cubit to his stature?"]

High erected thoughts seated in the heart of courtesy.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY. Arcadia. Bk. i.

King. My words fly up, my thoughts remain below:

Words without thoughts never to heaven
go.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 3.
1. 97.

Cleopatra. On the sudden

A Roman thought hath struck him.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act i. Sc. 1.

When to the sessions of sweet silent
thought

I summon up remembrance of things past,

I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought,
And with old woes new wail my dear time's waste.

Ibid. Sonnet xxx.

And yet, as angels in some brighter dreams

Call to the soul when man doth sleep,
So some strange thoughts transcend our wonted themes,

And into glory peep.

VAUGHAN. They Are All Gone.

Second thoughts, they say, are best.

DRYDEN. The Spanish Friar. Act ii. Sc. 2.

Among mortals second thoughts are the wisest.

EURIPIDES. Hippolytus. 438.

Their own second and sober thoughts.

MATTHEW HENRY. Exposition. Job vi. 29.

He trudg'd along, unknowing what he sought,

And whistled as he went, for want of
thought.

DRYDEN. Cymon and Iphigenia. 1. 84.

In indolent vacuity of thought.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. iv. 1. 297.

Thoughts that voluntary move
Harmonious numbers.

Who think too little, and who talk too
much.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i.
1. 534.

We understood

Her by her sight; her pure and eloquent blood

Spoke in her cheeks, and so distinctly wrought

That one might almost say her body
thought.

JOHN DONNE. Funeral Elegies. On the Death of Mistress Drury.

Perish that thought!

COLLEY CIBBER. Revision of Shakespeare's Richard III. Act v. Sc. iii.

With too much quickness even to be taught;

With too much thinking to have common thought.

POPE. Moral Essays. Ep. ii. 1. 97.

And what he greatly thought, he nobly dared.

Ibid. Odyssey of Homer. Bk. ii. 1. 312.

And what they dare to dream of, dare to do.

LOWELL. Commemoration Ode.

Is there no great reversion in the sky
For those who greatly think or bravely die?

POPE. Elegy to an Unfortunate Lady. 1. 9.

For just experience tells, in every soil,
That those who think must govern those that toil.

GOLDSMITH. The Traveller. 1. 372.

They never taste who always drink;
They always talk who never think.

MATTHEW PRIOR. Upon a Passage in the Scaligerana. [See DRINK.]

Thoughts shut up want air

And spoil, like bales unopened to the sun.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. 1. 466.

So in the way of writing without think-
ing,

Thou hast a strange alacrity in sinking.
DORSET. Satire on Edward Howard.

Falstaff. You may know by my size that I have a kind of alacrity in sinking; if the bottom were as deep as hell I should drown.

SHAKESPEARE. Merry Wives of Windsor.
Act iii. Sc. 5. 1. 12.

With curious art the brain, too finely wrought,

Preys on itself and is destroyed by thought.

CHURCHILL. Epistle to William Hogarth. l. 645.

And like a passing thought, she fled in light away.

BURNS. Epistle to James Smith.

Though man a thinking being is defined,

Few use the grand prerogative of mind. How few think justly of the thinking few!

How many never think, who think they do!

JANE TAYLOR. Essays in Rhyme. Essay 1. St. 45.

Perhaps 'tis pretty to force together

Thoughts so all unlike each other;

To mutter and mock a broken charm,

To dally with wrong that does no harm.

COLERIDGE. Christabel. Conclusion to Part ii.

When thus the heart is in a vein Of tender thought, the simplest strain Can touch it with peculiar power.

MOORE. Evenings in Greece. First evening.

Plain living and high thinking are no more.

WORDSWORTH. Sonnet 13.

Clown. I will show myself highly fed, and lowly taught.

SHAKESPEARE. All's Well that Ends Well. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 4.

And when the stream

Which overflowed the soul was passed away,

A consciousness remained that it had left

Deposited upon the silent shore

Of memory images and precious thoughts

That shall not die, and cannot be destroyed.

WORDSWORTH. The Excursion. Bk. vii.

A mind forever

Voyaging through strange seas of thought alone.

Ibid. The Prelude. Bk. iii.

We meet thee, like a pleasant thought When such are wanted.

Ibid. To the Daisy.

But with the morning cool reflection came.

SCOTT. Chronicles of the Canongate. Ch. iv.

At length the morn and cold indifference came.

ROWE. The Fair Penitent. Act i. Sc. 1.

He went like one that hath been stunned, And is of sense forlorn:

A sadder and a wiser man,

He rose the morrow morn.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Concluding lines.

Still are the thoughts to memory dear.

SCOTT. Kebley. Canto i. St. 23.

A thought by thought is piled till some great truth

Is loosened, and the nations echo round Shaken to their roots, as do the mountains now.

SHELLEY. Prometheus Unbound. Act. ii. Sc. 3.

Whatso'er thy birth

Thou wert a beautiful thought and softly bodied forth.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iv. St. 115.

The power of thought,—the magic of the mind!

Ibid. The Corsair. Canto i. St. 8.

What exile from himself can flee

To zones, though more and more remote,

Still, still pursues, where'er I be

The blight of life—the demon Thought.

Ibid. Childe Harold. To Inez. Canto i. St. 84. l. 6.

But words are things, and a small drop of ink,

Falling like dew upon a thought, produces

That which makes thousands, perhaps millions think.

BYRON. Don Juan. St. 88.

I stood

Among them, but not of them! in a shroud

Of thoughts which were not their thoughts.

Ibid. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto iii. St. 113.

My thoughts and I were of another world.

BEN JONSON. Every Man Out of His Humour. Act iii. Sc. 3.

Thinking is but an idle waste of thought,
And nought is everything and everything is nought.

HORACE SMITH. Rejected Addresses. Cui Bono?

[This is a parody on Byron.]

The power of Thought—the magic of the Mind!

BYRON. The Corsair. Canto i. St. 8.

We figure to ourselves
The thing we like; and then we build it up,
As chance will have it, on the rock or sand,—
For thought is tired of wandering o'er
the world,
And home-bound Fancy runs her bark ashore.

SIR HENRY TAYLOR. Philip Van Artevelde. Pt. i. Act i. Sc. 5.

Thought is deeper than all speech;
Feeling deeper than all thought;
Souls to souls can never teach

What unto themselves was taught.

C. P. CRANCH. Gnosis.

And Thought leapt out to wed with
Thought
Ere Thought could wed itself with Speech.

TENNYSON. In Memoriam. xxiii. St. 4. ll. 3-4.

Great thoughts come from the heart.
MARQUIS OF VAUVENARGUES. Mazim 127.

Sudden a thought came like a full-blown
rose,
Flushing his brow.

KEATS. The Eve of St. Agnes. St. 16.

The boy sprang up . . . and ran
Stung by the splendor of a sudden thought.

R. BROWNING. A Death in the Desert.

She was his life,
The ocean to the river of his thoughts,
Which terminated all.

BYRON. The Dream. St. 2.

She floats upon the river of his thoughts.
LONGFELLOW. The Spanish Student. Act ii. Sc. 3.

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force; that thoughts rule the world.

EMERSON. Progress of Culture.

In every epoch of the world, the great event, parent of all others, is it not the arrival of a Thinker in the world.

CARLYLE. Heroes and Hero-worship. Lecture i.

Thought once awakened does not again slumber.

Ibid. Heroes and Hero-worship. Lecture i.

Great thoughts, great feelings came to them,

Like instincts, unawares.

LORD HOUGHTON. The Men of Old. Cf. Hebrews, xlii. 2. " . . . for thereby some have entertained angels unawares."

And inasmuch as feeling, the East's gift,
Is quick and transient,—comes, and lo!
is gone,

While Northern thought is slow and durable.

R. BROWNING. Luria. Act v.

The kings of modern thought are dumb.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Stanzas from the Grande Chartreuse.

In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts: they come back to us with a certain alienated majesty.

EMERSON. Essays. First Series. Self Reliance.

The ancestor of every action is a thought.

Ibid. Essays. First Series. Spiritual Laws.

A very model Ruler for To-day,
Whose fetish, if thou peel it to the core,
Public opinion, is no more than this,
What people think that other people think.

ALFRED AUSTIN. Prince Lucifer. Act vi. Sc. 2.

All thoughts that mould the age begin Deep down within the primitive soul.

LOWELL. An Incident in a Railroad Car.

It may be glorious to write Thoughts that shall glad the two or three

High souls, like those far stars that come in sight

Once in a century.

Ibid. An Incident in a Railroad Car.

These pearls of thought in Persian gulfs were bred,

Each softly lucent as a rounded moon;

The diver Omar plucked them from their bed,
Fitzgerald strung them on an English thread.

LOWELL. In a Copy of Omar Khayyam.

THRIFT.

Shylock. Fast bind, fast find;
A proverb never stale in thrifty mind.
SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
ii. Sc. 5. l. 54.

HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. 3.

Live with a thrifty, not a needy fate;
Small shots paid often waste a vast estate.

HERRICK. Hesperides. 28.

Free livers on a small scale; who are prodigal within the compass of a guinea.
WASHINGTON IRVING. The Stout Gentleman.

Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds ought and six, result misery.

[Put into the mouth of Mr. Micawber.]

TIME.

The signs of the times.
New Testament. Matthew xvi. 3.

Time brings the truth to light.
MENANDER. Monosticha. xi.

Time shall unfold what plaited cunning hides.
SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act i. Sc. 1.
l. 00.

O tempora, O mores!
Oh what times! what morals!
CICERO. Orations in Catilinum. I. 2.

Think not thy time short in this world, since the world itself is not long.
The created world is but a small parenthesis in eternity and a short interposition, for a time, between such a state of duration as was before it and may be after it.

SIR THOMAS BROWNE. Christian Morals.
Pt. iii. 29.

Prospero. What seest thou else
In the dark backward and abysm of
time?

SHAKESPEARE. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 00.

King. The inaudible and noiseless foot of Time.

Ibid. All's Well that Ends Well. Act v.
Sc. 3. l. 39.

that bald sexton time.

Ibid. King John. Act iii. Sc. i. l. 350.

That old bald cheater, Time.

BEN JONSON. The Poetaster. Act i. Sc. 5.

Salisbury. O, call back yesterday, bid time return.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard II. Act iii. Sc. 2.
l. 69.

Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight!

Make me a child again, just for to-night!

ELIZABETH AKERS ALLEN. Rock Me to Sleep.

Backward, flow backward, O tide of the years!

I am so weary of toil and of tears,—

Toil without recompense, tears all in vain!
Take them and give me my childhood again.

Ibid. Rock Me to Sleep.

King Henry. So many hours must
I take my rest;

So many hours must I contemplate.

SHAKESPEARE. III. Henry VI. Act ii.
Sc. 5. l. 32.

Tempora mutantur, nos et mutamur in illis.

Times change and we change with them.

[This mediæval saying seems to be a mis-quotation of a line which Matthias Bonbonius (Delicie Poetarum Germanorum, vol. i.
p. 685) attributes to Lotharius I. (circa 830):
Omnia mutantur, nos et mutamur in illis].

Manners with fortunes, humors turn with climes,

Tenets with books, and principles with times.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. i. l. 172.

Clown. Thus the whirligig of time brings in his revenges.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act v. Sc.
1. l. 384.

Thus times do shift,—each thing his turn does hold;

New things succeed, as former things grow
old.

HERICK. Ceremonies for Candlemas Eve.

His golden locks time hath to silver turned;

O time too swift! O swiftness never ceasing!

His youth 'gainst time and age hath ever spurned,

But spurned in vain, youth waneth
by encreasing.

GEORGE POOLE. Sonnet. Polyhymnia.

I made a posy while the day ran by;
Here will I smell my remnant out, and tie

My life within this band.

But time did beckon to the flowers, and they

By noon most cunningly did steal away,
And wither'd in my hand.

HERBERT. The Temple. Life.

Ye Gods! annihilate but space and
time,

And make two lovers happy.

POPE. Martinus Scriblerus on the Art of Sinking in Poetry. Chap. xi.

The bell strikes one, we take no note of
time,

But from its loss: to give it then a tongue

Is wise in man.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 55.

Time elaborately thrown away.

B. FRANKLIN. *Advice to a Young Trades-
man.*

Time has touched me gently in his race,
And left no odious furrows in my face.

CRABBE. *Tales of the Hall. Bk. xvii.
The Widow.*

Touch us gently, Time!

Let us glide adown thy stream

Gently,—as we sometimes glide

Through a quiet dream.

Time rolls his ceaseless course.

SCOTT. *The Lady of the Lake. Canto iii.
St. 1.*

But there are wanderers o'er Eternity Whose bark drives on and on, and anchor'd ne'er shall be.

BYRON. *Childe Harold's Pilgrimage.
Canto iii. St. 70.*

Why should we break up

Our snug and pleasant party?

Time was made for slaves,

But never for us so hearty.

J. B. BUCKSTONE. Billy Taylor.

[The burlesque of Billy Taylor was first acted in 1830.]

The horologe of Eternity

Sayeth this incessantly,—

“For ever—never,— Never—for ever!”

H. W. LONGFELLOW. The Old Clock on the Stairs. St. 9.

Old Time, in whose banks we deposit
our notes,

Is a miser who always wants guineas for groats;

He keeps all his customers still in arrears

By lending them minutes and charging them years.

O. W. HOLMES. *Poems of the Class of '29.
Our Banker. 1874.*

A wonderful stream is the River Time,
As it runs through the realms of
Tears,

With a faultless rhythm, and a musical rhyme,

And a broader sweep, and a surge sublime

As it blends with the ocean of Years.

BENJAMIN F. TAYLOR. The Long Ago.

The clock indicates the moment—but what does eternity indicate?

WALT WHITMAN. *Leaves of Grass: Song
of Myself. xlv. l. 4.*

He said “What's Time?” Leave Now for dogs and apes

Man has forever.

R. BROWNING. A Grammarian's Funeral.

From the fixed place of Heaven she saw
Time like a pulse shake fierce

Through all the worlds.

D. G. ROSSETTI. The Blessed Damozel.

TOAST.

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss but in the cup,
And I'll not look for wine.

BEN JONSON. The Forest: To Celia. Cf.
DICKENS. Our Mutual Friend. Bk. iii.
Ch. 14.

King. Give me the cups;
And let the kettle to the trumpets speak
The trumpet to the cannoneer without,
The cannons to the heavens, the heavens
to earth,

Now the king drinks to Hamlet.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2.
l. 288.

Simonides. Here with a cup that's stored unto the brim
We drink this health to you.

Ibid. Pericles. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 54.

And he that will this health deny Down among the dead men let him lie.

DYER. Song.

[This song appeared anonymously in the early part of the reign of George I. It has been ascribed to one Dyer, first name unknown. Empty bottles were colloquially known as "dead men."]

Here's to the maiden of bashful fifteen;
Here's to the widow of fifty;
Here's to the flaunting, extravagant
quean;
And here's to the house-wife that's thrifty.

Let the toast pass.

Drink to the lass.

I'll warrant she'll prove an excuse for the glass.

SHERIDAN. School for Scandal. Act iii.
Sc. 3. Song.

Here's a sigh to those who love me,
And a smile to those who hate;
And whatever sky's above me,
Here's a heart for every fate.

BYRON. To Thomas Moore. St. 2.

Ho! stand to your glasses steady!
'Tis all we have left to prize.

A cup to the dead already,— Hurrah for the next that dies.

BARTHOLOMEW DOWLING. Revelry in India.

TOBACCO.

Ods me! I marle what pleasure or felicity they have in taking their rogu-ish tobacco. It is good for nothing but to choke a man and fill him full of smoke and embers.

BEN JONSON. Every Man in His Humour.
Act iii. Sc. 2.

Pernicious weed! whose scent the fair
annoys,
Unfriendly to society's chief joys,
Thy worst effect is banishing for hours
The sex whose presence civilizes ours.

COWPER. Conversation. l. 251.

For I hate, yet love thee, so,
That whichever thing I show,
The plain truth will seem to be
A constrained hyperbole,
And the passion to proceed
More from a mistress than a weed.

LAMB. A Farewell to Tobacco. l. 1.

For thy sake, tobacco, I Would do anything but die.

Ibid. A Farewell to Tobacco. l. 123.

Sublime tobacco! which from east to west Cheer the tar's labor or the Turkman's
rest;

Which on the Moslem's ottoman divides His hours and rivals opium and his brides;

Magnificent in Stamboul, but less grand, Though not less loved, in Wapping or the Strand:

Divine in hookahs, glorious in a pipe,
When tipped with amber, mellow, rich,
and ripe;

Like other charmers, wooing the caress
More dazdling when daring in full dress;
Yet thy true lovers more admire by far
Thy naked beauties—Give me a cigar!

BYRON. The Island. Canto ii. St. 19.

For Maggie has written a letter to give me my choice between The wee little whimpering Love and the great god Nick O' Teen.

KIPLING. The Betrothed.

Woman in this scale, the weed in that;
Jupiter, hang out thy balance, and weigh them both, and if thou give the preference to woman all I can say is, the next time
Juno ruffles thee—O Jupiter! try the weed.

BULWER-LYTTON. *What Will He Do With
It?* Bk. i. Ch. 6.

TODAY; TOMORROW.

(See YESTERDAY.)

Boast thyself not of tomorrow: for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.

Old Testament. Proverbs, xxvii. 1.

Macbeth. To-morrow, and to-morrow,
and to-morrow,
Creeps in this petty pace from day to
day,
To the last syllable of recorded time;
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death.

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 5.
l. 19.

Dreaming of tomorrow, which tomorrow

Will be as distant then as 'tis today.

TOME DE BURGUILLON. Tomorrow. (Bow-RING, trans.)

In human hearts what bolder thoughts can rise

Than man's presumption on tomorrow's dawn!

When is tomorrow?

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 374.

Where art thou, beloved To-morrow?

When young and old, and strong and weak,

Rich and poor, through joy and sorrow,

Thy sweet smiles we ever seek,—

In thy place—ah! well-a-day!

We find the thing we fled—To-day!

SHELLEY. To-Morrow.

A man he seems of cheerful yesterdays
And confident tomorrows.

WORDSWORTH. The Excursion. Bk. vi.

Ah, my Beloved, fill the cup that clears

To-day of past regrets and future fears:

To-morrow!—Why to-morrow I may
be

Myself with Yesterday's sev'n thousand years.

FITZGERALD. The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam.

Light to-morrow with to-day!

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING. The Romance of the Swan's Nest. St. 9.

Our past is clean forgot,
Our present is and is not,
Our future's a sealed seedplot,
And what betwixt them are we?
D. G. ROSSETTI. The Cloud Confines. St. 5.

Who can say

Why today,

Tomorrow will be yesterday?

TENNYSON. Song.

We're curus critters: Now ain't jes' the minute

Thet ever fits us easy while we're in it;
Long ez 'twus futur', 'twould be perfect
bliss—

Soon ez it's past, thet time's wuth ten o'
this;

An' yit there ain't a man thet need be told

Thet Now's the only bird lays eggs of
gold.

J. R. LOWELL. The Biglow Papers. Series
ii. Letter 6.

Bunthorn. Oh to be wafted away,
From this black Aceldama of sor-
row,

Where the dust of an earthy to-day

Is the earth of a dusty to-morrow!

A little thing of my own. I call it "Heart-Foam." I shall not publish it.
Farewell!

W. S. GILBERT. Patience. Act ii.

TRADE.

Love the little trade which thou hast learned and be content therewith.

MARCUS AURELIUS. Meditations. xxxi.

A tradesman thou! and hope to go to heaven?

PERSIUS. Satire 5. l. 204. (DRYDEN, trans.)

Ne sutor ultra crepidam.

Let the cobbler stick to his last.

PLINY THE ELDER. Natural History. Bk.
xxxv. Sec. 81.

[Pliny attributes the saying to Apelles, who, after accepting a cobbler's criticism on a sandal he had painted, rejected in these words an added criticism on the leg of the figure which wore the sandal.]

Chacun son métier;

Les vaches seront bien gardées.

Each one to his own trade; ' then would the cows be well cared for.

FLORIAN. Le Vacher et le Garde-chasse.

Who friendship with a knave hath made

Is judged a partner in the trade.

GRAY. Fables. The Old Woman and Her Cats.

And trade's proud empire hastes to swift decay.

DR. JOHNSON. Line added to GOLD-SMITH'S Deserted Village.

To found a great empire for the sole purpose of raising up a people of customers may at first sight appear a project fit only for a nation of shopkeepers.

ADAM SMITH. Wealth of Nations. Vol. ii. Bk. iv. Ch. 7. Pt. 3.

A fellow in a market town,

Most musical, cried razors up and down.
J. WOLCOT [Peter Pindar]. Farewell Odes. iii.

Doing good.

Disinterested good is not our trade.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. i. l. 673.

The moving accident is not my trade.

WORDSWORTH. Heart Was Well.

The ugliest of trades have their moments of pleasure. Now, if I were a grave-digger, or even a hangman, there are some people I could work for with a great deal of enjoyment.

DOUGLAS JERROLD. Ugly Trades.

In matters of commerce the fault of the Dutch

Is offering too little and asking too much.

The French are with equal advantage content—

So we clap on Dutch bottoms just 20 per cent.

Chorus of English Custom House officers and French Douaniers.

English. We clap on Dutch bottoms just 20 per cent.

French. Vous frappez Falk avec 20 per cent.

TRANSPOSITION.

Here lie I, Martin Elginbrodde.

Have mercy o' my soul, Lord God,
As I would do were I Lord God,
And ye were Martin Elginbrodde.

[This is one of many variants of an epitaph frequently found in British and American graveyards. George Macdonald cites it in this form in his novel of David Elginbrod. James Howells, in one of his letters, gives the following quotation as the versification of a passage in St. Augustine:

If I were Thou and Thou wert I,
I would resign the Deity,
Thou shouldst be God, I would be man—
Is't possible that Love more can?

The sentiment has been traced back as far as the Rig Veda and other sacred books of the Orient. One example must suffice:

Were I thou, Agni, and wert thou I, this aspiration should be fulfilled.

Rig Veda, viii. 19, 25.]

Isabella. I would to heaven I had your potency

And you were Isabel! Should it then be thus?

No; I would tell what 'twere to be a judge,

And what a prisoner.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 67.

If I could dwell

Where Israfel

Hath dwelt, and he where I,—

He might not sing so wildly well

A mortal melody,

While a bolder note than his might swell

From my lyre within the sky.

POE. Israfel.

If there be any one can take my place

And make you happy whom I grieve to grieve,

Think not that I can grudge it, but believe

I do commend you to that nobler grace
That readier wit than mine, that sweeter face.

CHRISTINA G. ROSSETTI. Monna Innoninata.

TREASON.

Punica fide.

With Punic faith.

SALLUST. Jugurtha, 108.

[The Poeni or Carthaginians were reputed by the Romans to be a perfidious race. In similar vein Horace speaks of Parthis mendacior, "more lying than the Parthians," while Epimenides, and after him St. Paul, say "the Cretans are always liars."

New Testament. Titus i. 12.]

Treason doth never prosper: what's the reason?

Why, if it prosper, none dare call it treason.

SIR JOHN HARRINGTON. Epigrams. Bk. iv. 5.

Prosperum ac Felix scœlus.
Virtus vocat.

Successful and fortunate crimē he calls virtue.

SENECA. Hercules Furens. ii. 250.

Treason is not owned when 'tis descried;
Successful crimes alone are justified.

DRYDEN. The Medal. 1. 207.

Volumnia. The man was noble,
But with his last attempt he wiped it out;

Destroyed his country, and his name remains

To the ensuing age abhorred.

SHAKESPEARE. Coriolanus. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 145.

Gloster. To say the truth, so Judas kissed his master,
And cried "All hail!" whereas he meant all harm.

Ibid. III. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 7. l. 33.

And forthwith he came to Jesus and said
"Hail Master," and kissed him.

New Testament. Matthew xxvi. 49.

But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of Man with a kiss?

Ibid. Luke xxiii. 48.

Is there not some chosen curse,
Some hidden thunder in the stores of
heaven,

Red with uncommon wrath, to blast the
man

Who owes his greatness to his country's ruin?

ADDISON. Cato. Act i. Sc. 1.

Oh for a tongue to curse the slave

Whose treason, like a deadly blight,
Comes o'er the councils of the brave
And blasts them in their hour of might!

MOORE. Lalla Rookh. The Fire Worshipers.

The traitor to humanity is the traitor
most accursed.

Man is more than constitutions, better
rot beneath the sod

Than be true to Church and State while we are doubly false to God.

LOWELL. On the Capture of Certain Fugitive Slaves.

TRAVEL.

Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased.

Old Testament. Daniel xii. 4.

I have been a stranger in a strange land.

Ibid. Exodus ii. 22.

Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education; in the elder, a part of experience. He that travelleth into a country before he hath some entrance into the language, goeth to school, and not to travel.

BACON. Essays of Travel.

Valentine. Home keeping youth have ever homely wits,
Wer't not affection chains thy tender
days

To the sweet glances of thy honoured
love,

I rather would entreat thy company
To see the wonders of the world abroad
Than living duly sluggardized at home,
Wear out thy youth with sleepless idleness.

SHAKESPEARE. Two Gentlemen of Verona.
Act i. Sc. 1. l. 2.

Clown. Journeys ending in lovers meeting,

Every wise man's son doth know.

Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 44.

Touchstone. Ay, now am I in Arden.
When I was at home I was in a better place; but travellers must be content.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 17.

Go far—too far you cannot, still the farther

The more experience finds you: And go sparing;—

One meal a week will serve you, and one suit,

Through all your travels; for you'll find it certain,
The poorer and the baser you appear,
The more you look through still.

BEAUMONT AND FLETCHER. The Woman's Prize. Act iv. Sc. 5. l. 199.

Know most of the rooms of thy native country before thou goest over the threshold thereof.

FULLER. The Holy and Profane States.

A. PHILLIPS. Pastoral. 2.

As the Spanish proverb says, "He who would bring home the wealth of the Indies must carry the wealth of the Indies with him." So it is in travelling:
A man must carry knowledge with him
if he would bring home knowledge.

DR. JOHNSON. BOSWELL. Life of Johnson (1778).

Remote, unfriended, melancholy, slow,
Or by the lazy Scheld, or wandering Po.

GOLDSMITH. The Traveller. l. 1.

I pity the man who can travel from Dan to Beersheba and cry, "'Tis all barren!"

STERNE. Sentimental Journey: In the Street.

[The allusion is to the Old Testament:

From Dan even to Beersheba.
Old Testament. Judges xx. 1.]

The more I see of other countries the more I love my own.

MADAME DE STAEL. Corinne.

[This sentence has been much paraphrased, the favorite form being:

The more I see of men the more I like dogs.]

Oh, I have roamed o'er many lands,
And many friends I've met;
Not one fair scene or kindly smile
Can this fond heart forget.

THOMAS HAYNES BAYLY. Oh, Steer My Bark to Erin's Shore.

Some love to roam o'er the dark sea's
foam,

Where the shrill winds whistle free.

CHARLES MACKAY. Some Love to Roam.

Don't cross the bridge till you come to
it,

Is a proverb old, and of excellent wit.

LONGFELLOW. The Golden Legend.

Travelling is no fool's errand to him who carries his eyes and itinerary along with him.

AMOS BRONSON ALCOTT. Table-talk.
Travelling.

Coelum, non animum mutant, qui trans mare current.

Their sky, not their mind, they change who traverse the sea.

HORACE. Letters. i. 2. 27.

Traveling is a fool's paradise. We owe to our first journeys the discovery that place is nothing. At home I dream that at Naples, at Rome, I can be intoxicated with beauty, and lose my sadness. I pack my trunk, embrace my friends, embark on the sea, and at last wake up in Naples, and there beside me is the stern Fact, the sad self, unrelenting, identical, that I fled from. I seek the Vatican, and the palaces. I affect to be intoxicated with sights and suggestions, but I am not intoxicated. My giant goes with me wherever I go.

EMERSON. Essays: Self-reliance.

TREE.

(See WOOD.)

The laurell, meed of mightie conquer-ours

And poets sage; the firre that weepeth still;

The willow, worne of forlorne para-
mours;

The eugh, obedient to the bender's
will;

The birch, for shafts; the sawall for
the mill;

The mirrhe sweete-bleeding in the bitter
wound;

The warlike beech; the ash for nothing ill;

The fruitful olive; and the platane
round;

The carver holme; the maple seldom inward sound.

SPENSER. Faerie Queene. Bk. i. Canto i.
St. 8.

Under the greenwood tree
Who loves to lie with me,
And tune his merry note
Unto the sweet bird's throat,
Come hither, come hither, come hither:
No enemy here shall he see,
But winter and rough weather.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act ii.
Sc. 5. l. 1.

Cedar, and pine, and fir, and branching

TRIFLES.

Magno iam conatu magnas nugas.
By great efforts obtain great trifles.
TERENCE. Heautontimorumenos. iv. l. 8.

Quid dignum tanto feret hic promissor
hiatu?

Parturiunt montes, nascetur ridiculus
mus.

What's coming, pray, that thus he winds
his horn?

The mountain labours, and a mouse is born.

HORACE. De Arte Poetica, 138. (CONING-TON, trans.)

[The allusion is to Æsop's fable of the Mountain in Labour, which Phædrus (iv.
22) renders:

Mons parturibat, gemitus immanes ciens;
Eratque in terris maxima expectatio.
At ille murem peperit.

The mountain groaned in pangs of birth:
Great expectation fill'd the earth;
And lo! a mouse was born!]

of a horse the rider is lost.

HERBERT. Jacula Prudentum.

For want of a nail the shoe was lost ;
for want of a shoe the horse was lost ; and for want of a horse the rider was lost.

F. FRANKLIN. Poor Richard's Almanack.
1758.

For the want of a nail the shoe was lost,
For the want of a shoe the horse was lost,
For the want of a horse the rider was lost,
For the want of a rider the battle was lost,
For the want of a battle the kingdom was lost—

And all for the want of a horseshoe nail.
ANON.

Some say, compared to Bononcini,
That Mynheer Handel's but a niny;
Others aver that he to Handel
Is scarcely fit to hold a candle.
Strange all this difference should be 'Twixt Tweedledum and Tweedledee.
DR. JOHN BYROM.

[Written in 1720, when Handel and Bononcini were rivals for popular favor in London.

Half a century later the famous quarrel between the Gluckists and Piccinists in Paris provoked the following cognate epigram from the Chevalier de Ruthières:

Est-ce Gluck, est-ce Piccini,
Que doit couronner Polymnie ?
Donc, entre Gluck et Piccini
Tout le Parnasse est désuni ;
L'un soutient ce que l'autre nie,
Et Cléo veut battre Uranie.
Pour moi, qui crains toute manie,
Plus irrésolu que Baboué,
N'épousant Piccini ni Gluck,
Je n'y connais rien ; ergo, Gluck.]

At every trifle scorn to take offence ;
That always shows great pride or little sense.

BROWNING. By the Fireside.

Alas ! how easily things go wrong ;
A sigh too much or a kiss too long.
And there follows a mist and a weeping
rain,
And life is never the same again.

Alas ! how hardly things go right !
'Tis hard to watch on a summer's night,

TRINITY.

There are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one.

New Testament. 1 John v. 7.

Revealed in love and sacrifice,
The Holiest passed before thine eyes,
One and the same in threefold guise.

The equal Father in rain and sun,
His Christ in the good to evil done,
His Voice in thy soul;—and the Three are One!

WHITTIER. Trinitas.

TROY.

Fuimus Troes, fuit Ilium et ingens
Gloria Teucrorum.

We have been Trojans: Troy has been:
She sat, but sits no more, a queen.

VIRGIL. Aeneid, ii. 325. (CONINGTON,
trans.)

Troja fuit.

Troy has been.

Ibid. Aeneid, iii. 11.

TRUST.

We trust in the living God.

New Testament. 1 Timothy v. 10.

And this be our motto, "In God is our trust."

F. S. KEY. The Star-spangled Banner.

I have no answer for myself or thee,
Save that I learned beside my mother's knee;

"All is of God that is, and is to be;
And God is good." Let this suffice us
still,

Resting in childlike trust upon his will Who moves to his great ends un-thwarted by the ill.

COWPER. Trust.

TRUTH.

Magna est veritas et praevalet.

Great is truth and it prevails.

Old Testament. The Vulgate. 1 Esdras iv. 41.

[The King James version runs:

Great is truth and mighty above all things.

Popular usage has substituted the future tense prævalebit, "will prevail," for prævalet.]

Truth lies at the bottom of a well.

Proverb.

Nature has buried truth deep in the bottom of the sea.

Attributed to DEMOCRITUS by CICERO.
Academic Questions. Bk. ii. Ch. 10.

The sages say, Dame Truth delights to dwell

(Strange mansion)! in the bottom of a well. Questions are then the windlass and the rope

That pull the grave old Gentlewoman up.
JOHN WOLCOTT (PETER PINDAR). Birth-day Ode.

Night brings out stars as sorrow shows us truth:

Though many, yet they help not; bright, they light not.

They are too late to serve us; and sad things Are aye too true. We never see the stars Till we can see naught but them. So with truth.

And yet if one would look down a deep well,
Even at noon, we might see those same stars.

Pilate saith unto him, What is truth?
And when he had said this, he went out again unto the Jews.

New Testament. John xviii. 38.

For truth is unwelcome, however divine.

COWPER. The Flatt'ning Mill. St. 6.

Jane borrow'd maxims from a doubting school,

And took for truth the test of ridicule;
Lucy saw no such virtue in a jest,

Truth was with her of ridicule the test.

CRABBE. Tales of the Hall. Bk. viii. l. 126.

But truths on which depend our main concern,

That 'tis our shame and misery not to learn,

Shine by the side of every path we tread

With such a lustre he that runs may read.

COWPER. Tirocinium. l. 77.

When fiction rises pleasing to the eye,
Men will believe, because they love the lie;

But truth herself, if clouded with a frown,

Must have some solemn proof to pass her down.

CHURCHILL. Epistle to Hogarth. l. 291.

'Tis strange—but true; for truth is always strange,—

Stranger than fiction.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto xiv. St. 101.

There is nothing so powerful as truth,
and often nothing so strange.

DANIEL WEBSTER. Speech: Murder of Captain White. Works. Vol. vi. p. 68.

Fiction lags after truth, invention is unfruitful, and imagination cold and barren.

BURKE. Thoughts on the Cause of the Present Discontent. Works. Vol. i. p. 116.

Fabian. If this were played upon a stage now, I would condemn it as an improbable fiction.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. i. l. 121.

But now being lifted into high society,
And having pick'd up several odds and ends

Of free thoughts in his travels for variety,

He deem'd, being in a lone isle among friends,

That, without any danger of a riot, he Might for long, lying, make himself amends;

And, singing as he sung in his warm youth,

Agree to a short armistice with truth.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto iii. St. 83.

Truth crushed to earth shall rise again:

Th' eternal years of God are hers;

But Error, wounded, writhes in pain,

And dies among his worshippers.

BRYANT. The Battle Field. St. 9.

Virtus nunquam perit.

Truth never perishes.

SENECA.

Though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do ingloriously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her strength. Let her and Falsehood grapple: who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?

MILTON. Areopagitica.

Error of opinion may be tolerated, where reason is left free to combat it.

JEFFERSON. Inaugural Address.

But the sunshine aye shall light the sky,
As round and round we run;

And the truth shall ever come uppermost,

And justice shall be done.

CHARLES MACKAY. Eternal Justice.

Truth! though the Heavens crush me for following her.

CARLYLE. Sartor Resartus. Bk. ii. Ch. vii.

Though love repine and reason chafe,

There came a voice without reply:

'Tis man's perdition to be safe,

When for the truth he ought to die.

EMERSON. Quatrain, Sacrifice.

Man, a dunce uncouth,
Errs in age and youth :
Babies know the truth.
A. C. SWINBURNE. Cradle Songs. iv.
St. 4.

Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong
forever on the throne.
LOWELL. The Present Crisis.

Then to side with Truth is noble when we share her wretched crust,
Ere her cause brings fame and profit,
and 'tis prosperous to be just ;
Then it is the brave man chooses while the coward stands aside,
Doubting in his abject spirit, till his Lord is crucified.
Ibid. The Present Crisis.

TYRANTS.

Sic semper tyrannis !

Thus be it ever with tyrants.
Motto of Virginia.

Twixt kings and tyrants there's this difference known,
Kings seek their subjects' good, tyrants their own.
HERICK. Kings and Tyrants.

Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to
God.
Inscription on a Cannon near which the ashes of Pres. John Bradshaw were lodged, on top of hill near Martha Bay in Jamaica.

Kings will be tyrants from policy,
when subjects are rebels from principle.
BURKE. Reflections on the Revolution in France. Works. Vol. iii. p. 334.

This hand, to tyrants ever sworn the foe,
For Freedom only deals the deadly
blow ;
Then sheathes in calm repose the vengeful blade
For gentle peace in Freedom's hallowed
shade.
JOHN QUINCY ADAMS. Written in an Album. 1842.

[A free translation of the lines which Al-gernon Sidney wrote in the album of the University of Copenhagen :

Manus haec inimica tyrannis
Ense petit placidam sub libertate quietem.
See Notes and Queries. March 10, 1866.]

UNDERSTANDING.

I shall light a candle of understanding in thine heart which shall not be put out.

Old Testament. 2 Esdras xiv. 25.

Hamlet. Whatsoever else shall hap-
to-night.
Give it an understanding, but no tongue.
SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 250.

The understanding is always the dupe
of the heart.
LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maxim 102.

Tout comprendre rend très indulgent.
To understand all is to become very lenient.
MADAME DE STAEL. Corinne. Bk. xviii.
Ch. v.

[This phrase has developed into the familiar and far superior misquotation :
Tout comprendre c'est tout pardonner.
To understand all is to forgive all.]

UNION.

Then join hand and hand, brave Americans all—
By uniting we stand, by dividing we
fall ;
In so righteous a cause we may hope to succeed,
For Heaven approves every generous deed.
JOHN DICKINSON. The Patriot's Appeal.

[This song was originally published July 4, 1776, in the Pennsylvania Chronicle of Philadelphia. Parodied by the Tories, it brought forth a counter-parody in the Massachusetts Liberty Song. Morris alludes to the vogue of Dickinson's famous second
line :

A song for our banner! The watchword recall
Which gave the Republic her station :
"United we stand, divided we fall!"
It made and preserves us a nation!
The union of lakes, the union of lands,
The union of States none can sever,
The union of hearts, the union of hands
And the flag of our union forever.
GEORGE P. MORRIS. The Flag of Our Union.

In the form, "United we stand, divided we fall," Dickinson's line, as amended by Morris, became the motto of the State of Kentucky. The idea itself goes back to remotest antiquity :

Concordiâ res parvæ cresunt, discordiâ maximæ dilabantur.

By union the smallest states thrive, by discord the greatest are destroyed.

SALLUST. Jugurtha. x.]

When my eyes shall be turned to behold, for the last time, the sun in heaven, may I not see him shining on the broken and dishonored fragments of a once glorious Union; on States dissevered, discordant, belligerent; on a land rent with civil feuds, or drenched, it may be, in fraternal blood!

DANIEL WEBSTER. Second Speech on Fool's Resolution. Jan. 26, 1830.

We join ourselves to no party that does not carry the flag and keep step to the music of the Union.

RUFUS CHOATE. Letter to the Whig Convention. 1855.

The Constitution in all its provisions looks to an indestructible union composed of indestructible States.

SALMON P. CHASE. Decision in Texas vs. White. See WERDEN'S Private Life and Public Services of Salmon P. Chase, P. 664.

[The States-Rights or Southern view is thus stated by Calhoun:

I never use the word "nation" in speaking of the United States. I always use the word "Union" or "Confederacy." We are not a nation but a union, a confederacy of equal and sovereign States.

Letter to Oliver Dyer. Jan. 1, 1849.]

Our Union is river, lake, ocean, and sky:

Man breaks not the medal when God cuts the die!

Though darkened with sulphur, though cloven with steel,

The Blue arch will brighten, the waters will heal.

HOLMES. Brother John's Lament for Sister Caroline.

One flag, one land, one heart, one hand,
One nation, evermore!

Ibid. 1862.

Sail on, O Ship of State!

Sail on, O Union, strong and great!

Humanity with all its fears,

With all the hopes of future years,

Is hanging breathless on thy fate!

LONGFELLOW. The Building of the Ship.

Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee,—

Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,

Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,

Are all with thee,—are all with thee!

LONGFELLOW. The Building of the Ship.

Scilurus on his death-bed, being about to leave fourscore sons surviving, offered a bundle of darts to each of them, and bade them break them. When all refused, drawing out one by one, he easily broke them,—thus teaching them that if they held together they would continue strong; but if they fell out and were divided they would become weak.

PLUTARCH. Apothegms of Kings and Great Commanders. Scilurus.

All your strength is in your union,

All your danger is in discord.

LONGFELLOW. Hiawatha. Bk. I. l. 113.

Our cause is just, our union is perfect.

JOHN DICKINSON. Declaration on taking up Arms in 1776.

If this bill [for the admission of Orleans Territory as a State] passes, it is my deliberate opinion that it is virtually a dissolution of the Union; that it will free the States from their moral obligation; and, as it will be the right of all, so it will be the duty of some, definitely to prepare for a separation,—amicably if they can, violently if they must.

JOSHIAH QUINCY. Abridged Cong. Debates. Jan. 14, 1811. Vol. iv. p. 327.

The gentleman [Mr. Quincy] cannot have forgotten his own sentiment, uttered even on the floor of this House—"Peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must."

HENRY CLAY. Speech. Jan. 8, 1813.

Our Federal Union: it must be preserved.

ANDREW JACKSON. Benton's Thirty Years' View. l. 148. Toast given, Jefferson Birthday Celebration. 1830.

This glorious Union shall not perish! Precious legacy of our fathers, it shall go down honored and cherished to our children. Generations unborn shall enjoy its privileges as we have done; and if we leave them poor in all besides, we will transmit to them the boundless wealth of its blessings!

EDWARD EVERETT. Orations and Speeches. Union Meeting in Faneuil Hall.

Enobarbus. Her gentlewomen, like the Nereids,
 So many mermaids, tended her i' the eyes,
 And made their bends adornings; at the helm
 A seeming mermaid steers; the silken tackle
 Swell with the touches of those flower-soft hands
 That yarely frame the office. From the barge
 A strange invisible perfume hits the sense
 Of the adjacent wharfs.
SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 200.

Posthumus. The swiftest harts have posted you by land;
 And winds of all the corners kiss'd your sails,
 To make your vessel nimble.
Ibid. Cymbeline. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 27.

Shylock. But ships are boards, sailors are but men: there be land-rats and water-rats, land-thieves and water-thieves—I mean pirates; and then there is the peril of the waters, winds, and rocks.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 22.

Ships, ships, I will descree you
 Amidst the main,
 I will come and try you,
 What you are protecting,
 And projecting,
 What's your end and aim.
 One goes abroad for merchandise and trading,
 Another stays to keep his country from invading,
 A third is coming home with rich and wealthy lading,
 Hallo! my fancie, whither wilt thou go?
WILLIAM HARVEY. Hallo! My Fancie.

Ships dim-discover'd dropping from the clouds.
THOMSON. The Seasons: Summer. l. 946.

But now secure the painted vessel glides,
 The sunbeams trembling on the floating tides:

While melting music steals upon the sky,
 And soften'd sounds along the waters die.
 Smooth flow the waves, the zephyrs gently play,
 Belinda smiled, and all the world was gay.

POPE. Rape of the Lock.

Thus I steer my bark, and sail
 On even keel, with gentle gale.
MATTHEW GREEN. The Spleen. l. 814.

Though pleased to see the dolphins play,
 I mind my compass and my way.
Ibid. The Spleen. l. 826.

Being in a ship is being in a jail, with the chance of being drowned.
DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life. 1759.

As idle as a painted ship
 Upon a painted ocean.
COLERIDGE. Ancient Mariner. Pt. ii.

She walks the waters like a thing of life,
 And seems to dare the elements to strife.
 Who would not brave the battle-fire—
 the wreck—
 To move the monarch of her peopled deck?
BYRON. The Corsair. Canto i. 3.

Like ships, that sailed for sunny isles,
 But never came to shore.
T. K. HERVEY. The Devil's Progress.

And see! she stirs!
 She starts,—she moves,—she seems to feel
 The thrill of life along her keel!
LONGFELLOW. The Launch of the Ship.

Without a breeze, without a tide,
 She steadies with upright keel.
COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. iii.

SHIPWRECK.

Miranda. O, I have suffer'd
 With those that I saw suffer! a brave vessel,
 Who had no doubt some noble creature in her,
 Dash'd all to pieces. O, the cry did knock
 Against my very heart! poor souls! they perish'd.
SHAKESPEARE. Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 5.

He who has suffered shipwreck, fears to sail

Upon the seas, though with a gentle gale.
HERRICK. Shipwreck.

What though the sea be calm? Trust to the shore:

Ships have been drown'd where late they danc'd before.

Ibid. Safety on the Shore.

Again she plunges! hark! a second shock

Bilges the splitting Vessel on the Rock—
Down on the vale of death, with dismal cries

The fated victims shuddering cast their eyes,

In wild despair; while yet another stroke,

With strong convulsion rends the solid oak:

Ah, Heaven!—behold her crashing ribs divide!

She loosens, parts, and spreads in ruin o'er the Tide.

FALCONER. Shipwreck. Canto iii. l. 64.

Then rose from sea to sky the wild farewell—

Then shriek'd the timid and stood still the brave,—

Then some leap'd overboard with dreadful yell,

As eager to anticipate their grave;

And the sea yawned around her like a hell,

And down she sucked with her the whirling wave.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 52.

And fast through the midnight dark and drear,

Through the whistling sleet and snow,
Like a sheeted ghost, the vessel swept

Towards the reef of Norman's Woe.
LONGFELLOW. The Wreck of the Hesperus. St. 15.

SHOES; SHOEMAKER.

Ne sutor supra crepidam.

A cobbler should stick to his last.

PLINY. 35, 10.

[When a cobbler, not content with pointing out defects in a shoe of Apelles' painting, presumed to criticise the drawing of the leg, the artist checked him with the above rebuke.]

Second Citizen. I am indeed, sir, a surgeon to old shoes; when they are in great danger I recover them. As proper men as ever trod upon meat's leather have gone upon my handiwork.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 1. l. 27.

Arviragus. And put

My clouted brogues from off my feet.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 214.

Him that makes shoes go barefoot himself.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

Who is worse shod than the shoemaker's wife?

JOHN HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt. i. Ch. ix.

Ye tuneful cobblers! still your notes prolong,

Compose at once a slipper and a song;
So shall the fair your handiwork peruse,

Your sonnets sure shall please—perhaps your shoes.

BYRON. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers. l. 751.

Marry, because you have drank with the King,

And the King hath so graciously pledged you,

You shall no more be called shoemakers;

But you and yours, to the world's end,
Shall be called the trade of the gentle craft.

ANON. George a-Greene. 1599.

[According to tradition the king was Edward IV., who once drank incognito with a party of shoemakers and pledged them.]

SICKNESS.

Cassius. He had a fever when he was in Spain,

And when the fit was on him, I did mark

How he did shake; 'tis true, this god did shake:

His coward lips did from their colour fly,
And that same eye whose bend doth awe

the world

Did lose his lustre.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 119.

Timon. My long sickness
Of health and living now begins to mend,
And nothing brings me all things.

SHAKESPEARE. Timon of Athens. Act v.
Sc. 1. l. 189.

Portia. What, is Brutus sick,
And will he steal out of his wholesome
bed,

To dare the vile contagion of the night?
Ibid. Julius Caesar. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 263.

So, when a raging fever burns,
We shift from side to side by turns;
And 't is a poor relief we gain
To change the place, but keep the pain.
ISAAC WATTS. Spiritual Hymns. Hymn
146.

See the wretch, that long has tost
On the thorny bed of pain
At length repair his vigour lost,
And breathe and walk again:
The meanest flow' ret of the vale,
The simplest note that swells the gale,
The common sun, the air, the skies,
To him are opening paradise.
GRAY. Ode on a Vicissitude.

SIGH.

(See SORROW.)

Sigh'd and look'd and sigh'd again.
DRYDEN Alexander's Feast. l. 120.

Sighed and looked unutterable things.
THOMSON. The Seasons: Summer. l. 1188.

Implores the passing tribute of a sigh.
GRAY. Elegy in a Country Churchyard.
St. 20.

Who hath not paused while Beauty's pen-
sive eye
Ask'd from his heart the homage of a sigh?
CAMPBELL. The Pleasures of Hope. ii.

To sigh, yet feel no pain,
To weep, yet scarce know why,
To sport an hour with Beauty's chain,
Then throw it idly by.
THOMAS MOORE. Songs from M. P.: The Blue Stocking.

Sighs

Which perfect Joy, perplexed for utterance,
Stole from her sister, Sorrow.
TENNYSON. The Gardener's Daughter. l.
249.

SILENCE.

Φησιν σωπῶν.

His silence answers yes.
EURIPIDES. Orestes. 1592.

Qui tacet consentire videtur.
He who is silent is understood to consent.
BONIFACE VIII. Sezti Decretalium Liber.
Bk. v. Tit. xii. de Regulis Juris, 43.

Silence gives consent.
OLIVER GOLDSMITH. *The Good-natured
Man.* Act ii.

Be silent or let thy words be worth
more than silence.

PYTHAGORAS. Stobaeus, Florilegium.
xxxiv. 7.

Speak fitly or be silent wisely.
GEORGE HERBERT.

Intelligisne me esse philosophum? . . .
Intellexeram, si tacuisses.
Do you understand that I am a philosopher? . . . I should have so understood had
you remained silent.
BOETHIUS. De Consolatione Philosophiae.
ii. Prosa 7.
[Hence the phrase, "Si tacuisses, philo-
sophus mansisses.]"

When Demaratus was asked whether he held his tongue because he was a fool or for want of words, he replied, "A fool cannot hold his tongue."

PLUTARCH. Of Demaratus.

A fool's mouth is his destruction.
Old Testament. Proverbs. xviii. 6.

My tongue within my lips I reign;
For who talks much must talk in vain.
GAY. Introduction to the Fables. Pt. i.
l. 57.

The cur's bark is worse than his bite;
the deepest rivers flow most silently.
QUINTUS CURTIUS. *De Rebus Gestis Al-
exandri Magni.* vii. 4, 13.

Suffolk. Smooth runs the water where the
brook is deep;
And in his simple show he harbors treason.
The fox barks not when he would steal the
lamb.
SHAKESPEARE. II. Henry VI. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 53.

Passions are likened best to floods and
streams:
The shallow murmur, but the deep are
dumb.

RALEIGH. The Silent Lover.

Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the
way.
POPE. Epistle to Arbuthnot. l. 315.

Curæ leves loquuntur, ingentes stupent.
Light sorrows speak, but deeper ones
are dumb.

SENECA. Hippocrates. 607.

Striving to tell his woes, words would not
come;

For light cares speak, when mighty griefs
are dumb.

SAMUEL DANIEL. Complaint of Rosamond. St. 114.

Small griefs find tongues: full casks are
ever found

To give (if any, yet) but little sound.

HERRICK. Hesperides. 38.

There are deeds

Which have no form, sufferings which have
no tongue.

SHELLEY. The Cenci. Act iii. Sc. 1.

I tell thee hopeless grief is passionless.

MRS. BROWNING.

[See under GRIEF.]

Much talk, much foolishness.

The Talmud.

[From the Talmudic saying Corneille derived his line:

Mais qui parle beaucoup dit beaucoup de
sottises.

He who talks much says many foolish
things.

Sequel to Le Menteur. Act iii. Sc. 1.]

The firste vertue, sone, if thou wilt lere,
Is to restreine and kepen wel thy tonge.

CHAUCER. Canterbury Tales: The Man-ciples Tale. 1. 17281.

And I oft have heard defended,—

Little said is soonest mended.

GEORGE WITHER. The Shepherd's Hunting.

Silence in love bewrays more woe

Than words, though ne'er so witty:

A beggar that is dumb, you know,

May challenge double pity.

RALEIGH. The Silent Lover. St. 9.

Bassanio. O! my Antonio, I do know
of these,

That therefore only are reputed wise,

For saying nothing.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
i. Sc. 1. 1. 97.

Hamlet. The rest is silence.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 2. 1. 368.

Bassanio. Sometimes from her eyes
I did receive fair speechless messages.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act i. Sc. 1.
1. 163.

Sæpe tacens vocem verbaque vultus habet.
The silent countenance often speaks.

OVID. Ars Amatoria. i. 574.

Countess. Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none: be able for thine
enemy

Rather in power, than use; and keep
thy friend

Under thy own life's key: be check'd
for silence,

But never tax'd for speech.

SHAKESPEARE. All's Well that Ends Well.
Act i. Sc. 1. 1. 73.

The heart hath treble wrong,
When it is barr'd the aidance of the
tongue.

Ibid. Venus and Adonis. 1. 329.

Think all you speak; but speak not all
you think:

Thoughts are your own; your words are
so no more.

Where Wisdom steers, wind cannot make
you sink:

Lips never err, when she does keep the
door.

DELAUNE. Epigram.

They that govern the most make the
least noise.

JOHN SELDEN. Table Talk: Power.

Because half-a-dozen grasshoppers under
a fern make the field ring with their im-
portunate chink, whilst thousands of great cattle reposed beneath the shadow of the British oak, chew the cud and are silent,
pray do not imagine that those who make
the noise are the only inhabitants of the field; that of course they are many in number; or that, after all, they are other than
the little shrivelled, meagre, hopping,
though loud and troublesome insects of the
hour.

BURKE. Reflections on the Revolution in France. Vol. iii. p. 344.

Come then, expressive silence, muse
His praise.

THOMSON. Hymn. 1. 118.

There is a silence where hath been no
sound,

There is a silence where no sound may
be,—

In the cold grave, under the deep, deep
sea,

Or in the wide desert where no life is found.

THOMAS HOOD. Sonnet: Silence.

Silent in seven languages.

SCHLEIERMACHER. Reported in Letter of Zeller to Goethe. March 15, 1830.

All silent and all damned.

WORDSWORTH. Peter Bell. Pt. i. (In original issue, omitted afterward.)

Silence! Oh well are Death and Sleep
and Thou

Three brethren named, the guardians
gloomy-winged,

Of one abyss, where life and truth and
joy

Are swallowed up.

SHELLEY. Fragments: Silence.

A sound so fine, there's nothing lives
'Twixt it and silence.

JAMES SHERIDAN KNOWLES. Virginius.
Act v. Sc. 2.

Heard melodies are sweet, but those unheard

Are sweeter; therefore, ye soft pipes,
play on,—

Not to the sensual ear, but, more en-
dear'd,

Pipe to the spirit ditties of no tone.

KEATS. Ode on a Grecian Urn.

Speech is great, but silence is greater.

CARLYLE. Essays: Characteristics of Shakespeare.

As the Swiss inscription says:
Sprechen ist silbern, Schweigen ist golden—
Speech is silvern, Silence is golden; or,
as I might rather express it, Speech is
of Time, Silence is of Eternity.

Ibid. Sartor Resartus. Bk. iii. Ch. iii.

Under all speech that is good for anything there lies a silence that is better.
Silence is deep as Eternity; Speech is
shallow as Time.

Ibid. Essays: Memoirs of the Life of Scott.

The uttered part of a man's life, let
us always repeat, bears to the unuttered,
unconscious part a small unknown proportion. He himself never knows it,
much less do others.

Ibid. Memoirs of the Life of Scott.

Of every noble work the silent part is best
Of all expression that which cannot be expressed.

W. W. STORY. The Unexpressed.

And silence, like a poultice comes,
To heal the blows of sound.

O. W. HOLMES. The Music-grinder.

The silent organ loudest chants

The master's requiem.

EMERSON. Dirge.

Three silences there are: the first of
speech,

The second of desire, the third of
thought.

LONGFELLOW. *The Three Silences of Mo-
linos.*

SIMPLICITY.

And simple truth miscalled simplicity
And captive good attending captain ill.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. lxi.

Elegant as simplicity and warm as ecstasy.

COWPER. Table Talk. 1. 588.

Nothing is more simple than greatness; indeed, to be simple is to be great.

EMERSON. Miscellanies: Literary Ethics.

And as the greatest only are,

In his simplicity sublime.

TENNYSON. Burial of the Duke of Wellington.

We have exchanged the Washing-
tonian dignity for the Jeffersonian simplicity, which was in truth only another
name for the Jeffersonian vulgarity.

BISHOP HENRY C. POTTER. Address at the Washington Centennial Service. New York, April 30, 1889.

SIN.

He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone.

New Testament.

If we desire to judge all things justly,
we must first persuade ourselves that none
of us is without sin.

SENECA. Of Anger. ii. 28, 1.

Bonus judex damnat improbanda, non
odit.

The upright judge condemns the
crime, but does not hate the criminal.

Ibid. Of Anger. i. 16, 7.

Condemn the fault, and not the actor of
it.

SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 2. 1. 35.

She hugged th' offender, and forgave th' offence.
Sex to the last.

DRYDEN. Cymon and Iphigenia.

How shall I lose the sin, yet keep the sense,
And love th' offender, yet detest th' offence?
POPE. Eloisa to Abelard. l. 191.

Cæsar said he loved the treason, but
hated the traitor.

PLUTARCH. Life of Romulus.

Princes in this case
Do hate the Traitor, tho' they love the Treason.

S. DANIEL. Tragedy of Cleopatra. Act
iv. Sc. 1.

This principle is old, but true as fate,
Kings may love treason, but the traitor hate.
MIDDLETON. The Honest Whore. Act iv.

Magna pars hominum est quæ non pec-
catis irascitur, sed peccantibus.

A large part of mankind is angry not with
the sins, but with the sinners.

SENECA. De Ira. ii. 28, 8.

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always he
that has done something.

MARCUS AURELIUS. Meditations. ix. 5.

Hell gives us art to reach the depth of
sin;

But leaves us wretched fools, when we
are in.

FLETCHER. The Queen of Corinth. Act
iv. Sc. 3.

Our compell'd sins

Stand more for number than for accompt.
SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 4. l. 57.

Escalus. Some rise by sin, and some
by virtue fall:

Some run from brakes of vice, and answer none;

And some condemned for a fault alone.
Ibid. Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 1.
l. 38.

King. My offence is rank, it smells to heaven.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 36.

Lear. I am a man
More sinned against than sinning.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 60.

He that falls into sin is a man; that grieves at it is a saint; that boasteth of
it is a devil.

THOS. FULLER. Holy and Profane States:
Holy State, of Self-praising.

Man-like is it to fall into sin,
Fiend-like is it to dwell therein;
Christ-like is it for sin to grieve,
God-like is it all sin to leave.

FR. VON LOGUN. Sinnegedichte: Sin.
(LONGFELLOW, trans.)

Anger and just rebuke, and judgment
given,

That brought into this world a world of
woe,

Sin and her shadow Death, and Misery
Death's harbinger.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. l. 10.

Compound for sins they are inclined to,
By damning those they have no mind to.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l.
215.

See sin in state, majestically drunk;
Proud as a peeress, prouder as a punk.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. ii. l. 69.

Our outward act is prompted from
within,

And from the sinner's mind proceeds
the sin.

PRIOR. Henry and Emma. l. 481.

[For, in the eye of heaven, a wicked deed
Devised is done.

JUVENAL. Satires. xiii. 209.]

Sin is too dull to see beyond himself.

TENNYSON. Queen Mary. Act v. Sc. 2.

SKELETON; SKULL.

Hamlet. Why may not that be the skull of a lawyer? Where be his quiddities now, his quillets, his cases, his
tenures, and his tricks?

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. l.
107.

Hamlet. Alas, poor Yorick! I knew him, Horatio: a fellow of infinite jest,
of most excellent fancy. He hath borne
me on his back a thousand times; and
now, how abhorred in my imagination
it is! my gorge rises at it. Here hung
those lips that I have kissed I know not
how oft. Where be your gibes now;
your gambols, your songs? your flashes
of merriment, that were wont to set the table on a roar? Not one now, to mock
your own grinning? Quite chap-fallen?
Now get you to my lady's chamber, and
tell her, let her paint an inch thick, to
this favour she must come.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 204.

Look on its broken arch, its ruin'd wall,
Its chambers desolate, and portals foul :
Yes, this was once Ambition's airy hall,
The dome of Thought, the palace of the Soul<sup>1</sup> :

Behold through each lack-lustre, eyeless
hole :

The gay recess of Wisdom and of Wit,
And Passion's host, that never brook'd
control :

Can all saint, sage, or sophist ever writ,
People this lonely tower, this tenement
reft?

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 6.
[Meditations on a skull found in the Acropolis.]

EDMUND WALLER. On Tea.

Behold this ruin ! 'Twas a skull
Once of ethereal spirit full.
This narrow cell was Life's retreat,
This space was Thought's mysterious seat.
What beauteous visions filled this spot !
What dreams of pleasure long forgot !
Nor hope, nor joy, nor love, nor fear,
Have left one trace of record here.

ANON. Lines to a Skeleton.

Every family has a skeleton in the closet.

Proverb.

Mrs. Craigie. Dearest, every man—even the most cynical—has one enthusiasm—he
is earnest about some one thing; the all-round trifler does not exist. If there is a skeleton—there is also an idol in the cupboard !

JOHN OLIVER HOBBS. The Ambassador.
Act ii.

SLANDER.

(See CALUMNY ; GOSSIP.)

Pisanio. No, 'tis Slander ;
Whose edge is sharper than the sword,
whose tongue
Outvenoms all the worms of Nile ;
whose breath
Rides on the posting winds, and doth
belie
All comers of the world : Kings, Queens,
and States,
Maids, Matrons, nay, the secrets of the grave
This viperous slander enters.

SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc.
4. l. 35.

Slander's mark was ever yet the fair ;
The ornament of beauty is suspect,

<sup>1</sup> And keeps the palace of the soul.

A crow that flies in heaven's sweetest
air.

So thou be good, slander doth but ap-
prove

Thy worth the greater.

SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet. lxx.

Slander,

Whose whisper o'er the world's diameter,

As level as the cannon to his blank,
Transports his poison'd shot.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 40.

I'll devise some honest slanders
To stain my cousin with : One doth not
know

How much an ill word may enpoison
liking.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 85.

Done to death by slanderous tongues,
Was the Hero that here lies.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act v.
Sc. 3. l. 3.

Audacter calumniare, semper aliquid
haeret.

Hurl your calumnies boldly ; something is sure to stick.

BACON. De Augmentis Scientiarum. viii.
2.

Colomniez, calomniez, il en reste toujours
quelque chose.

Calumniate, calumniate, some of it will remain always.

BEAUMARCHAIS. Barbier de Séville.

[Archbishop Whately used to say, "If you only throw dirt enough, some of it is sure to stick."]

I hate the man who builds his name
On ruins of another's fame.

GAY. Fables. xlv. l. 1.

Squint-eyed Slander.

BEATTIE. The Judgment of Paris.

Slander, the foulest whelp of sin.

POLLOCK. Course of Time. Bk. viii. l.
725.

Skilled by a touch to deepen scandal's
tints,

With all the kind mendacity of hints,
While mingling truth with falsehood,
sneers with smiles,

A thread of candor with a web of wiles ;

A plain blunt show of briefly-spoken
seeming,
To hide her bloodless heart's soul-
harden'd scheming;
A lip of lies, a face formed to conceal;
And, without feeling, mock at all who
feel:
With a vile mask the Gorgon would
disown,
A cheek of parchment, and an eye of stone.

BYRON. Sketch. 1. 55.

Slander, meanest spawn of Hell—
And woman's slander is the worst.

TENNYSON. The Letters.

The tiny-trumpeting gnat can break our
dream

When sweetest; and the vermin voices
here

May buzz so loud—we scorn them—but they sting.

Ibid. Lancelot and Elaine.

SLAVERY.

(See NEGRO.)

Whatever day
Makes man a slave, takes half his worth
away.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xvii. 1. 392.
(POPE, trans.)

None can be free who is a slave to,
and ruled by, his passions.

PYTHAGORAS. Stobaeus, Florilegium. xviii.
23.

The most onerous slavery is to be a slave
to oneself.

SENECA. Natural Questions. iii. Praefatio. 17.

He that is one man's slave, is free
from none.

CHAPMAN. The Gentleman Usher. Act i.
Sc. 1.

Every bondman in his own hand bears
The power to cancel his captivity.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Caesar. Act i. Sc.
3. 1. 101.

O execrable son! so to aspire
Above his brethren, to himself assuming
Authority usurped from God, not given,
He gave us only over beast, fish, fowl,
Dominion absolute; that right we hold
By His donation; but man over men

He made not lord, such title to himself
Reserving, human left from human free.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. xii. l. 64.

The meanest Briton scorns the highest
slave.

ADDISON. The Campaign.

Disguise thyself as thou wilt, still,
Slavery, said I, still thou art a bitter
draught.

STERNE. Sentimental Journey. The Passport.

I would not have a slave to till my
ground,

To carry me, to fan me while I sleep
And tremble when I wake, for all the
wealth

That sinews bought and sold have ever
earn'd.

COWPER. The Task. Bk ii. l. 29.

Lord Mansfield first established the
grand doctrine that the air of England
is too pure to be breathed by a slave.

CAMPBELL. Lives of the Lord Chancellors.
Vol. ii. p. 418.

[The reference is to Mansfield's decision
in the case of James Somerset, a negro slave
from Jamaica, who, accompanying his master to England, claimed his freedom and
was brought into court on a writ of Habeas Corpus (1772). The decision upheld the argument of Hargrave, Somerset's counsel,
that England is "a soil whose air is deemed too pure for slaves to breathe in." But the words were Hargrave's, not Lord Mans-
field's. As reported in the State Trials, vol.
xx, p. 1, Lord Mansfield declared that—

Every man who comes into England is entitled to the protection of the English
law, whatever oppression he may heretofore
have suffered, and whatever may be the
color of his skin:

Quamvis ille niger, quamvis tu candidus.

Cowper has summarized the plea of Har-grave and its endorsement by Mansfield in
the famous lines:

Slaves cannot breathe in England; if their
lungs

Receive our air, that moment they are free!
They touch our country and their shackles
fall.

The Task. Bk. ii. The Timepiece. 1. 40.

Later John Philpot Curran amplified the
idea:

I speak in the spirit of the British law,
which makes liberty commensurate with
and inseparable from British soil; which proclaims even to the stranger and sojourner, the moment he sets his foot upon British earth, that the ground on which he treads is holy and consecrated by the genius
of universal emancipation.

Before any of these British authorities Bodinus, a French jurist who flourished in the sixteenth century had said :

servi peregrini, ut primum Gallie fines penetraverunt eodem momento liberi sunt.
Foreign slaves, as soon as they come within the limits of France, are free.

Works. Bk. i. Ch. v.]

That execrable sum of all villainies commonly called the slave-trade.

JOHN WESLEY. Journal. Feb. 12, 1792.

Where bastard Freedom waves
Her fustian flag in mockery over slaves.

MOORE. To the Lord Viscount Forbes.

Written from Washington, D. C.

The compact which exists between the North and the South is a covenant with death and an agreement with hell.

WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON. Resolution

Adopted by the Antislavery Society.
Jan. 27, 1843.

No more slave States; no slave Territories.

Platform of the Free Soil National Convention. 1848.

Where Slavery is, there Liberty cannot be; and where Liberty is, there Slavery cannot be.

CHARLES SUMNER. Speech: Slavery and the Rebellion.

I do not see how a barbarous community and a civilized community can constitute a state. I think we must get rid of slavery or we must get rid of freedom.

EMERSON. The Assault upon Mr. Sumner's Speech. May 26, 1856.

I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free.

LINCOLN. Speech. June 16, 1858.

This is a world of compensations, and he who would be no slave must consent to have no slave. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and, under a just God, they cannot long retain it.

Ibid. Letter. April 6, 1859. Declining to Attend Festival in Honor of Anniversary of Jefferson's Birthday.

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

New Testament. Mark iv.

Men! whose boast it is that ye
Come of fathers brave and free,
If there breathe on earth a slave,
Are ye truly free and brave?

LOWELL. Stanzas on Freedom.

SLEEP.

He giveth His beloved sleep.

Old Testament. Psalm cxxvii. 2.

Of all the thoughts of God that are
Borne inward into souls afar,
Along the Psalmist's music deep,
Now tell me if that any is,
For gift or grace, surpassing this—

"He giveth His beloved sleep"?

MRS. BROWNING. Sleep.

Diogenes the Cynic, when a little before his death he fell into a slumber, and his physician rousing him out of it asked him whether anything ailed him, wisely answered, "Nothing, sir; only one brother anticipates another,—Sleep before Death."

PLUTARCH. Apothegms. Diogenes.

Sleep and death, two twins of winged race,
Of matchless swiftness, but of silent pace.

POPE. Iliad. Bk. xvi. l. 831.

Care-charmer Sleep, son of the sable Night,
Brother to Death, in silent darkness born.

SAMUEL DANIEL. To Delia. Sonnet 51.

Come, gentle sleep! attend thy votary's prayer,

And, though Death's image, to my couch repair;

How sweet, though lifeless, yet with life to lie,

And, without dying, oh how sweet to die!

JOHN WOLCOTT. Epigram on Sleep.

[See under DEATH.]

Stulte, quid est somnus gelidæ nisi mortis imago?

O fool, what else is sleep but chill death's likeness?

OVID. Amores. ii. 9, 41.

Macduff. Shake off this drowsy sleep,
death's counterfeit,
And look on death itself.

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3.
l. 81.

Falstaff. I would 'twere bed-time,
Hal, and all well.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 125.

Iachimo. O sleep, thou ape of death.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 31.

Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a

cloak ; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii. Ch. lxviii. (LOCKHART, trans.)

God bless the man who first invented sleep,
So Sancho Panza said, and so say I ;
And bless him also that he did not keep
His great discovery to himself, nor try
To make it,—as the lucky fellow might,—
A close monopoly by patent-right.

JOHN G. SAXE. Early Rising.

Come Sleep ; oh sleep, the certain knot
of Peace,
The baiting place of wit, the balm of
woe,
The poor man's wealth, the prisoner's
release,
The indifferent judge, between the
high and low.

SIR PHILIP SYDNEY. Astrophel and Stella.
St. 39.

Belarius. Weariness

Can snore upon the flint, when resty
sloth

Finds the down pillow hard.

SHAKESPEARE. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc. 6.
l. 34.

The lowliest cot will give thee peaceful
sleep,

While Caius tosses on his bed of down.

MARTIAL. Epigrams. ix. 93, 3.

Friar Lawrence. Care keeps his watch
in every old man's eye,

And where care lodges, sleep will never
lie ;

But where unbruised youth with un-
stuff'd brain

Doth couch his limbs, there golden
sleep doth reign.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
ii. Sc. 3. l. 34.

I have not slept one wink.

Ibid. Cymbeline. Act iii. Sc. 3. l. 103.

Macbeth. Methought, I heard a voice
cry, Sleep no more !

Macbeth does murder Sleep !—The innocent sleep.

Sleep, that knits up the ravell'd sleeve
of care,

The death of each day's life, sore
Labour's bath,

Balm of hurt minds, great Nature's
second course,

Chief nourisher in life's feast. . . .

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc.
2. l. 34.

Witch. Sleep shall neither night nor
day

Hang upon his pent-house lid.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 19.

King Henry. O sleep, O gentle sleep, Nature's soft nurse, how have I frightened
thee,

That thou no more wilt weigh my eye-
lids down,

And steep my senses in forgetfulness ?

Why rather, sleep, liest thou in smoky
cribs,

Upon uneasy pallets stretching thee,

And hush'd with buzzing night-flies to
thy slumber,

Than in the perfum'd chambers of the great,

Under the canopies of costly state,

And lull'd with sounds of sweetest
melody ?

O thou dull god, why liest thou with
the vile

In loathsome beds, and leav'st the
kingly couch

A watch-case or a common 'larum-bell ?

Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 4.

King Henry. Canst thou, O partial
sleep, give thy repose

To the wet sea-boy in an hour so rude ;
And in the calmest and most stillest

night,

With all appliances, and means to boot,
Deny it to a king ? Then, happy low,

lie down !

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 26.

Bottom. And I pray you let none of your people stir me : I have an exposition of sleep come upon me.

The timely dew of sleep.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 146.

Ten thousand Angels on her slumbers
wait
With glorious Visions of her future
state.

DRYDEN. Hind and Panther.

Sweet are the slumbers of the virtuous
man.

ADDISON. Cato. Act v. Sc. 4.

Ede s'endormit du sommeil des justes.
She slept the sleep of the just.

RACINE. *Abrégé de l'Histoire de Port
Royal.* (Quevres, 1865, vol. iv. p.
519.)

Each night we die;

Each morn are born anew: each day a
life!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 286.

Tired nature's sweet restorer, balmy
sleep!

He, like the world, his ready visit pays Where fortune smiles—the wretched he
forsakes.

Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night i. l. 1.

Oh, we're a' noddin', nid, nid, noddin';
Oh, we're a' noddin' at our house at
hame.

LADY NAIRNE. We're a Noddin'.

Thou hast been called, O sleep! the
friend of woe;

But 'tis the happy who have called thee
so.

SOUTHEY. Curse of Kehama. Canto xv.
St. 12.

Oh sleep! it is a gentle thing,
Beloved from pole to pole.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. v.

Our life is two-fold; sleep hath its own
world,

A boundary between the things mis-
named

Death and existence: Sleep hath its own
world,

And a wide realm of wild reality.

BYRON. Dream. l. 1.

Strange state of being! (for 'tis still to
be)

Senseless to feel, and with seal'd eyes to
see.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto iv. St. 30.

O soft embalmer of the still midnight!
Shutting, with careful fingers and be-
nign,

Our gloom-pleased eyes, embower'd from
the light,
Enshaded in forgetfulness divine.

KEATS. To Sleep. Sonnet ix.

O magic sleep! O comfortable bird
That broodest o'er the troubled sea of
the mind

Till it is hush'd and smooth!

Ibid. Endymion. l. 456.

Sleep, my little one, sleep, my pretty
one, sleep.

TENNYSON. The Princess. iii. St. 2. last
line.

SMELL.

Falstaff. The rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nos-
tril.

SHAKESPEARE. *The Merry Wives of
Windsor.* Act iii. Sc. 5. l. 94.

Trinculo. He hath a very ancient and
fishlike smell.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act ii. Sc. 2.

In Köln, a town of monks and bones,
And pavement fang'd with murderous
stones,

And rags and hags, and hideous wenches,
I counted two-and-seventy stenchs,
All well defined, and several stinks!

COLERIDGE. Cologne.

Do you not smell a rat?

BEN JONSON. Tale of a Tub. Act iv. Sc.
3.

I smell a rat.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l.
821.

SMILE.

Hamlet. One may smile, and smile,
and be a villain.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 5. l.
108.

Smile with an intent to do mischief or
cozen him whom he salutes.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Democritus to the Reader.

Cæsar. Seldom he smiles, and smiles
in such a sort

As if he mock'd himself, and scorn'd
his spirit

That could be mov'd to smile at anything.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc.
2. l. 205.

But owned that smile, if oft observed and
near,
Waned in its mirth, and wither'd to a sneer.
BYRON. Lara. Canto i. St. 17.

To whom the angel, with a smile that
glowed
Celestial rosy red, love's proper hue.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 618.

For smiles from reason flow
To brute deny'd, and are of love the
food.
Ibid Paradise Lost. Bk. ix. l. 239.

When bold Sir Plume had drawn
Clarissa down,
Chloe stepp'd in, and kill'd him with a
frown;
She smiled to see the doughty hero slain,
But at her smile the beau revived again.
POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto v. l. 67.

A smile is ever the most bright and beautiful with a tear upon it. What is the dawn without the dew? The tear
is rendered by the smile precious above
the smile itself.

LANDOE. Imaginary Conversations:
Dante and Gemma Donati.

With a smile on her lips and a tear
in her eye.
SCOTT. Marmion. Canto v. St. 12.

Reproof on her lips, but a smile in her
eye.

SAMUEL LOVER. Rory O'More.

In came Mrs. Fezziwig, one vast substantial smile.
DICKENS. Christmas Carol. Stave 2.

With the smile that was child-like
and bland.

BRET HARTE. Plain Language from
Truthful James. St. 4. l. 6.

SNOW.

Her cap, far whiter than the driven
snow,
Emblems right meet of decency does
yield.
WILLIAM SHENSTONE. The Schoolmistress.
St. 6.

Through the sharp air a flaky torrent
flies,
Mocks the slow sight, and hides the
gloomy skies;

The fleecy clouds their chilly bosoms
bare,
And shed their substance on the floating
air.

CRAEBE. Inebriety.

Out of the bosom of the Air,
Out of the cloud-folds of her garments
shaken,
Over the woodlands brown and bare,
Over the harvest-fields forsaken,
Silent and soft and slow
Descends the snow.

LONGFELLOW. Snow-flakes.

Announced by all the trumpets of the
sky,
Arrives the snow, and, driving o'er the
fields,
Seems nowhere to alight: the whited
air
Hides hills and woods, the river, and
the heaven,
And veils the farmhouse at the garden's
end.
The sled and traveller stopped, the
courier's feet
Delayed, all friends shut out, the house-
mates sit
Around the radiant fireplace, enclosed
In a tumultuous privacy of storm.

EMERSON. The Snow-storm.

The frolic architecture of the snow.
Ibid. The Snow-storm.

SNOB.

He who meanly admires a mean
thing is a Snob—perhaps that is a safe
definition of the character.

THACKERAY. Book of Snobs. Ch. ii.

... rough to common men,
But honeying to the whisper of a lord.
ALFRED, LORD TENNYSON. The Princess.
Prologue. ll. 114, 115.

SOLDIER.

Othello. 'Tis the soldiers' life
To have their balmy slumbers wak'd
with strife.
SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3. l.
257.

Iago. 'Tis the curse of the service,
Preferment goes by letter and affection,
Not by the old gradation, where each
second

Stood heir to the first.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act i. Sc. 1.

Falstaff. Food for powder: they'll fill
a pit as well as better; tush, man, mortal
men, mortal men.

Ibid. I. Henry IV. Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 71.

Iago. A soldier's a man: O man's
life's but a span;
Why, then, let a soldier drink?

Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3.

Acheruntis pabulum.

Food for Acheron.

PLAUTUS. Casina. ii. 1, 2.

Fie, my lord, fie! a soldier and
afear'd?

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act v. Sc. 1.
1. 41.

Cassius. I said, an elder soldier, not a better:

Did I say "better"?

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iv. Sc. 3. 1. 56.

But we are soldiers;

And may that soldier a mere recreant
prove,
That means not, hath not, or is not in
love!

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act 1. Sc.
3. 1. 286.

The country rings with loud alarms,
And raw in fields the rude militia
swarms;

Mouths without hands; maintain'd at
vast expense,

In peace a charge, in war a weak defence:

Stout once a month they march, a blus-
tering band,

And ever, but in times of need, at hand.
This was the morn, when, issuing on

the guard,
Drawn up in rank and file they stood
prepared

Of seeming arms to make a short essay,
Then hasten to be drunk, the business
of the day.

DRYDEN. Cymon and Iphigenia. 1. 399.

There's but the twinkling of a star
Between a man of peace and war.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto iii. l.
957.

Such is the country maiden's fright,
When first a red-coat is in sight;
Behind the door she hides her face;
Next time at distance eyes the lace.

GAY. Fables. Pt. i. Fable 13.

The sex is ever to a soldier kind.

POPE. The Odyssey of Homer. Bk. XIV.
l. 246.

The broken soldier, kindly bade to stay,
Sat by his fire, and talk'd the night
away;

Wept o'er his wounds, or, tales of sorrow done,

Shoulder'd his crutch, and show'd how
fields were won.

GOLDSMITH. Deserted Village. l. 155.

Of boasting more than bomb afraid,
A soldier should be modest as a maid.

YOUNG. Love of Fame. Satire iv.

Glory is the sodger's prize,
The sodger's wealth is honour.

BURNS. When Wild War's Deadly Blast.

Soldier, rest! thy warfare o'er,
Sleep the sleep that knows not break-
ing;

Dream of battled fields no more,
Days of danger, nights of waking.

SIR W. SCOTT. The Lady of the Lake.
Canto i. 31.

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat

The soldier's last tattoo;

No more on Life's parade shall meet

The brave and fallen few.

On Fame's eternal camping-ground

Their silent tents are spread,

And Glory guards, with solemn round

The bivouac of the dead.

THEODORE O'HARA. The Bivouac of the
Dead. St. 1.

Who, doomed to go in company with Pain

And Fear and Bloodshed,—miserable
train!—

Turns his necessity to glorious gain.

Warrior.

Controls them and subdues, transmutes,
bereaves
Of their bad influence, and their good
receives.

WORDSWORTH. Character of the Happy Warrior.

But who, if he be called upon to face
Some awful moment to which Heaven
has joined
Great issues, good or bad for humankind,
Is happy as a lover.

Ibid. Character of the Happy Warrior.

And through the heat of conflict keeps
the law
In calmness made, and sees what he foresaw.

Whom neither shape of danger can dis-
may,

Nor thought of tender happiness betray.

Last night, among his fellow-roughs

He jested, quaffed, and swore;

A drunken private of the Buffs,

Who never looked before.

To-day, beneath the foeman's frown,

He stands in Elgin's place,

Ambassador from Britain's crown,

And type of all her race.

SIR FRANCIS DOYLE. The Private of the Buffs.

Their's not to make reply,

Their's not to reason why,

Their's but to do and die.

TENNYSON. Charge of Light Brigade.
St 2. ll. 5-7.

Why, soldiers, why

Should we be melancholy, boys?

Why, soldiers, why,

Whose business 'tis to die.

ANON.

Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that,
an' "Tommy, 'ow's yer soul?"

But it's "Thin red line of 'eroes" when
the drums begin to roll.

RUDYARD KIPLING. Tommy.

O it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that,
an' "Tommy, go away,"

But it's "Thank you, Mister Atkins,"
when the band begins to play.

Ibid. Tommy.

SONG.

Then from a neighbouring thicket the
mocking-bird, wildest of singers,
Swinging aloft on a willow-spray that
hung o'er the water, Shook from his little throat such floods
of delirious music

That the whole air and the woods and
the waves seemed silent to listen.

H. W. LONGFELLOW. Evangeline. Pt. ii.
2. ll. 133-6.

That's the wise thrush; he sings each
song twice over,

Lest you should think he never could
recapture

The first fine careless rapture.

Ibid. Home-Thoughts from Abroad. ll.

June's bridesman, poet o' the year,
Gladness on wings, the bobolink, is here;
Half-hid in tip-top apple-blossoms he
swings,

Or climbs against the breeze with quiv-
erin' wings,

Or givin' way to 't in a mock despair,
Runs down a brook o' laughter, thru'
the air.

LOWELL. The Biglow Papers. Ser. ii.
letter 6.

I think that life is not too long;

And therefore I determine,

That many people read a song

Who will not read a sermon.

Præd. Ballad of Brazenhead.

SONNET.

Scorn not the sonnet. Critic, you have
frowned,

Mindless of its just honors; with this
key

Shakespeare unlocked his heart.

WORDSWORTH. Scorn not the Sonnet.

With this same key
Shakespeare unlocked his heart? once more Did Shakespeare? If so, the less Shakespeare he!

R. BROWNING. House.

And when a damp Fell round the path of Milton, in his
hand

The thing became a trumpet; whence
he blew

Soul-animating strains,—alas! too few.
WORDSWORTH. Scorn not the Sonnet.

Yon silvery billows breaking on the beach

Fall back in foam beneath the star-shine
clear,

The while my rhymes are murmuring
in your ear

A restless lore like that the billows
teach;

For on these sonnet-waves my soul
would reach

From its own depths, and rest within
you, dear,

As, through the billowy voices yearning
here,

Great nature strives to find a human
speech.

A sonnet is a wave of melody:

From heaving waters of the impassion'd
soul

A billow of tidal music one and whole Flows in the "octave"; then returning
free,

Its ebbing surges in the "sestet" roll
Back to the deeps of Life's tumultuous
sea.

THEODORE WATTS. *The Sonnet's Voice:
A Metrical Lesson by the Seashore.*

The Sonnet is a world, where feelings
caught

In webs of phantasy, combine and
fuse

Their kindred elements 'neath mystic
dews

Shed from the ether round man's dwelling wrought;

Distilling heart's content, star-fragrance
fraught

With influences from the breathing
fires

Of heaven in everlasting endless
gyres

Enfolding and encircling orbs of
thought.

Our Sonnet's world hath two fixed hemi-
spheres:

This, where the sun with fierce strength
masculine

Pours his keen rays and bids the noon-
day shine;

That, where the moon and the stars,
concordant powers,
Shed milder rays, and daylight disap-
pears

In low melodious music of still hours.
JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS. The Sonnet.
iii.

SOPHIST; SOPHISM.

Who shames a scribbler? Break one
cobweb through,

He spins the slight, self-pleasing thread
anew:

Destroy his fib, or sophistry, in vain,
The creature's at his dirty work again.
POPE. Prologue to the Satires. l. 89.

Here the self-torturing sophist, wild
Rousseau,

The apostle of affliction, he who threw Enchantment over passion, and from
woe

Wrung overwhelming eloquence, first
drew

The breath which made him wretched.
BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St.
77.

SORROW.

(See GRIEF; MISERY; MISFORTUNE.)

Constance. Oh! if thou teach me to
believe this sorrow,

Teach thou this sorrow how to make me
die;

And let belief and life encounter so,
As doth the fury of two desperate men,
Which, in the very meeting, fall, and
die.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iii. Sc.
1. l. 99.

Richard. In wooing sorrow let's be
brief,

Since, wedding it, there is such length
in grief.

Ibid. Richard II. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 93.

Hysterica passio, down, thou climbing
sorrow,

Thy element's below.

Ibid. King Lear. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 57.

Lear. Henceforth I'll bear

Affliction till it do cry out itself,
Enough, enough, and die.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iv. Sc. 6. l. 75.

Horatio. A countenance more in sorrow than in anger.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 232.

Do not drop in for an after-loss,
Ah, do not, when my heart hath 'scap'd
this sorrow,
Come in the rearward of a conquer'd
woe;
Give not a windy night a rainy mor-
row,
To linger out a purpos'd overthrow.

Ibid. Sonnet. xc.

The path of sorrow, and that path
alone,
Leads to the land where sorrow is unknown.

COWPER. To an Afflicted Protestant Lady.

Ah, what a warning for a thoughtless
man,
Could field or grove, could any spot of
earth,
Show to his eye an image of the
pangs
Which it hath witnessed,—render back
an echo
Of the sad steps by which it hath been trod!

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. vi.

Lift not the festal mask!—enough to
know,
No scene of mortal life but teems with
mortal woe.

SIR W. SCOTT. Lord of the Isles. Canto
ii. 1.

I was not always a man of woe.

Ibid. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto i.
St. 12

I stood in unimaginable trance
And agony that cannot be remembered.

COLERIDGE. Remorse. Act iv. Sc. 3.

A sadder and a wiser man,
He rose the morrow morn.

Ibid. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. vii.

Doch grosse Seelen dulden still.

Great souls suffer in silence.

SCHILLER. Don Carlos. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 52.

Meine Ruh ist hin,
Mein Herz ist schwer.

My peace is gone, my heart is
heavy.

GOETHE. Faust. Pt. i. l. 15.

To sorrow

I bade good-morrow

And thought to leave her far away behind;

But cheerly, cheerly,

She loves me dearly;

She is so constant to me and so kind.

KEATS. Endymion. Bk. iv.

Sorrow more beautiful than beauty's
self.

Ibid. Hyperion. Bk. iv.

Your sorrow, only sorrow's shade,

Keeps real sorrow far away.

TENNYSON. Margaret.

Comfort? comfort scorn'd of devils!

this is truth the poet sings,

That a sorrow's crown of sorrow is remembering happier things

Ibid. Locksley Hall

[The poet is Dante, and the particular passage is one of the most famous in the
Divine Comedy (Inferno, Canto v., l. 121):

Nessun maggior dolore
Che ricordarsi del tempo felice
Nella miseria.
No greater grief than to remember days
Of joy when misery is at hand.

(CARY, trans.)

There is no greater sorrow
Than to be mindful of the happy time
In misery.

(LONGFELLOW, trans.)

Chaucer has the same thought:

For of fortunes sharpe adversite,
The worst kind of infortune is this,—
A man that hath been in prosperite,
And it remember whan it passed is.

Troilus and Cressida. Bk. iii. l. 1625.

Probably both Chaucer and Dante found
their inspiration in Boëthius:

In omne adversitate fortunae infelicissi-
mum genus est infortunii fuisse felicem.

In every reverse of fortune, the most unhappy condition of misfortune is to have
known happiness.

De Consolatione Philosophiae. ii. 4.]

brance!

SOUL.

For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

New Testament. Matthew xvi. 26.

Yet stab at thee who will,
No stab the soul can kill!
SIR WALTER RALEIGH. The Farewell.

I have a soul that like an ample shield
Can take in all, and verge enough for
more.

DRYDEN. Don Sebastian. Act i. Sc. 1.

Give ample room and verge enough.
GRAY. The Bard. ii. 1.

The soul, uneasy, and confined from
home,

Rests and expatiates in a life to come.
POPE. Essay on Man. Epis. 1. 1. 97.

Or looks on heaven with more than
mortal eyes,

Bids his free soul expatiate in the skies,
Amid her kindred stars familiar roam,
Survey the region, and confess her home!
Ibid. Windsor Forest. 1. 264.

Above the vulgar flight of common
souls.

ARTHUR MURPHY. Zenobia. Act v. Sc.
1. 1. 154.

A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify:
A never-dying soul to save
And fit it for the sky.

CHARLES WESLEY. Hymns. 318.

There was a little man and he had a
little soul;

And he said, "Little soul, let us try,
try, try."

MOORE. Little Man and Little Soul.

Those obstinate questionings
Of sense and outward things,
Fallings from us, vanishings,
Blank misgivings of a creature
Moving about in worlds not realized,
High instincts before which our mortal
nature

Did tremble like a guilty thing surprised.

WORDSWORTH. Ode on the Intimations of Immortality. St. 9.

For the gods approve
The depths and not the tumult of the
soul.

Ibid. Laodamia.

But who would force the soul, tilts with a straw
Against a champion cased in adamant

Ibid. Ecclesiastical Sonnets. *Persecution
of the Scottish Covenanters*. Pt. iii. 7.

The soul of man is larger than the sky,
Deeper than ocean, or the abysmal dark
Of the unfathomed centre.

HARTLEY COLERIDGE. Poems. *To Shake-
speare*,

And I have written three books on the
soul,

Proving absurd all written hitherto,
And putting us to ignorance again.

ROBERT BROWNING. Cleon.

Light flows our war of mocking words,
and yet,

Behold, with tears mine eyes are wet!
I feel a nameless sadness o'er me roll.

Yes, yes, we know that we can jest,
We know, we know that we can smile!

But there's a something in this breast,
To which thy light words bring no rest,

And thy gay smiles no anodyne;
Give me thy hand, and hush awhile,

And turn those limpid eyes on mine,
And let me read there, love! thy in-
most soul.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. The Buried Life.

'T is an awkward thing to play with
souls,

And matter enough to save one's own:
Yet think of my friend, and the burning coals:

We played with for bits of stone!

BROWNING. A Light Woman.

Yet still, from time to time, vague and
forlorn,

From the soul's subterranean depth up-
borne

As from an infinitely distant land,
Come airs, and floating echoes, and convey

A melancholy into all our day.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. The Buried Life.

SPEECH.

Out of the abundance of the heart the
mouth speaketh.

New Testament. Matthew xii. 34.

[Frequently quoted in the Latin form from
the Vulgate:

Ex abundantia cordis os loquitur.]

My tongue will tell the anger of my heart;
O, else my heart, concealing it, will break.

SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew.
Act iv. Sc. 2. 1. 00.

Quid de quoque viro, et cui dicas,
sæpe caveto.

Beware, if there is room
For warning, what you mention, and to whom.

HORACE. Epistles 1, 18, 68. (CONINGTON,
trans.)

If you your lips would keep from slips
Five things observe with care;
To whom you speak, of whom you speak,
And how, and when, and where.

ANON.

POPE. Odyssey of Homer. Bk. iv. l. 1092.

Then he will talk—good gods, how he
will talk!

NATHANIEL LEE. Alexander the Great.
Act 1. Sc. 1.

Mend your speech a little,
Lest it may mar your fortunes.
SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act 1. Sc. 1.
l. 96.

such,

Who think too little, and who talk too
much.

DRYDEN. Absalom and Achitophel. Pt. i.
l. 533.

They never taste who always drink;
They always talk who never think.

PRIOR. Upon a Passage in Scaligeriana.

They only babble who practise not reflection.

SHERIDAN. Pizarro. Act i. Sc. 1.

But still his tongue ran on, the less
Of weight it bore, with greater ease.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto ii. l.
443.

They would talk of nothing but high
life, and high-lived company, with other
fashionable topics, such as pictures,
taste, Shakespeare, and the musical
glasses.

GOLDSMITH. The Vicar of Wakefield.
Ch. ix.

Speech, thought's canal! speech,
thought's criterion, too!

Thought in the mine, may come forth
gold or dross;

When coin'd in words, we know its real
worth.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 469.

Words learned by rote a parrot may
rehearse,

But talking is not always to converse;
Not more distinct from harmony divine
The constant creaking of a country sign.

COWPER. Conversation. l. 7.

La parole a été donné à l'homme
pour déguiser sa pensée.

Speech has been given to man to conceal his thoughts.

[A famous mot currently attributed to Talleyrand during his lifetime. After Tal-
leyrand's death, Harel, the famous fabri-
cator of mots which he attributed to the illustrous, claimed that he himself had put this phrase into Talleyrand's mouth. In any event, the phrase was not original. The verbal form, with the change of a single word, is borrowed from Molière:—

La parole a été donnée à l'homme pour
exprimer ses pensées.

Le Mariage Forcé. Sc. v.

It will be seen that the mere substitution
of "déguiser" (to disguise) for "exprimer"
(to express) converts a truism into a paradox.

But the paradox itself was stolen, as well as its verbal clothing. Voltaire, in his satiric dialogue, Le Chapon et la Poularde, written in 1766, makes his capon complain of the treachery of men:

Ils ne se servent de la pensée que pour autoriser leurs injustices, et emploient les paroles que pour déguiser leurs pensées.

Men use thought only to justify their wrong doings, and employ words only to conceal their thoughts.

Oeuvres Complètes. Vol. xxix., p. 83, ed. 1822.

Seven years previous Goldsmith had said much the same thing:

The true use of speech is not so much to express our wants as to conceal them.

The Bee, No. 3. Oct. 29, 1759.

Now, in this same year, 1759, there appeared a posthumous collection of "Samuel Butler's Remains," which Goldsmith reviewed in the Critical Review for July 1, 1759. It is not impossible that Goldsmith's eye may have fallen upon the following passage:

He who does not make his words rather serve to conceal than discover the sense of his heart, deserves to have it pulled out like a traitor's, and strewn publicly to the rabble.

BUTLER. Remains. Vol. ii. p. 25.

O monstrous, dead, unprofitable world,
That thou canst hear, and hearing, hold
thy way!

A voice oracular hath peal'd to-day,
To-day a hero's banner is unfurl'd.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Written in Emerson's Essays.

Goldsmith may also have been familiar with these lines of Young's:

Where Nature's end of language is declin'd,
And men talk only to conceal the mind.

Love of Fame. Satire ii. l. 207.

Likewise, both Goldsmith and Young may have read one or both of these passages:

In short, this seems to be the true inward judgment of all our politic sages, that speech was given to the ordinary sort of men whereby to communicate their mind, but to wise men whereby to conceal it.

ROBERT SOUTH. Sermon Preached in Westminster Abbey. April 30, 1676.

Speech was made to open man to man,
and not to hide him; to promote commerce,
and not betray it.

LLOYD. State Worthies. (1665; edited by Whitworth). Vol. i. p. 503.

A far-off likeness to the thought may be found in the following quotations:

It oft falls out,

To have what we would have, we speak not what we mean.

Measure for Measure. Act ii. Sc. 4.

Perspicite tecum tacitus quid quisque loquatur:

Sermo hominum mores et celat et indicat
idem.

Consider in silence whatever any one says: speech both conceals and reveals the inner soul of man.

DIONYSIUS CATO. Distich. iv. 20.

It is easy for men to talk one thing and think another.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 322.

Who dares think one thing, and another

iii. Sc. 5.

That large utterance of the early gods!

KEATS. Hyperion. Bk. i.

Thou mindest me of gentle folks,

Old gentle-folks are they,

Thou sayst an undisputed thing

In such a solemn way.

HOLMES. The Katydid.

And when you stick on conversation's
burrs,

Don't strew your pathway with those dreadful urs.

Ibid. A Rhymed Lesson: Urania.

Who hath given man speech? or who hath set therein

A thorn for peril and a snare for sin?

A. C. SWINBURNE. Atalanta in Calydon (Chorus).

SPENSER, EDMUND.

Here nigh to Chaucer, Spenser, stands
thy hearse,

Still nearer standst thou to him in thy
verse

Whilst thou didst live, lived English
poetry ;
Now thou art dead, it fears that it shall
die.

ANON. Epitaph on Spenser.

[The quatrain is preserved in William Camden's *Reges Reginae Nobiles et alii in Ecclesia Collegiata B. Petri Westmonasterii
Sepulti usque ad annum, 1606.*]

Discouraged, scorned, his writings vilified,

Poorly—poor man—he lived ; poorly—
poor man—he died.

PHINEAS FLETCHER. The Purple Island.
iv. 19.

The nobility of the Spencers has been
illustrated and enriched by the trophies
of Marlborough, but I exhort them to consider the Faerie Queene as the most precious jewel of their coronet.

EDWARD GIBBON. Memoirs. p. 3.

A silver trumpet Spenser blows,
And as its martial notes to silence flee,
From a virgin chorus flows

A hymn in praise of spotless Chastity.
'Tis still Wild ! warblings from the
Æolian lyre

Enchantment softly breathe, and trem-
blingly expire.

KEATS. Ode to Apollo. St. 6.

Spenser to me, whose deep conceit is such
As passing all conceit needs no defence.

RICHARD BARNFIELD. To His Friend,
Master R. I.

[This couplet is also in Passionate Pilgrim.
St. 6.]

Like Spenser ever in thy Fairy Queene, Whose like (for deep conceit) was never
seene :

Crowned mayst thou unto thy more re-
nowne

(As King of Poets) with a Lawrell
Crown.

Ibid. Remembrance of Some English Poets.

Old Spenser next, warmed with poetic
rage,

In ancient tales amused a barbarous age.

But now the mystic tale that pleased of
yore

Can charm an understanding age no
more.

We view well-pleased at distance all the sights

Of arms and palfreys, battle-fields and fights

And damsels in distress and courteous
knights ;

But, when we look too near, the shades
decay,

And all the pleasing landscape fades
away.

JOSEPH ADDISON. An Account of the Greatest English Poets.

SPIDER.

There webs were spread of more than
common size,

And half-starved spiders prayed on half-
starved flies.

CHURCHILL. The Prophecy of Famine.
l. 327.

The spider's touch, how exquisitely fine !
Feels at each thread, and lives along the
line.

POPE. Essay on Man. Es. l. 1. 217.

Much like a subtle spider, which doth sit
In middle of her web, which spreadeth
wide :

If aught do touch the utmost thread of it,
She feels it instantly on every side.

SIR JOHN DAVIES. *The Immortality of
the Soul.* Sec. xviii. Feeling.

Or almost like a spider, who, confin'd
In her web's centre, shakt with every winde,
Moves in an instant if the buzzing fie
Stir but a string of her lawn canopy.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Workes.
First Week. Sixth Day. JOHN SYL-
VESTER, trans.

Our souls sit close and silently within,
And their own web from their own entrails
spin ;

And when eyes meet far off, our sense is
such,

That, spider-like, we feel the tenderest
touch.

DRYDEN. Marriage à la Mode. Act ii.
Sc. 1.

"Will you walk into my parlour?" said
a spider to a fly,

"'Tis the prettiest little parlour that
ever you did spy."

MARY HOWITT. The Spider and the Fly.

SPIRE.

Who taught that heaven-directed
spire to rise ?

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 261.

How the tall temples, as to meet their
gods,
Ascend the skies !
YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vi. l. 781.

Ye swelling hills and spacious plains !
Besrent from shore to shore with steeple
towers,
And spires whose "silent finger points
to heaven."
WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. vi. l. 17.

[The quotation marks are an acknowledgment of indebtedness to Coleridge :
An instinctive taste teaches men to build
their churches in flat countries, with spire steeple, which, as they cannot be referred to any other object, point as with silent
finger to the sky and star.

The Friend. Sec. i. No. 14.] ?

At leaving even the most unpleasant
people
And places, one keeps looking at the steeple.
BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ii. St. 14.

I waited for the train at Coventry ;
I hung with grooms and porters on the
bridge ;
To watch the three tall spires ; and
there I shaped
The city's ancient legend into this.
TENNYSON. Godiva.

Full seven-score years our city's pride—
The comely Southern spire—
Has cast its shadow, and defied
The storm, the foe, the fire ;
Sad is the sight our eyes behold ;
Woe to the three-hilled town,
When through the land the tale is told—
The brave "Old South" is down.
O. W. HOLMES. *An Appeal for the Old
South Church*.

SPIRIT.

Aërial spirits, by great Jove design'd
To be on earth the guardians of mankind :
Invisible to mortal eyes they go,
And mark our actions, good or bad,
below :
The immortal spies with watchful care
preside,
And thrice ten thousand round their
charges glide.
HESIOD. Works and Days. l. 164.

Millions of spiritual creatures walk the
earth
Unseen, both when we wake and when we
sleep.
MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 677.

Unnumber'd spirits round thee fly,
The light militia of the lower sky.
POPE. The Rape of the Lock. Canto i. l.
41.

Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extravagant and erring spirit hies
To his confine.
SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 1. l.
153.

Ariel. Pardon, master :
I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently.
Ibid. The Tempest. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 298.

Glendower. I can tell spirits from the
vasty deep.
Hotspur. Why, so can I ; or so can any man ; but will they come, if you
do call for them ?
Ibid. Henry IV. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 52.

When some were saying that if Cæsar
should march against the city they could not see what forces there were to resist him,
Pompey replied with a smile, bidding them
be in no concern, "for whenever I stamp
my foot in any part of Italy there will rise up forces enough in an instant, both horse
and foot."

PLUTARCH. Life of Pompey.

Of calling shapes, and beck'ning shadows dire
And airy tongues that syllable men's names.
MILTON. Comus. l. 207.

Spirits when they please
Can either sex assume, or both ; so soft
And uncompounded is their essence
pure,
Not tied or manacled with joint or limb,
Nor founded on the brittle strength of
bones,
Like cumbrous flesh ; but in what shape
they choose,
Dilated or condensed, bright or obscure,
Can execute their aëry purposes,
And works of love or enmity fulfil.
Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 423.

Spirits that live throughout
Vital in every part, not as frail man
In entrails, heart or head, liver or reins,
Cannot but by annihilating die ;

Nor in their liquid texture mortal
wound

Receive, no more than can the fluid
air:

All heart they live, all head, all eye, all
ear,

All intellect, all sense; and as they
please

They limb themselves, and color, shape,
or size

Assume, as likes them best, condense or rare.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. vi. l. 344.

Take, O boatman, thrice thy fee,—

Take, I give it willingly;

For, invisible to thee,

Spirits twain have crossed with me.

UHLAND. The Passage. Edinburgh Review. October, 1832. (SARAH AUSTIN, trans.)

The stranger at my fireside cannot see

The forms I see, nor hear the sounds I
hear;

He but perceives what is; while unto me

All that has been is visible and clear.

LONGFELLOW. Haunted House.

If only in dreams may man be fully
blest,

Is heav'n a dream? Is she I clasp'd a dream?

Or stood she here even now where dew-
drops gleam

And miles of furze shine golden down
the West?

I seem to clasp her still—still on my
breast

Her bosom beats,—I see the blue eyes
beam:—

I think she kiss'd these lips, for now
they seem

Scarce mine: so hallow'd of the lips
they press'd!

Yon thicket's breath—can that be
eglantine?

Those birds—can they be morning's
choristers?

Can this be earth? Can these be banks
of furze?

Like burning bushes fir'd of God they
shine!

I seem to know them, though this body
of mine

Pass'd into spirit at the touch of hers!

THEODORE WATTS. The First Kiss.

SPRING.

The seson pricketh every gentil herte,
And maketh him out of his slepe to sterre.

CHAUCER. The Knightes Tale. l. 1045.

Sweet April showers

Do bring May flowers.

TUSSER. Five Hundred Points of Good Husbandry. Ch. xxxix.

As it fell upon a day

In the merry month of May,

Sitting in a pleasant shade

Which a grove of myrtles made.

RICHARD BARNFIELD. Address to the Nightingale.

Cæsar. The ides of March are come.

Soothsayer. Ay, Cæsar; but not gone.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 1.

Cæsar said to the soothsayer, "The ides
of March are come"; who answered him calmly, "Yes, they are come, but they are not past."

PLUTARCH. Life of Cæsar.

It was a lover, and his lass,

With a hey, and a ho, and a hey
nonino,

That o'er the green corn-field did pass,
In spring-time, the only pretty ring

time,
When birds do sing, hey ding a ding,
ding;

Sweet lovers love the spring.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act v.
Sc. 3. (Song.)

Capulet. When well apparel'd April on the heel

Of limping winter treads.

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 27.

When daisies pied, and violets blue,

And lady-smocks all silver white,

And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue,

Do paint the meadows with delight.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc.
2. (Song.)

Antony. The April's in her eyes: it is Love's spring,

And these the showers to bring it on.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act iii. Sc.
2. l. 43.

When proud-pied April, dressed in all
his trim,
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything.
SHAKESPEARE. Sonnet xcviil.

Unruly blasts wait on the tender
spring.

Ibid. Rape of Lucrece.

Sweet spring, full of sweet days and
roses,

A box where sweets compacted lie.
GEORGE HERBERT. Virtue.

Now the bright morning-star, Day's
harbinger,
Comes dancing from the east, and leads
with her

The flowery May, who, from her green
lap, throws

The yellow crowslip, and the pale primrose.

Hail, bounteous May, that dost inspire
Mirth and youth, and warm desire!

Woods and groves are of thy dressing;
Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing.

Thus we salute thee with our early song,
And welcome thee and wish thee long.

MILTON. Song on May Morning.

Come, gentle Spring, ethereal mildness,
come;

And from the bosom of your dropping
cloud,

While music wakes around, veiled in a shower

Of shadowing roses, on our plains descend.

THOMSON. Seasons: Spring. 1. 1.

But winter lingering chills the lap of May.

GOLDSMITH. The Traveller. 1. 172.

Now spring returns: but not to me returns

The vernal joy my better years have
known;

Dim in my breast life's dying taper
burns,

And all the joys of life with health
are flown.

MICHAEL BRUCE. Elegy Written in Spring.

The first of April, some do say,

Is set apart for All Fool's day;

But why the people call it so,

Nor I, nor they themselves, do know.

Poor Robin's Almanac. 1760. All Fool's
Day.

Spring hangs her infant blossoms on the trees,

Rocked in the cradle of the western breeze.

COWPER. Tirocinium. 1. 43.

Health on the gale, and freshness in the stream.

BYRON. Lara. Canto ii. St. 2.

Spring would be but gloomy weather,
If we had nothing else but Spring.

T. MOORE. Juvenile Poems. To —.

The bud is in the bough, and the leaf is
in the bud,

And Earth's beginning now in her veins
to feel the blood,

Which, warmed by summer suns in the
alembic of the vine,

From her founts will overrun in a ruddy
gush of wine.

The perfume and the bloom that shall
decorate the flower,

Are quickening in the gloom of their
subterranean bower;

And the juices meant to feed trees,
vegetables, fruits,

Unerringly proceed to their pre-
appointed roots.

HORACE SMITH. First of March.

When Spring unlocks the flowers to paint the laughing soil.

BISHOP HEBER. Hymn for Seventh Sun-
day after Trinity.

In the spring a livelier iris changes on
the burnish'd dove;

In the spring a young man's fancy
lightly turns to thoughts of love.

TENNYSON. Locksley Hall. 1. 19.

And even into my inmost ring

A pleasure I discern'd,

Like those blind motions of the Spring,
That show the year is turn'd.

Ibid. The Talking Oak.

You must wake and call me early, call
me early, mother dear,

To-morrow 'll be the happiest time of
all the glad New Year;

Of all the glad New Year, mother, the
maddest, merriest day;

For I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother,
I'm to be Queen o' the May.

Ibid. The May-Queen. St. 1.

SPY.

Then she rode back, clothed on with chastity :
And one low churl, compact of thankless
earth,
The fatal byword of all years to come.
Boring a little augur-hole in fear, Peep'd—but his eyes, before they had their will
Were shrivell'd into darkness in his head,
And dropt before him. So the Powers,
who wait
On noble deeds, cancell'd a sense misused.

TENNYSON. Godiva.

STAGE.

(See THEATRE.)

Jaques. All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players.
They have their exits and their entrances ;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages. At first the infant,
Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.
And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel
And shining morning face, creeping like
snail Unwillingly to school. And then the lover,
Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad
Made to his mistress' eyebrow. Then a soldier,
Full of strange oaths and bearded like
the bard ;
Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in
quarrel,
Seeking the bubble reputation
Even in the cannon's mouth. And then the justice,
In fair round belly with good capon lined,
With eyes severe and beard of formal cut,
Full of wise saws and modern instances ;

And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloen, With spectacles on nose and pouch on
side ;
His youthful hose, well saved, a world
too wide
For his shrunk shank ; and his big manly voice,
Turning again toward childish treble,
pipes
And whistles in his sound. Last scene of all,
That ends this strange eventful history,
Is second childishness and mere oblivion,
Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act ii.
Sc. 7 l. 139.

I take the world to be but as a stage,
Where net-maskt men do play their personage.

DU BARTAS. Dialogue Between Heraclitus and Democritus

Pythagoras said, that this world was like a stage
Wherein many play their parts : the lookerson the sage Philosophers are, saith he, whose part is to learn
The manners of all nations, and the good from the bad to discern.

R. EDWARDS. Damon and Pithias.

Is it not a noble farce, wherein kings, republics, and emperors have for so many ages played their parts, and to which the whole vast universe serves for a theatre ?

MONTAIGNE. Essays : Of the Most Excellent Men.

The world's a stage on which all parts are played

THOMAS MIDDLETON. A Game at Chess.
Act v. Sc. 1.

Bassanio. I hold the world but as the world, Gratiano ;
A stage, where every man must play a part,
And mine a sad one.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
i. Sc. 1. l. 76.

Duke S. Thou seest, we are not all alone unhappy ;
This wide and universal theatre Presents more woeful pageants than the scene
Wherein we play in.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act ii. Sc. 7. l. 137.

The world's a theatre, the earth a stage
Which God and Nature do with actors fill.
THOMAS HEYWOOD. Applying for Actors.

The world's a stage where God's omnipotence,
His justice, knowledge, love, and providence
Do act the parts.

DU BARTAS. Divine Weekes and Dayes.
First week, First day.

Life's little stage is a small eminence,
Inch-high the grave above.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 360.

The world's a stage,—as Shakspeare said
one day;

The stage a world—was what he meant to
say.

O. W. HOLMES. A Prologue.

The growing drama has outgrown such
toys

Of simulated stature, face, and speech :

It also peradventure may outgrow

The simulation of the painted scene, Boards, actors, prompters, gaslight, and

costume,

And take for a worthier stage the soul
itself,

Its shifting fancies and celestial lights,

With all its grand orchestral silences

To keep the pauses of its rhythmic sounds.

MRS BROWNING. Aurora Leigh. Bk. v.

Where they do agree on the stage,
their unanimity is wonderful.

SHERIDAN. The Critic. Act ii. Sc. 2.

Lo where the stage, the poor, degraded
stage,

Holds its warped mirror to a gaping
age.

CHARLES SPRAGUE. Curiosity.

STARS.

These blessed candles of the night.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
v. Sc. 1. l. 220.

There's husbandry in heaven;
Their candles are all out.

Ibid. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 5.

Lorenzo. Look, how the floor of
heaven

Is thick inlay'd with patines of bright
gold;

There's not the smallest orb, which thou
behold'st,

But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young-ey'd cheru-
bims.

Such harmony is in immortal souls;
But, while this muddy vesture of
decay

Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear
it.

SHAKESPEARE. The Merchant of Venice.
Act v. Sc. 1. l. 58.

From little signs, like little stars,

Whose faint impression on the sense

The very looking straight at mars,

Or only seen by confluence.

COVENTRY PATMORE. The Angel in the House.

You meaner beauties of the night,

That poorly satisfy our eyes

More by your number than your light;

You common people of the skies,—

What are you when the moon shall
rise?

SIR H. WOTTON. On His Mistress, the Queen of Bohemia.

Planets and the pale populace of Heaven.
R. BROWNING. Balaustion's Adventure.

As night the life-inclining stars best
shows,

So lives obscure the starriest souls disclose.

GEORGE CHAPMAN. Epilogue to Translations.

Fairest of stars, last in the train of night,

If better thou belong not to the dawn.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. v. l. 166.

The starry cope

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 992.

Hither, as to their fountain, other
stars

Repairing, in their golden urns draw
light.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 00.

A broad and ample road, whose dust is
gold,

And pavement stars,—as stars to thee
appear

Seen in the galaxy, that milky way

Which nightly as a circling zone thou
seest

Powder'd with stars.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. vii. l. 00.

Thus some, who have the stars survey'd,
Are ignorantly led

To think those glorious lamps were made

To light Tom Fool to bed.

ROWE. On a Fine Woman Who Had a Dull Husband. iv.

Roll on, ye stars! exult in youthful prime,

Mark with bright curves the printless steps of time;

Near and more near your beamy cars approach

And lessening orbs on lessening orbs encroach;

Flowers of the sky! ye, too, to age must yield,

Frail as your silken sisters of the field! Star after star from heaven's high arch shall rush,

Suns sink on suns, and systems systems crush,

Headlong, extinct, to one dark centre fall,

And death, and night, and chaos, mingle all!

Till o'er the wreck, emerging from the storm,

Immortal nature lifts her changeeful form,

Mounts from her funeral pyre on wings of flame,

And soars and shines, another and the same.

ERASMUS DARWIN. Economy of Vegetation. Canto iv.

When twilight dews are falling soft

Upon the rosy sea, love,

I watch the star whose beam so oft

Has lighted me to thee, love.

THOMAS MOORE When Twilight Dews.

Her blue eyes sought the west afar,

For lovers love the western star.

SCOTT. Lay of the Last Minstrel. Canto iii.

With battlements that on their restless fronts

Bore stars.

WORDSWORTH. Excursion. Bk. ii.

The stars are mansions built by Nature's hand,

And, haply, there the spirits of the blest dwell, clothed in radiance, their immortal vest.

Ibid. Sonnets. Pt. ii. Sonnet 25.

But he is risen, a later star of dawn.

WORDSWORTH. A Morning Exercise.

Ye stars! which are the poetry of Heaven,

If in your bright leaves we would read the fate

Of men and empires,—'tis to be forgiven, That in our aspirations to be great,

Our destinies o'erleap their mortal state, And claim a kindred with you; for ye

are

A beauty and a mystery, and create

In us such love and reverence from afar, That fortune, fame, power, life, have named themselves a star.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 88.

This is the excellent foppery of the world! that, when we are sick in fortune (often the surfeit of our own behaviour) we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and the stars; as if we were villains by necessity; fools by heavenly compulsion; knaves, thieves, and treachers by spherical predominance; drunkards, liars, and adulterers by an enforced obedience of planetary influence; and all that we are evil in by a divine thrusting on. An admirable evasion of man, to lay his goatish disposition to the charge of a star!

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 60.

The sentinel stars set their watch in the sky.

CAMPBELL. The Soldier's Dream.

The starres, bright centinels of the skies.

HABINGTON. Castara: Dialogue between Night and Araphil.

The stars that have most glory, have no rest.

S. DANIEL. Civil War. Bk. viii. civ.

Silently one by one, in the infinite meadows of heaven,

Blossomed the lovely stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels.

LONGFELLOW. Evangeline. Pt. i. iii. l. 83.

Star to star vibrates light; may soul to soul

Strike thro' a finer element of her own.

TENNYSON. Aylmer's Field.

Many a night from yonder ivied casement, ere I went to rest,

Did I look on great Orion sloping slowly to the west.

Ibid. Locksley Hall. St. 4.

And you, ye stars,
Who slowly begin to marshal,
As of old, in the fields of heaven,
Your distant, melancholy lines!

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Empedocles on Etna.

STATE.

It seems to me that only Themistocles, of all men, has truthfully, or at any rate carefully, shown briefly what are the words which the poet Alcaeus sang long ago, for many receiving them, one from another, they afterwards came to be. Nor stones nor timbers nor the art of building forms cities, but whenever and wherever there may be found men ready to defend themselves, there is the city and the fortress.

ARISTIDES. Orations (Jebb's edition). Vol. ii.

[This probably gives the sense of what the ancients considered one of the greatest odes of Alcaeus. But a single line of the original has survived—

Fighting men are the city's fortress.

It was the version given by Aristides which inspired Sir William Jones:

What constitutes a State?

Not high-raised battlement, or labored mound,

Thick wall or moated gate;

Not cities fair, with spires and turrets crowned,

No; men, high-minded men,

Men who their duties know,
But know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain

And sovereign law, that state's collected will,

O'er thrones and globes elate,
Sits empress, crowning good, repressing ill.

Ode in Imitation of Alcaeus.

L'État !—c'est moi !

The state !—it is I !

Ascribed to LOUIS XIV.

Marcellus. Something is rotten in the state of Denmark.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 4. l. 90.

States, as great engines, move slowly.

BACON. Advancement of Learning. Bk ii.

What war could ravish, commerce could bestow,

And he returned a friend, who came a foe.

Converse and love, mankind may strongly draw,

When love was liberty, and nature law.

Thus states were formed; the name of king unknown,

Till common interest placed the sway in one.

'Twas virtue only (or in arts or arms,
Diffusing blessings, or averting harms),
The same which in a sire the sons obey'd,

A prince the father of a people made.

POPE. Essay on Man.

A thousand years scarce serve to form a state;

An hour may lay it in the dust.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 84.

Thou, too, sail on, O Ship of State!

Sail on, O Union, strong and great!

Humanity with all its fears,

With all the hopes of future years,

Is hanging breathless on thy fate!

LONGFELLOW. The Building of the Ship. l. 367.

STATURE.

Lear. Ay, every inch a king.

SHAKESPEARE. King Lear. Act. iv. Sc. 6, l. 114.

Her stature tall,—I hate a dumpy woman.

BYRON. Don Juan. Ca. i. St. 61.

Whose little body lodged a mighty mind.

POPE. The Iliad of Homer. Bk. v. l. 999.

STORM.

And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock.

New Testament. Matthew vii. 25.

And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house: and it fell: and great was the fall of it.

Ibid. Matthew vii. 27.

Dorion, ridiculing the description of a tempest in the "Nautilus" of Timo-

theus, said that he had seen a more formidable storm in a boiling saucepan.

ATHENAEUS. The Deipnosophists. viii 19.

[Hence the proverb, "a tempest in a teapot."]

Why does pouring oil on the sea make it clear and calm? Is it for that the winds, slipping the smooth oil, have no force, nor cause any waves?

PLUTARCH. Natural Questions. ix.

Remember to throw into the sea the oil which I give to you, when straightway the winds will abate, and a calm and smiling sea will accompany you throughout your voyage.

BEDE. Ecclesiastical History. Bk. iii. Ch. xv.

[Hence the expression, "To throw oil on troubled waters."]

The mariner of old said to Neptune in a great tempest, "O God! thou mayest save me if thou wilt, and if thou wilt thou mayest destroy me; but whether or no, I will steer my rudder true."

MONTAIGNE. Essays: Of Glory.

I have seen tempests, when the scolding winds

Have riv'd the knotty oaks, and I have seen

The ambitious ocean swell and rage and foam,

To be exalted with the threat'ning clouds,

But never till to-night, never till now,
Did I go through a tempest dropping fire.

SHAKESPEARE. Julius Cæsar. Act i. Sc. 3. 1. 5.

Lear. Blow winds and crack your cheeks! rage! blow!

You cataracts and hurricanes, spout
Till you have drenched our steeples.

Ibid. King Lear. Act iii. Sc. 2. 1. i.

I saw him beat the surges under him,
And ride upon their backs; he trod the water,

Whose enmity he flung aside, and breasted

The surge most swoln that met him: his bold head

'Bove the contentious waves he kept,
and oar'd

Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke

To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd,

As stooping to relieve him: I not doubt
He came alive to land.

SHAKESPEARE. The Tempest. Act ii. Sc. 1. 1. 114.

Alonzo. O, it is monstrous! monstrous!

Methought the billows spoke, and told me of it;

The winds did sing it to me; and the thunder,

That deep and dreadful organ-pipe, pronounced

The name of Prosper; it did bass my trespass,

Therefore my son i' the ooze is bedded; and

I'll seek him deeper than e'er plummet sounded

And with him there lie mudded.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act iii. Sc. 3. 1. 95.

'T was when the sea was roaring

With hollow blasts of wind,

A damsel lay deploing,

All on a rock reclin'd.

GAY. The What d'ye call it. Act ii. Sc. 8.

Come as the winds come, when

Forests are rended;

Come as the waves come, when

Navies are stranded.

SCOTT. Pibroch of Donald Dhu.

Come hither, hither, my little page!

Why dost thou weep and wail?

Or dost thou dread the billows' rage,

Or tremble at the gale?

But dash the tear-drop from thine eye;

Our ship is swift and strong:

Our fleetest falcon scarce can fly

More merrily along.

BYRON. Childe Harold. St. 18.

Come hither, come hither, my little daughter

And do not tremble so.

This ship can weather the stoutest gale

That ever wind did blow.

LONGFELLOW. The Wreck of the Hesperus.

The sky is changed!—and such a change! O night,

And storm and darkness, ye are wondrous strong,

Yet lovely in your strength, as is the
light
Of a dark eye in woman! Far along,
From peak to peak, the rattling crags
among Leaps the live thunder! Not from
one lone cloud,
But every mountain now hath found
a tongue,
And Jura answers, through her misty
shroud,
Back to the joyous Alps, who call to her
aloud!

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 92.

And this is in the night:—Most glorious night!
Thou wert not sent for slumber! let
me be
A sharer in thy fierce and far delight,—
A portion of the tempest and of thee!
How the lit lake shines, a phosphoric
sea,
And the big rain comes dancing to
the earth!
And now again 'tis black,—and now,
the glee
Of the loud hills shakes with its
mountain-mirth,
As if they did rejoice o'er a young
earthquake's birth.
Ibid. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto
iii. St. 93.

A strong nor'wester's blowing, Bill!
Hark! don't you hear it roar now?
Lord help 'em, how I pities them
Unhappy folks on shore now!
WILLIAM PITT. The Sailor's Consolation.

O pilot! 'tis a fearful night,
There's danger on the deep.
THOMAS HAYNES BAYLY. The Pilot.

Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale!
O. W. HOLMES. Old Ironsides.

The beating of her restless heart
Still sounding through the storm.
Ibid The Steamboat.

[Emerson misquotes and improves on Holmes:

The pulses of her iron heart
Go beating through the storm.
Society and Solitude: Civilization.]

STRENGTH.

Isabella. Oh, it is excellent
To have a giant's strength; but it is
tyrannous
To use it as a giant.
SHAKESPEARE. Measure for Measure. Act
ii. Sc. 2. l. 108.

Oh fear not in a world like this,
And thou shalt know ere long,
Know how sublime a thing it is
To suffer and be strong.
LONGFELLOW. The Light of Stars.

One still strong man in a blatant land,
Whatever they call him, what care I,
Aristocrat, democrat, autocrat—one
Who can rule and dare not lie.
TENNYSON. Maud. Pt. i. X. St. 5.

STUDY.

(See LEARNING.)

Pythias once, scoffing at Demosthenes,
said that his arguments smelt of the
lamp.

PLUTARCH. Life of Demosthenes.

Whence is thy learning? Hath thy toil
O'er books consumed the midnight oil?
GAY. Fables. Introduction.

There is no other Royal path which
leads to geometry.

EUCLID to PTOLEMY I. See *Proclus' Com-
mentaries on Euclid's Elements*. Bk.
ii. Ch. iv.

Biron. What is the end of study?
Let me know?

King. Why, that to know, which else
we should not know.

Biron. Things hid and barr'd, you
mean, from common sense?

King. Ay, that is study's god-like recompense.

SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost.
Act i. Sc. 1. l. 55.

[See under SCIENCE.]

Tranio. Mi perdonate, gentle master
mine,
I am in all affected as yourself;
Glad that you thus continue your resolve

To suck the sweets of sweet philosophy.
Only, good master, while we do admire
This virtue and this moral discipline,
Let's be no stoics, nor no stocks I pray;

Or so devote to Aristotle's checks,
As Ovid be an outcast quite abjured :
Talk logic with acquaintance that you
have,
And practise rhetoric in your common
talk :

Music and poesy use to quicken you :
The mathematics and the metaphysics
Fall to them as you find your stomach
serves you :
No profit grows where is no pleasure
ta'en ;—

In brief, Sir, study what you most affect.
SHAKESPEARE. Taming of the Shrew. Act
i. Sc. 1. l. 21.

It seems to me (said she) that you are
in some brown study.

JOHN LYLY. Euphues. p. 80.

We spent them not in toys, in lusts, or
wine,
But search of deep philosophy,
Wit, eloquence, and poetry ;
Arts which I lov'd, for they, my friend,
were thine.

COWLEY. *On the Death of Mr. William
Harvey*.

Learning by study must be won ;
'Twas ne'er entail'd from son to son.
GAY. Fables. The Pack Horse and Carrier.
l. 41.

STUPIDITY.

Peter was dull ; he was at first
Dull,—Oh, so dull—so very dull !
Whether he talked, wrote, or re-
hearsed—

Still with this dulness was he cursed—
Dull—beyond all conception—dull.
SHELLEY. Peter Bell the Third. Pt. vii.
xi.

Against stupidity the very gods
Themselves contend in vain.
SCHILLER. The Maid of Orleans. Act iii.
Sc. 6.

La faute en est aux dieux, qui la
firent si bête.

The fault rests with the gods, who
have made her so stupid.
GRESSET. Mechant. ii. 7.

Schad' um die Leut'! Sind sonst wackre
Brüder.
Aber das denkt, wie ein Seifensieder.

A pity about the people! they are brave enough comrades, but they have
heads like a soapboiler's.

SCHILLER. Wallenstein's Lager. xl. 347.

STYLE.

It is most true, stylus virum arguit,—
our style bewrays us.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. *Demo-
critus to the Reader*.

Le style est l'homme même.

The style is the man himself.

BUFFŒ. *Discours de Réception (Recueil de
l'Académie, 1750)*.

Style is the dress of thoughts.

CHESTERFIELD. Letters.

Dress covers the mortal body and adorns
it, but style is the vehicle of the spirit.

SYDNEY SMITH. *Letter to Miss G. Har-
court, 1842*.

Master, alike in speech and song,
Of Fame's great antiseptic,—style.
LOWELL. To Holmes on his Birthday. 1884.

SUCCESS.

Success the mark no mortal wit,
Or surest hand, can always hit.
BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i. l. 879.

What though success will not attend on
all,
Who bravely dares must sometimes risk
a fall.

SMOLLETT. Advice. l. 207.

'Tis not in mortals to command success ;
But we'll do more, Sempronius : we'll
deserve it.

ADDISON. Cato. Act i. Sc. 2.

'Tis man's to fight, but Heaven's to give
success.
POPE. Iliad of Homer. Bk. vi. l. 427.

Success, a sort of suicide,
Is ruin'd by success.

YOUNG. Resignation. Pt. ii.

The true touchstone of desert—success.
BYRON. Marino Faliero. Act i. Sc. 2.

They who strive
With Fortune, win or weary her at last.
Ibid. Werner. Act i. Sc. 1.

Born for success he seemed,
With grace to win, with heart to hold,
With shining gifts that took all eyes.
EMERSON. In Memoriam.

God will estimate
Success one day.

R. BROWNING. Prince Hohenstiel-Schwangau.

SUICIDE.

(See DEATH.)

Hamlet. O that this too too-solid flesh
would melt,
Thaw, and resolve itself into a dew!
Or that the Everlasting had not fixed
His canon 'gainst self-slaughter!

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 129.

Hamlet. To sleep! perchance to dream:
ay, there's the rub;

For in that sleep of death what dreams
may come,
When we have shuffled off this mortal
coil,

Must give us pause: there's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life;
For who would bear the whips and
scorns of time,

Th' oppressor's wrong, the proud man's
contumely,

The pangs of despised love, the law's
delay,

The insolence of office, and the spurns
That patient merit of the unworthy
takes,

When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? Who would far-
dels bear,

To grunt and sweat under a weary life,
But that the dread of something after
death,—

The undiscovered country, from whose
bourn

No traveller returns,—puzzles the will,
And makes us rather bear those ills we
have

Than fly to others that we know not of?
Thus, conscience does make cowards of
us all;

And thus the native hue of resolution
Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of
thought;

And enterprises of great pith and moment,

With this regard their currents turn
awry,

And lose the name of action.—Soft you
now!

The fair Ophelia! Nymph, in thy ori-
sons

Be all my sins remember'd.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 1.
l. 65.

As, to behold desert a beggar born,
And needy nothing trimm'd in jollity,
And purest faith unhappily forsworn,
And gilded honor shamefully misplaced,
And maiden virtue rudely strumpeted,
And right perfection wrongfully disgraced,
And strength by limping sway disabled,
And art made tongue-tied by authority,
And folly (doctor-like) controlling skill,
And simple truth miscall'd simplicity,
And captive good attending captain ill:
Tired with all these, from these would I be
gone;

Save that, to die, I leave my love alone.

Ibid. Sonnet lxi.

Death may be call'd in vain, and cannot
come,

Tyrants can tie him up from your relief:

Nor has a Christian privilege to die.

Alas, thou art too young in thy new Faith.

Brutus and Cato might discharge their
souls,

And give them furlo's for another world:
But we like sentries are oblig'd to stand

In starless nights, and wait th' appointed hour.

DRYDEN. Don Sebastian. Act ii. Sc. 1.

When all the blandishments of life are
gone,

The coward sneaks to death, the brave
live on.

GEORGE SEWELL. The Suicide. From
Martial. Bk. xi. Epis. 56.

There is no refuge from confession but
suicide; and suicide is confession.

DANIEL WEBSTER. Argument on the Murder of Captain White. April 6, 1830.

Less base the fear of death than fear of
life;

O, Britain! infamous for suicide!

An island, in thy manners, far disjoin'd
From the whole world of rationals
beside!

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night v. l. 441.

Self-murder! name it not; our island's
shame;
That makes her the reproach of neighb'ring
states.

ROBERT BLAIR. The Grave. l. 403.

One more unfortunate

Weary of breath,
Rashly importunate,
Gone to her death.

THOMAS HOOD. The Bridge of Sighs. l. 1.

Over the brink of it
Picture it—think of it,
Dissolute man
Lave in it—drink of it
Then, if you can.

Ibid. The Bridge of Sighs, l. 76.

Again the voice spake unto me :

"Thou art so steep'd in misery,
Surely 'twere better not to be."

TENNYSON. The Two Voices.

SUMMER.

Sumer is icumen in,

Lhude sing cucu !

Growth sed, and bloweth med,
And springth the wude nu,

Sing cucu !

[Tradition assigns to this lyric the honour of being the most ancient song, with or without the musical notes, in the English language. In all probability it was composed as early as 1250. It is preserved in the Harleian MS. No. 978, and was first published in Sir John Hawkins' History of Music.]

This is very midsummer madness.

SHAKESPEARE. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. 1.

Of evening tinct,

The purple-streaming Amethyst is thine.

THOMSON. Seasons: Summer. l. 150.

The leafy month of June.

COLERIDGE. The Ancient Mariner. Pt. v.

It is the month of June,

The month of leaves and roses,
When pleasant sights salute the eyes,
And pleasant scents the noses.

N. P. WILLIS. The Month of June.

The soft blue sky did never melt

Into his heart; he never felt

The witching of the soft blue sky!

WORDSWORTH. Peter Bell. Pt. i. St. 15.

And what is so rare as a day in June?

Then, if ever, come perfect days;

Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,

And over it softly her warm ear lays.

LOWELL. The Vision of Sir Launfal.

SUN.

The glorious sun,

Stays in his course and plays the al-
chemist;

Turning, with splendor of his precious
eye,

The meagre cloddy earth to glittering
gold.

SHAKESPEARE. King John. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 77.

Aaron. As when the golden sun sa-
lutes the morn,

And having gilt the ocean with his
beams,

Gallops the zodiac in his glistening
coach,

And overlooks the highest peering hills.

Ibid. Titus Andronicus. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 5.

Perdita. The self-same sun that shines
upon his court

Hides not his visage from our cottage.

Ibid. Winter's Tale. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 455.

O thou that with surpassing glory
crown'd,

Look'st from thy sole dominion like the
god

Of this new world; at whose sight all
the stars

Hide their diminish'd heads!

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 32.

Blush, grandeur, blush; proud courts, withdraw your blaze!

Ye little stars! hide your diminish'd rays.

POPE. Moral Essays. Epis. iii. l. 282.

There swift return

Diurnal, merely to officiate light

Round this opacous earth, this punctual
spot.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 21.

Whether the sun, predominant in heaven,
Rise on the earth or earth rise on the
sun,

He from the east his flaming road begin
Or she from the west her silent course
advance

Or done, is light to what she'll say or do;—

The oldest thing on record, and yet new!

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto ix. St. 64.

What say you to such a supper with such a woman?

Ibid. Note to a Letter on Bowles's Strictures.

And we meet with champagne and a chicken at last.

LADY M. W. MONTAGU. The Lover.

Most illogical

Irrational nature of our womanhood,
That blushes one way, feels another way,

And prays, perhaps, another!

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING. Aurora Leigh. Bk. ii. ll. 701-4.

By the way,

The works of women are symbolical.

We sew, sew, prick our fingers, dull our sight,

Producing what? A pair of slippers, sir,

To put on when you're weary—or a stool

To tumble over and vex you . . . curse that stool!

Or else at best, a cushion where you lean

And sleep, and dream of something we are not,

But would be for your sake. Alas, alas!

This hurts most, this . . . that, after all, we are paid

The worth of our work, perhaps.

Ibid. Aurora Leigh. Bk. i. l. 465.

And say, without our hopes, without our fears,

Without the home that plighted love endears,

Without the smile from partial beauty won,

Oh! what were man!—a world without a sun.

CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. l. 19.

The world was sad; the garden was a wild;

And man, the hermit, sigh'd—till woman smiled.

Ibid. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii. l. 37.

If the heart of a man is depress'd with cares,
The mist is dispell'd when a woman appears.

GAY. The Beggar's Opera. Act ii.

Our grandsire, Adam, ere of Eve possess'd,
Alone, and e'en in Paradise unblest,
With mournful looks the blissful scenes survey'd,

And wander'd in the solitary shade.

The Maker saw, took pity, and bestow'd
Woman, the last, the best reserv'd of God.

POPE. January and May. l. 63.

'Twere more than woman to be wise,

'Twere more than man to wish thee so!

T. MOORE. The Ring.

O, Woman! in our hours of ease,
Uncertain, coy, and hard to please,
And variable as the shade

By the light quivering aspen made;

When pain and anguish wring the brow,
A ministering angel thou!

SCOTT. Marmion. vi. St. 30.

[Lockhart gives a letter from Scott to Southey, dated 1810, telling how "a witty rogue, who signed himself Detector," accused him of having stolen these lines from one of Vida's poems, "which I had never seen or heard of," and, in proof thereof, furnished the Latin version, which ended thus:

Cum dolor atque supercilio gravis imminet
angor,

Fingeris angelico sola ministerio,

"It is almost needless to add," adds Lockhart, "there are no such lines."—Life of Scott, vol. iii. p. 294. (American edition.)]

As unto the bow the cord is,

So unto the man is woman,

Though she bends him, she obeys him,

Though she draws him, yet she follows,

Useless each without the other!

LONGFELLOW. Hiawatha. x.

Man for the field, the woman for the
hearth:

Man for the sword, and for the needle
she:

Man with the head, and woman with
the heart:

Man to command, and woman to obey;
All else confusion.

TENNYSON. The Princess.

. . . let her make herself her own
To give or keep, to live and learn and be
All that not harms distinctive womanhood.

For woman is not undevelop't man,
But diverse: could we make her as the
man,

Sweet love were slain: his dearest bond is this,

Not like to like, but like in difference.

Ibid. The Princess. vii. ll. 256-62.

Yet in the long years liker must they grow;

The man be more of woman, she of
man;

He gain in sweetness and in moral height,

Nor lose the wrestling thews that throw
the world;

She mental breadth, nor fail in child-
ward care,

Nor lose the childlike in the larger mind;

Till at the last she set herself to man,

Like perfect music unto noble words.

Ibid. The Princess. vii. ll. 263-70.

A woman never forgets her sex. She would rather talk with a man than an angel, any day.

O. W. HOLMES. *The Poet at the Breakfast
Table.* iv.

Till we are built like angels, with hammer, and chisel, and pen,

We will work for ourselves and a woman, for ever and ever, Amen.

RUDYARD KIPLING. An Imperial Rescript.

WOMAN.

(FAULTS.)

There's nothing in the world worse than a woman

By nature shameless, save some other
woman.

ARISTOPHANES. Thesmophoriazusae. 531.

Nulla fere causa est in qua non femina litem

Moverit.

There's scarce a case comes on but you shall find

A woman's at the bottom.

JUVENAL. Satires. vi. 242.

Dux femina facti.

A woman is leader in the deed.

VIRGIL. Æneid. i. 364.

[Cherchez la femme. (Fr.) Alex. Dumas père, Mohicans de Paris, vol. ii. cap. 16.
Saying put into the mouth of an officer of the Paris Detective Police Force. It has been attributed to Fouché.

Sardou introduces the phrase in his drama
Ferréol; and George Ebers, Uarda, vol. ii.
cap. 14 (1876), says:

Du vergisst, dass hier eine Frau mit im
spiel ist.

Das ist sie überall, entgegnete Ameni, u. s. w.
You forget that there is a woman in this case.

That is so all the world over, replied Ameni,
etc.

Sometimes the expression takes the form of Où est la femme? (or in German, Wo ist sie, or wie heisst sie?). Where is the woman? where is she? what is her name?
As if, according to our own saying, Where-ever there is a quarrel, there is always a lady in the case; or, as Richardson says (Sir C. Grandison, vol. i. Letter 24): Such a plot must have a woman in it.

Varium et mutabile semper.

Fœmina.

A woman is always changeable and capricious.

VIRGIL. Æneid. iv. 569.

Souvent femme varie

Bien fol est qui s'y fie.

Woman is often fickle—foolish is he who trusts her.

FRANÇOIS I. Scratched with his ring on a window of Chambord Castle.

Quid pluma levius?—Pulvis. Quid pulvere? Ventus.

Quid vento? Mulier. Quid muliere?
Nihil!

<sup>1</sup> The second line is also read:

Quid vento? Meretrix. Quid meretrice?
Nihil.

Quoted as Incerti Auctoris by WALTER DAVISON in Poetical Rhapsody (temp. James
I.; reprinted, 1890).

Thus translated by Davison:

Dust is lighter than a feather,

And the wind more light than either:

But a woman's fickle mind

More, than feather, dust or wind.

Pray, what is lighter than a feather?

Dust, my friend, in summer weather.

What's lighter than the dust, I pray?

The wind that blows them both away.

What is lighter than the wind?

The lightness of a woman's mind.

And what is lighter than the last?

Ah, now, my friend, you have me fast!

POPE. Ep. i. 19.

Who can describe

Women's hypocrisies! their subtle wiles, Betraying smiles, feign'd tears, inconstancies!

Their painted outsides, and corrupted minds,
The sum of all their follies, and their falsehoods.

THOMAS OTWAY. Orpheus.

What mighty ills have not been done
by woman!

Who wasn't betray'd the Capitol? A
woman;

Who lost Mark Antony the world? A
woman?

Who was the cause of a long ten years'
war,

And laid at last old Troy in ashes?
Woman;

Destructive, damnable, deceitful woman!

What mighty woes

To thy imperial race from woman rose.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. xi. l. 541.

Hamlet. Frailty, thy name is woman!—
A little month, or ere these shoes were old

With which she follow'd my poor
father's body,

Like Niobe, all tears;—why she, even
she,

. . . married with my uncle.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2.
l. 146.

Rosalind. I thank God I am not a

l. 366.

Hamlet. I have heard of your paintings too well enough; God hath given you one face, and you make yourselves another. You jig, you amble, and you lisp, and nickname God's creatures, and make your wantonness your ignorance.
Go to; I'll no more of it: it hath made me mad. I say, we will have no more marriages. Those that are married already, all but one, shall live; the rest shall keep as they are. To a nunnery,

Petruchio. Think you a little din can daunt mine ears?

Have I not in my time heard lions roar?

Have I not heard great ordnance in the field,
And heaven's artillery thunder in the skies?

And do you tell me of a woman's
tongue,

That gives not half so great a blow to
hear

As will a chestnut in a farmer's fire?

WOMAN.

(HER VIRTUES.)

O woman! lovely woman! Nature made thee

To temper man: we had been brutes
without you;

Angels are painted fair, to look like you:

There's in you all that we believe of Heaven,

Amazing brightness, purity, and truth,
Eternal joy, and everlasting love.

THOMAS OTWAY. Venice Preserved. Act
i. Sc. 1.

'Tis beauty that doth oft make women
proud;

But, God he knows, thy share thereof is small;

'Tis virtue that doth make them most admired;

The contrary doth make thee wondered
at:

'Tis government that makes them seem
divine.

SHAKESPEARE. III. Henry VI. Act i.
Sc. 4. l. 128.

Cassio. A maid

That paragons description and wild
fame;

One that excels the quirks of blazoning
pens,

And in the essential vesture of creation
Does tire the ingener.

Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 61.

Yet when I approach

Her loveliness, so absolute she seems,
And in herself complete; so well to
know

Her own, that what she wills to do or
say,

Seems wisest, virtuousest, discreetest,
best.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii.
l. 546.

Oh fairest of creation! last and best

The Eternal Feminine draweth us on GOETHE. Faust. Epilogue. Chorus Mysticus. Concluding lines.

[Bayard Taylor translated and commented on this chorus as follows:

All things transitory
But as symbols are sent:
Earth's insufficiency
Here grows to event;
The indescribable
Here it is done,
The Woman Soul leadeth us
Upward and on.

"I can find," says Mr. Taylor, in a note, "no English equivalent for Ewig-weibliche except Woman Soul, which will express very nearly the same idea to those who feel the spirit which breathes and burns through the scene. Love is the all-uplifting and all-redeeming power on earth and in heaven, and to man it is revealed in its most pure and perfect form through woman. Thus in the transitory life of earth it is only a symbol of its divine being, the possibilities of love which earth can never fulfill become realities in the higher life which follows; the spirit which woman interprets to us here still draws us upward (as Margaret draws the soul of Faust) there."]

She's all my fancy painted her;
She's lovely, she's divine.

WM. MEE. Alice Gray.

What will not woman, gentle woman,

SOUTHEY. Madoc. Pt. ii. 2.

Not she with trait'rous kiss her Saviour

Not she denied him with unholy tongue;
She, while apostles shrank, could danger brave,
Last at his cross and earliest at his grave.

EATON S. BARRETT (1785-1820). Woman.
Pt. i. (ed. 1822).

She was a phantom of delight
When first she gleamed upon my sight,
A lovely apparition, sent
To be a moment's ornament.

WORDSWORTH. She was a Phantom of Delight.

A creature not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food:
For transient sorrows, simple wiles, Praise, blame, love, kisses, tears, and smiles.

Ibid. She was a Phantom of Delight.

Amoret's as sweet and good
As the most delicious food;
Which but tasted does impart
Life and gladness to the heart.
Sacharissa's beauty's wine,
Which to madness does incline:
Such a liquor as no brain
That is mortal can sustain.

WALLER. Amoret.

The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength, and skill.
A perfect woman, nobly planned,
To warn, to comfort, and command;
And yet a spirit still, and bright
With something of angelic light.

WORDSWORTH. She was a Phantom of Delight.

'T is hers to pluck the amaranthine
flower

Of faith, and round the sufferer's temple
bind

Wreaths that endure affliction's heaviest
shower,

And do not shrink from sorrow's keenest
wind.

WORDSWORTH. Weak is the Will of Man.

She was a form of life and light
That seen, became a part of sight,
And rose, where'er I turn'd mine eye,
The morning-star of memory!

BYRON. Giaour. l. 1127.

TENNYSON. Martin and Vivien.

Earth's noblest thing, a Woman perfected.

LOWELL. Irene. l. 62.

WONDER.

Wonder is the feeling of a philosopher,
and philosophy begins in wonder.

PLATO. Theaetetus. xi. (Socrates.)
JOWETT, trans.

The man who cannot wonder, who does not habitually wonder (and worship), were he President of innumerable Royal Societies, and carried the whole Mécanique Céleste and Hegel Philosophy, and the Epitome of all Laboratories and Observatories, with their results, in his single head,—is but a pair of spectacles, behind which there is no Eye. Let those who have eyes look through him, then he may be useful.

CARLYLE. Sartor Resartus. Bk. i. Ch. x.

Eke wonder last but nine daies never in town.

CHAUCER. Troelus and Cresseide.

This wonder (as wonders last) lasted nine daies.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Bk. ii. Ch. i.

Celia. O, wonderful, wonderful, and most wonderful wonderful! and yet again wonderful, and after that out of all hooping.

SHAKESPEARE. As You Like It. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 201.

Macbeth. Can such things be,
And overcome us like a summer's cloud,
Without our special wonder?

Ibid. Macbeth. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 110.

Long stood the noble youth oppress'd with awe,
And stupid at the wondrous things he saw,
Surpassing common faith, transgressing
nature's law.

DRYDEN. Theodore and Honoria. l. 217.

And Katerfelto with his hair on end
At his own wonders, wondering for his bread.

COWPER. The Task. Bk. iv. l. 86.

A schoolboy's tale, the wonder of an hour!

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 2.

What behaved well in the past or behaves well to-day is not such a
wonder,

The wonder is always and always how there can be a mean man or an infidel.

WALT WHITMAN. *Leaves of Grass: Song
of Myself*. 22. ll. 28-f

Her seemed she scarce had been a day
One of God's choristers;
The wonder was not yet quite gone
From that still look of hers;
Albeit, to them she left, her day
Had counted as ten years.

D. G. ROSSETTI. The Blessed Damozel.

And Iseult watched him, raving, with sinless eyes

That loved him, but in holy girlish wise,
For noble joy in his fair manliness
And trust and tender wonder.

SWINBURNE. Tristram of Lyonesse.

WOOING.

Much ado there was, God wot,
He would love and she would not.
She said never was man true,
He said, none was false to you,
He said, he had lov'd her long,
She said, Love should have no wrong.
Corydon would kiss her then.
She said, maides must kiss no men,
Till they did for good and all.

NICHOLAS BRETON. Phyllida and Corydon.

Suffolk. She's beautiful and therefore to be woo'd:

She is a woman, therefore to be won.

SHAKESPEARE. I. Henry VI. Act v. Sc. 3. l. 78.

Demetrius. She is a woman, therefore may be woo'd;

She is a woman, therefore may be won.

Ibid. Titus Andronicus. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 82.

King Richard. Was ever woman in this humour woo'd?

Was ever woman in this humour won?

Ibid. Richard III. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 228.

Valentine. Take no repulse, whatever she doth say;

For, "get you gone," she doth not mean
"away."

Flatter and praise, commend, extol
their graces;

Though ne'er so black, say they have angels' faces.

That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,

If with his tongue he cannot win a
woman.

Ibid. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act iii. Sc. 1. l. 100.

Valentine. Never give her o'er;
For scorn at first makes after-love the more.

If she do frown, 'tis not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more love in you;
If she do chide, 'tis not to have you gone,

For why, the fools are mad if left alone.

Ibid. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act iii.
Sc. 1. l. 94.

To get thine ends, lay bashfulness aside;
Who fears to ask, doth teach to be deny'd.

HERRICK. Aphorisms: No Bashfulness in Begging.

A pressing lover seldom wants success,
Whilst the respectful, like the Greek, sits down
And wastes a ten years' siege before one town.

NICHOLAS ROWE. To the Inconstant.
Epilogue. l. 18.

He that will win his dame must do
As love does when he draws his bow;
With one hand thrust the lady from,
And with the other pull her home.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto i.
l. 449.

Not to love is in love an infallible means
Of being beloved.

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Reflections; or, Sentences and Moral Maxims. No. 60.

Brisk confidence still best with woman copes;
Pique her and soothe in turn, soon passion crowns thy hopes.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii.
St. 84.

Not much he kens, I ween, of woman's breast,
Who thinks that wanton thing is won by sighs.

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 34.

Cressida. See, we fools!

Why have I blabb'd? who shall be true to us,

When we are so unsecret to ourselves?
But, though I lov'd you well, I woo'd you not;

And yet, good faith, I wish'd myself a man,

Or that we women had men's privilege
Of speaking first.

SHAKESPEARE. Troilus and Cressida. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 133.

Helena. We cannot fight for love, as men may do;

We should be woo'd and were not made to woo.

Ibid. Midsummer Night's Dream. Act ii.
Sc. 1. l. 241.

Rosalind. No, no, Orlando; men are April when they woo, December when they wed: maids are May when they are maids, but the sky changes when they are wives. I will be more jealous of thee than a Barbary cock-pigeon over his hen; more clamorous than a parrot against rain; more new-fangled than an ape; more giddy in my desires than a monkey: I will weep for nothing, like Diana in the fountain, and I will do that when you are disposed to be merry; I will laugh like a hyen, and that when thou art inclined to sleep.

Orlando. But will my Rosalind do so?

Ros. By my life, she will do as I do.
Ibid. As You Like It. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 147.

Claudio. Thus answer I in name of Benedick,

But hear these ill news with the ears of Claudio.

'Tis certain so;—the prince woos for himself.

Friendship is constant in all other things,

Save in the office and affairs of love:

Therefore, all hearts in love use their own tongues;

Let every eye negotiate for itself,

And trust no agent: for beauty is a witch,

Against whose charms faith melteth into blood.

This is an accident of hourly proof

Which I mistrusted not.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act ii.
Sc. 1. l. 179.

In the way of love and glory,
Each tongue best tells his own story.

SIR T. OVERBURY. Of the Choice of a Wife.

Archly the maiden smiled, and, with eyes overrunning with laughter,
Said, in a tremulous voice, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

LONGFELLOW. Courtship of Miles Standish.

If I am not worth the wooing, I surely am not worth the winning.

Ibid. Courtship of Miles Standish. Pt. iii. l. 111.

Othello. My story being done,
She gave me for my pains a world of sighs;

She swore,—In faith, 'twas strange, 'twas passing strange,

'Twas pitiful, 'twas wondrous pitiful:

She wish'd she had not heard it; yet she wish'd

That heaven had made her such a man.
She thank'd me;

And bade me, if I had a friend that lov'd her,

I should but teach him how to tell my story,

And that would woo her. Upon this hint I spake;

She lov'd me for the dangers I had pass'd;

And I lov'd her, that she did pity them:
This only is the witchcraft I have us'd;

Here comes the lady, let her witness it.

SHAKESPEARE. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 162.

Dame Quickly. Thou didst swear to me upon a parcel-gilt goblet, sitting in my Dolphin Chamber, at the round table, by a sea-coal fire, on Wednesday in Whitsun week, when the Prince broke thy head for likening his father to a singing man of Windsor; thou didst swear to me then, as I was washing thy wound, to marry me, and make me my lady, thy wife. Canst thou deny it?

Ibid. II. Henry IV. Act ii. Sc. i. l. 94.

Juliet. O gentle Romeo,
If thou dost love, pronounce it faithfully.
Or if thou think'st I am too quickly won,
I'll frown and be perverse and say thee nay,

So thou wilt woo: but else, not for the world.

Ibid. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 93.

Olivia. Love sought is good, but given unsought is better.

Ibid. Twelfth Night. Act iii. Sc. i. l. 168.

Don Pedro. Speak low, if you speak love.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act. ii. Sc. 1. l. 102.

Follow a shadow, it still flies you,

Seem to fly it, it will pursue:

So court a mistress, she denies you;

Let her alone, she will court you.

Say are not women truly, then,
Styled but the shadows of us men?

BEN JONSON. The Forest: That Women are but Men's Shadows. (Song.)

Most complying,

When denying,

And to be follow'd only flying.

CONGREVE. Smile to Jupiter.

Woo'd and married, and a',

Married, and woo'd, and a'!

And was she nae very wed off

That was woo'd and married, and a'?

ALEXANDER ROSS. Woo'd and Married and a'.

Still amorous and fond and billing,

Like Philip and Mary on a shilling.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto i. l. 687.

Her virtue and the conscience of her worth,

That would be woo'd, and not unsought be won.

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. viii. l. 502.

So mourn'd the dame of Ephesus her Love,

And thus the Soldier arm'd with Resolution

Told his soft Tale, and was a thriving Wooer.

COLLEY CIBBER. Richard III. (altered). Act ii. Sc. 1.

That you're in a terrible taking,

By all these sweet oglings I see;

But the fruit that can fall without shaking,

Indeed is too mellow for me.

LADY MARY WORTLEY MONTAGU. To a Lady Making Love.

If heaven a draught of heav'nly pleasure spare,

One cordial in this melancholy vale,

'Tis when a youthful, loving, modest pair,

In other's arms breathe out the tender tale,

Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the ev'ning gale!

BURNS. The Cotter's Saturday Night.

'Tis sweet to think that where'er we rove

We are sure to find something blissful and dear;

And that when we're far from the lips we love,

We've but to make love to the lips we are near.

MOORE. 'Tis Sweet to Think.

If I speak to thee in friendship's name,
Thou think'st I speak too coldly;
If I mention Love's devoted flame,
Thou say'st I speak too boldly.

Ibid. How Shall I Woo?

For he through Sin's long labyrinth had
run,
Nor made atonement when he did amiss,
Had sigh'd to many though he loved
but one,
And that loved one, alas! could ne'er be his.

BYRON. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage.
Canto i. St. 5.

'Tis enough—
Who listens once will listen twice;
Her heart be sure is not of ice,
And one refusal no rebuff.

Ibid. Mazeppa. St. 6.

And whispering, "I will ne'er consent"
—consented.

Ibid. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 117.

Ladies, like towns besieged, for honour's sake,
Will some defence, or its appearance, make.

CRABBE.

'Tis an old lesson; time approves it true,
And those who know it best, deplore
it most;

When all is won that all desire to woo,
The paltry prize is hardly worth the cost.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 35.

Lightly from fair to fair he flew,
And loved to plead, lament, and sue;
Suit lightly won, and short-lived pain,
For monarchs seldom sigh in vain.

SCOTT. Marmion. Canto v. St. 9.

The Way to a Woman's Heart.

Now, as I said before, I was never a maker of phrases.

I can march up to a fortress and summon the place to surrender,
But march up to a woman with such a proposal, I dare not.

I'm not afraid of bullets, nor shot from the mouth of a cannon,
But of a thundering "No!" point-blank
from the mouth of a woman,
That I confess I'm afraid of, nor am I ashamed to confess it!

LONGFELLOW. The Courtship of Miles

Seemed warm from floor to ceilin'.

'T was kin' o' kingdom-come to look

Vexed him? was it touch of hand,
Turn of head?

Strange! that very way
Love begun.

I as little understand
Love's decay.

R. BROWNING. In a Year.

Escape me?

Never—

Beloved!

While I am I, and you are you,
So long as the world contains us both,
Me the loving and you the loth,
While the one eludes, must the other
pursue.

Ibid. Life in a Love.

WORDS.

Heaven and earth shall pass away,
but my words shall not pass away.

New Testament. Matthew xxiv. 35.

Ἐπεα πτερόεντα.

Winged words.

HOMER. Iliad and Odyssey, passim.

Our words have wings, but fly not where we would.

GEORGE ELIOT. The Spanish Gypsy. Bk.
iii.

Words are the physicians of a mind diseased.

ÆSCHYLUS. Prometheus, 378.

Nor can one word be chang'd but for a worse.

HOMER. Odyssey. Bk. 8. 1. 192. (POPE,
trans.)

"These Macedonians," said he, "are a rude and clownish people, that call a spade a spade."

PLUTARCH. Apothegms of Great Commanders,
Phillip.

On the tongue of such an one they shed a honeyed dew, and from his lips drop gentle words.

The Theogony. 1. 82.

For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of Paradise.

COLERIDGE. Kubla Khan.

Ficus ficus, ligonem ligonem vocat.
A fig's a fig, a spade a spade he calls.

ERASMUS. Adagiorum Chiliades, Veritas.

I'll give you leave to call me anything, if you don't call me "spade."

SWIFT. Polite Conversation. Dialogue ii.

Je ne puis rien nommer si ce n'est par son
nom;

J'appelle un chat un chat, et Rollet un fripon.

I can call nothing by name if that is not his name. I call a cat a cat, and Rollet a rogue.

BOILEAU. Satires. i. 51.

[Boileau, half afraid of the consequences (Rolet was an attorney whom it was dangerous to provoke), appended a note to the name, "Innkeeper at Blois"; but, oddly enough, there was an innkeeper at Blois of the same name, who immediately threatened proceedings against the poet.]

Dictum sapienti sat est.

A word to the wise is enough.

PLAUTUS. Perscus. iv. 7. 19.

[Possibly the origin of the phrase verbum sapienti, which is colloquially abridged into verbum sap.]

Dixeris egregie, notum si callida verbum
Reddidit junctura novum.

High praise and honour to the bard is due

Whose dexterous setting makes an old word new.

HORACE. De Arte Poetica, 47. (CONING-TON, trans.)

Nescit vox missa reverti.

But words once spoke can never be recall'd.

HORACE. Ars Poetica. 390. (EARL OF ROS-COMMON, trans.)

Homo trium literarum.

A man of three letters (i. e., Fur, a thief).

PLAUTUS. Aulularia. Act ii. Sc. 4. l. 40.

For one word a man is often deemed to be wise, and for one word he is often deemed to be foolish. We ought to be careful indeed what we say.

CONFUCIUS. Analects. Bk. xix. Ch. 25.
Sec. 2. (LEGGE, trans.)

How long a time lies in one little word !
Four lagging winters and four wanton
springs

End in a word: such is the breath of kings.

SHAKESPEARE. Richard II. Act i. Sc. 3.
l. 213.

I'll make you eat your words.

ANON. The Play of Stuckley. l. 428.

[This play is supposed to be the work of four authors, one of whom was Shakespeare.]

Whose words all ears took captive.

SHAKESPEARE. All's Well that Ends Well.
Act v. Sc. 3. l. 17.

Bastard. He gives the bastinado with his tongue ;

Our ears are cudgell'd ; not a word of
his,

But buffets better than a fist of France :
Zounds ! I was never so bethump'd with
words,

Since I first called my brother's father,
dad.

Ibid. King John. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 466.

King Henry. Familiar in his mouth
as household words.

Ibid. Henry V. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 52.

Holofernes. He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. i.
l. 18.

Bassanio. Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words

That ever blotted paper !

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act iii. Sc. 2.
l. 254.

Celia. Not a word ?

Rosalind. Not one to throw at a dog.

Ibid. As You Like It. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 2.

Claudio. I never tempted her with word too large,

But, as a brother to his sister, show'd
Bashful sincerity and comely love.

Ibid. Much Ado About Nothing. Act iv.
Sc. 1. l. 53.

Brabantio. But words are words ; I never yet did hear

That the bruised heart was pierced through the ear.

Ibid. Othello. Act i. Sc. 3. l. 218.

Gratiano. I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word.

Ibid. Merchant of Venice. Act iv. Sc. 1.
l. 341.

Polonius. What do you read, my lord ?

Hamlet. Words, words, words.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act ii. Sc. 2. l. 193.

Troilus. Words, words, mere words, no matter from the heart.

Ibid. Troilus and Cressida. Act v. Sc. 3.
l. 108.

Sylvia. A fine volley of words, gentlemen, and quickly shot off.

Ibid. Two Gentlemen of Verona. Act ii.
Sc. 4. l. 33.

Gaunt. Where words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain ;
For they breathe truth, that breathe their words in pain.

Ibid. Richard II. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 7.

I am not so lost in lexicography as to forget that words are the daughters of earth, and that things are the sons of heaven.

DR. JOHNSON. Preface to his Dictionary.

[Sir William Jones gives a similar saying in India :

Words are the daughters of earth, and deeds are the sons of heaven.]

Words are men's daughters, but God's sons are things.

SAMUEL MADDEN. Boulter's Monument.
(Supposed to have been inserted by DR. JOHNSON. 1745.)

Parole femine, falti maschi.

Words are feminine, deeds are masculine.
Italian Proverb.

For words are wise men's counters—they do but reckon by them—but they are the money of fools.

THOMAS HOBBES. The Leviathan. Pt. i.
Ch. iv. Sc. 15.

His words, . . . like so many nimble and airy servitors, trip about him at command.

MILTON. Apology for Smectymnuus.

And all with pearl and ruby glowing

Was the fair palace door,

Through which came flowing, flowing,
flowing,

And sparkling evermore,

A troop of Echoes, whose sweet duty

Was but to sing,

In voices of surpassing beauty,

The wit and wisdom of their king.

POE. The Haunted Palace.

Syllables govern the world.

JOHN SELDEN. Table Talk. Power.

A word in your ear.

VANBURGH AND CIBBER. The Provok'd Husband. Act iv. Sc. 1.

Words are like leaves, and where they most abound,
Much fruit of sense beneath is rarely
found.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 309.

Some by old words to fame have made
pretence,
Ancients in phrase, mere moderns in their sense;
Such labour'd nothings, in so strange a
style,
Amaze the unlearn'd, and make the learned smile.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 126.

In words, as fashions, the same rule will hold,
Alike fantastic if too new or old;
Be not the first by whom the new are tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 133.

These equal syllables alone require,
Though oft the ear the open vowels tire;
While expletives their feeble aid do join,
And ten low words oft creep in one dull
line.

Ibid. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 144.

Harsh words, though pertinent, uncouth
appear;
None please the fancy who offend the
ear.

GARTH. The Dispensary. Canto iv. l. 204.

. . . Philologists, who chase
A panting syllable through time and space,
Start it at home, and hunt it in the dark,
To Gaul, to Greece, and into Noah's Ark.

COWPER. Retirement. l. 691.

Intellect can raise,
From airy words alone, a Pile that ne'er
decays.

WORDSWORTH. Inscriptions. iv.

O! many a shaft, at random sent,
Finds mark the archer little meant!

And many a word, at random spoken,
May soothe or wound a heart that's broken!

SCOTT. Lord of the Isles. Canto v.
St. 18.

A blow with a word strikes deeper than a blow with a sword.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy. Pt. i.
Sec. ii. Mem. iv. Subs. 4.

Religion—freedom—vengeance—what
you will,
A word's enough to raise mankind to kill.

BYRON. Lara. Canto ii. viii.

No words suffice the secret soul to show,
For truth denies all eloquence to woe.

Ibid. The Corsair. Canto iii. St. 22.

When looks were fond and words were few.

ALLAN CUNNINGHAM. *Poet's Bridal-day
Song*.

Richter says of Luther's words, "His words are half battles."

CARLYLE. Heroes and Hero Worship.
The Hero as Priest.

He had used the word ["humbug"]
in its Pickwickian sense.

DICKENS. Pickwick Papers. Ch. i. (Mr.
Blotton).

There comes Emerson first, whose rich words, every one,
Are like gold nails in temples to hang trophies on.

LOWELL. A Fable for Critics.

Jewels five-words-long,
That on the stretch'd forefinger of all
Time
Sparkle for ever.

TENNYSON. The Princess. Pt. ii. l. 355.

Love reflects the thing beloved;
My words are only words, and moved
Upon the topmost froth of thought.

Ibid. In Memoriam. Pt. lii.

. . . words, like Nature, half reveal
And half conceal the Soul within.

Ibid. In Memoriam. v. St. 1.

Wild words wander here and there:
God's great gift of speech abused.

Ibid. A Dirge. St. 7.

For what are the voices of birds
Ay, and of beasts—but words, our
words,
Only so much more sweet?

R. BROWNING. Pippa Passes.

WORD-JUGGLING.

(See NONSENSE.)

Holofernes. This is a gift that I have, simple, simple; a foolish extravagant spirit, full of forms, figures, shapes, objects, ideas, apprehensions, motions, revolutions: these are begot in the ventricle of memory, nourished in the womb of pia mater; and delivered upon the mellowing of occasion. But the gift is good in those in whom it is acute, and I am thankful for it.

SHAKESPEARE. Love's Labour's Lost. Act iv. Sc. 2. l. 67.

Moth. They have been at a great feast of languages, and have stolen the scraps. Costard. O, they have lived long in the alms-basket of words.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 41.

Holofernes. He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument.

Ibid. Love's Labour's Lost. Act v. Sc. 1. l. 18.

And torture one poor word ten thousand ways.

DRYDEN. Mac Flecknoe. l. 208.

Aldeborontiphoscophornio!
Where left you Chrononhotonthologos?

Ibid. Chrononhotonthologos. Act i. Sc. 1.

His cogitative faculties immersed
In cogibundity of cogitation.

Ibid. Chrononhotonthologos. Act i. Sc. 1.

Let the singing singers
With vocal voices, most vociferous,
In sweet vociferation out-vociferize
Even sound itself.

Ibid. Chrononhotonthologos. Act i. Sc. 1.

To thee, and gentle Rigdom Funnidos,
Our gratulations flow in streams unbounded.

Ibid. Chrononhotonthologos. Act i. Sc. 3.

Go call a coach, and let a coach be called;
And let the man who calleth be the caller;

And in his calling let him nothing call But "Coach! Coach! Coach! Oh for a coach, ye gods!"

Ibid. Chrononhotonthologos. Act ii. Sc. 4.

And don't confound the language of the nation

With long-tailed words in osity and ation.

J. HOOKHAM FRERE. King Arthur and his Round Table. Introduction.
St. 6.

O Sophonisba! Sophonisba, O!

THOMSON. Sophonisba. Act iii. Sc. 2.

[On the first performance of this play a spectator stood up in his box and cried out, O Jamie Thomson, Jamie Thomson, oh!

Hence the line was altered to—O Sophonisba! I am wholly thine!]

The premises being thus settled, I proceed to observe that the concatenation of self-existence, proceeding in a reciprocal duplicate ratio, naturally produces a problematical dialogism, which in some measure proves that the essence of spirituality may be referred to the second predicable.

GOLDSMITH. Vicar of Wakefield.

To sun myself in Huncamunca's eyes.

FIELDING. Tom Thumb the Great. Act i.
Sc. 3.

When the Gloaming is, I never made the ghost of an endeavour

To discover—but whatever were the hour, it would be sweet.

C. S. CALVERLEY. In the Gloaming.
ll. 3-4.

Forever! What abysms of woe

The word reveals, what frenzy, what Despair! For ever (printed so)

Did not . . .

Forever! 'Tis a single word!

And yet our fathers deem'd it two:
Nor am I confident they err'd;

Are you?

Ibid. Forever. St. 2, 9.

WORDSWORTH, WILLIAM.

This will never do!

FRANCIS LORD JEFFREY. *Wordsworth's
Excursion*. Edinburgh Review.

[Although Jeffrey completely failed to recognize Wordsworth's real greatness, he was yet not wrong in saying of the Excursion as a work of poetic style.—"This will never do!"

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Poems of William Wordsworth. Preface p. xxii.

Wordsworth in sonnet is a classic too
And on that grass plot sits at Milton's side.

WALTER SAVAGE LANDOR. To the Author of Festus.

That mild apostate from poetic rule
The simple Wordsworth.

BYRON. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers.

Who both by precept and example
shows

That prose is verse, and verse is merely prose.

Ibid. English Bards and Scotch Reviewers.

This laurel greener from the brows
Of him that utter'd nothing base.

TENNYSON. To the Queen.

Time may restore us in his course
Goethe's sage mind and Byron's force;
But where will Europe's latter hour
Again find Wordsworth's healing power?

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Memorial Verses.

WORK.

Habeo opus magnum in manibus.

I have a great work in hand.

CICERO. Academica. i. 1, 2.

Nowher so besy a man as he ther was,
And yet he semed bisier than he was.

CHAUCER. Canterbury Tales. Prologue.
l. 321.

Macbeth. The labour we delight in physics pain.

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act ii. Sc. 3.
l. 55.

Antony. To business that we love, we rise betime,

And go to't with delight.

Ibid. Antony and Cleopatra. Act iv.
Sc. 4. l. 20.

And hold one another's noses to the grindstone hard.

BURTON. Anatomy of Melancholy.

Hold their noses to grindstone.

J. HEYWOOD. Proverbs Pt. i. Ch. v.

All Nature seems at work, slugs leave their lair—

The bees are stirring—birds are on the wing—

And Winter, slumbering in the open
air,

Wears on his smiling face a dream of Spring!

And I the while, the sole unbusy thing,
Nor honey make, nor pair, nor build,
nor sing.

COLERIDGE. Work without Hope. St. 1.

A woman's work, grave sirs, is never done.

EUSDEN. Poem Spoken at a Cambridge Commencement.

And still be doing, never done.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. i. Canto i.
l. 204.

Who first invented work, and bound
the free

And holyday-rejoicing spirit down . . .
To that dry drudgery at the desk's dead wood? . . .

Sabbathless Satan!

CHARLES LAMB. Work.

Work—work—work

Till the brain begins to swim;

Work—work—work

Till the eyes are heavy and dim.

HOOD. Song of the Shirt. ll. 17-20.

Stitch! stitch? stitch!

In poverty, hunger, and dirt,

Sewing at once with a double thread

A shroud as well as a shirt.

Ibid. Song of the Shirt. ll. 29-32.

Labour itself is but a sorrowful song,
The protest of the weak against the strong.

F. W. FABER. The Sorrowful World.

For men must work and women must
weep,

And the sooner it's over the sooner to
sleep,

And good-bye to the bar and its moaning.

CHAS. KINGSLEY. Three Fishers.

Get lease to work

In this world—'tis the best you get at all!

For God in cursing, gives us better gifts

Than men in benediction.

MRS. BROWNING. Aurora Leigh.

The world waits
For help. Beloved, let us love so well,
Our work shall still be better for our
love,
And still our love be sweeter for our
work,
And both commended, for the sake of each,
By all true workers and true lovers
born.

Ibid. Aurora Leigh.

Our grand business undoubtedly is,
not to see what lies dimly at a distance,
but to do what lies clearly at hand.

CARLYLE. Essays: Signs of the Times.

Man is immortal till his work is done.

DR. JAMES WILLIAMS. Ethandune. Sonnet. Concluding line.

No man is born into the world whose work

Is not born with him. There is always
work,

And tools to work withal, for those who
will;

And blessed are the horny hands of toil.

LOWELL. A Glance Behind the Curtain.

Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans

Upon his hoe, and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face

And on his back the burden of the world.

Who made him dead to rapture and
despair,

A thing that grieves not and that never hopes

Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?

C. R. MARKHAM. The Man with the Hoe.

WORLD.

Then I began to think, that it is very true which is commonly said, that the one-half of the world knoweth not how the other half liveth.

RABELAIS. Works. Bk. ii. Ch. xxxii.

Gratiano. You have too much respect upon the world:

They lose it that do buy it with much care.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
1. Sc. 1. l. 74.

Hamlet. How weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable
Seem to me all the uses of this world!
Fye on't! oh, fye! 'tis an unweeded
garden,
That grows to seed; things rank, and gross in nature,
Possess it merely.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act i. Sc. 2. l. 133.

Hamlet. For some must watch, while some must sleep;
So runs the world away.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 284.

Pistol. Why, then, the world's mine oyster,
Which I with sword will open.

Ibid. Merry Wives of Windsor. Act ii.
Sc. 2. l. 2.

The world in all doth but two nations
bear,

The good, the bad, and these mixed everywhere.

MARVELL. The Loyal Scot.

Above the smoke and stir of this dim
spot
Which men call Earth.

MILTON. Comus. l. 5.

A boundless continent,
Dark, waste, and wild, under the frown
of night

Starless expos'd.

Ibid. Paradise Lost. Bk. iii. l. 423.

There was all the world and his wife.

SWIFT. Polite Conversation. Dialogue
iii.

It is a very good world to live in,
To lend, or to spend, or to give in;
But to beg, or to borrow, or to get a man's own,

It's the very worst world that ever was known.

Attributed to the EARL OF ROCHESTER.

Courts and camps are the only places to learn the world in.

LORD CHESTERFIELD. Letter to His Son.
Oct. 2, 1747.

The world is a comedy to those who think, a tragedy to those who feel.

HORACE WALPOLE. *Letter to Sir Horace
Mann*. 1770.

He sees that this great roundabout
The world, with all its motley rout,
Church, army, physic, law,
Its customs and its businesses,
Is no concern at all of his,

And says—what says he?—Caw.

COWPER. The Jackdaw. (Translation from Vincent Bourne.)

The world's great age begins anew,
The golden years return,
The earth doth like a snake renew
Her winter weeds outworn.

SHELLEY. Hellas. l. 1060.

What! alive, and so bold, O earth?

Ibid. Written on Hearing the News of the Death of Napoleon.

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending we lay waste our powers;

Little we see in Nature that is ours.

WORDSWORTH. Miscellaneous Sonnets.

But each day brings its petty dust
Our soon-chok'd souls to fill,
And we forget because we must
And not because we will.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Absence.

I have not loved the world, nor the world me;

I have not flatter'd its rank breath, nor bow'd

To its idolatries a patient knee,— Nor coin'd my cheek to smiles,—nor cried aloud

In worship of an echo; in the crowd
They could not deem me one of such;
I stood

Among them, but not of them; in a shroud

Of thoughts which were not their thoughts, and still could,

Had I not filed my mind, which thus itself subdued.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii.
St. 113.

I never have sought the world; the world was not to seek me.

DR. JOHNSON. Boswell's Life.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude after our own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.

EMERSON. Essays: Self-reliance.

Good bye, proud world! I'm going home;
Thou art not my friend, and I'm not thine.
Ibid. Good-bye.

Yes, Heaven is thine; but this
Is a world of sweets and sour;
Our flowers are merely—flowers,
And the shadow of thy perfect bliss
Is the sunshine of ours.

POE. Israfel.

The world goes up and the world goes
down,

And the sunshine follows the rain;
And yesterday's sneer and yesterday's
frown

Can never come over again,
Sweet wife.

No, never come over again.

CHARLES KINGSLEY. Dolcino to Margaret.

One day with life and heart,
Is more than time enough to find a
world.

LOWELL. Columbus. Last lines.

This fine old world of ours is but a child

Yet in the go-cart. Patience! Give it
time

To learn its limbs: there is a hand that guides.

TENNYSON. The Princess. Conclusion.

For what are they all in their high conceit,

When man in the bush with God may
meet?

EMERSON. Good-bye, Proud World.

However, you're a man, you've seen
the world—

The beauty and the wonder and the power,

The shapes of things, their colours,
lights and shades,

Changes, surprises—and God made it
all!

ROBERT BROWNING. Men and Women:
Fra Lippo Lippi. ll. 276-9.

This world's no blot for us, Nor blank; it means intensely, and means good:

To find its meaning is my meat and drink.

Ibid. Men and Women: Fra Lippo Lippi.
ll. 307-9.

The world but feels the present's spell,
The poet feels the past as well.

MATTHEW ARNOLD. Bacchania, or The New Age. ii. ll. 65, 66.

Wandering between two worlds, one
dead,

The other powerless to be born,
With nowhere yet to rest my head,
Like these, on earth I wait forlorn.

Ibid. Stanzas from the Grande Chartreuse.

WORLD, END OF THE.

Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of Man cometh.

New Testament. St. Matthew xxiv.
44.

Dies iræ, dies illa Sæclum solvet in favilla

Teste David cum Sibylla, etc.

That day of wrath, that dreadful day
When heaven and earth shall pass away
As David and the Sybils say.

THOMAS DE CELANO. Dies Irae. l. 1.

Macbeth. What! will the line stretch out till the crack of doom?

SHAKESPEARE. Macbeth. Act iv. Sc. 1.
l. 117.

Prospero. Our revels now are ended:
these our actors,

As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air:

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,

The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,

The solemn temples, the great globe
itself,

Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve;
And, like this insubstantial pageant
faded,

Leave not a rack behind: We are such stuff

As dreams are made on, and our little
life

Is rounded with a sleep.

Ibid. The Tempest. Act iv. Sc. 1. l. 148.

[The marble figure of Shakespeare, in Westminster Abbey, which was designed by Kent and executed by Scheemakers, bears in its left hand the following mutilation of Shakespeare's lines:

The cloud capt Tow'rs
The Gorgeous Palaces,
The Solemn Temples,
The Great Globe itself,
Yea all which it inherit,
Shall dissolve

And like the baseless Fabrick of a Vision
Leave not a wreck behind.

It is possible that Shakespeare had in mind these lines which were published in 1603:

Let greatnesse of her glassie scepters vaunt,
Not scepters, no, but reeds, soone bruis'd,
soone broken;

And let this worldlie pompe our wits enchant,
All fades and scarcelye leaves behinde a token.

Those golden palaces, those gorgeous halls,
With furniture superfluously faire;

Those statlie courts, those sky-encount'ring walls

Evanish all—like vapours in the aire.

ALEXANDER, EARL OF STERLING. Illusion.]

WORM.

Clifford. The smallest worm will turn being trodden on,

And doves will peck in safeguard of their brood.

SHAKESPEARE. III. Henry VI. Act ii.
Sc. 2. l. 17.

Poor worms being trampled on Turn tail, as bidding battle to the feet
Of their oppressors.

RANDOLPH. The Muses' Looking-glass.
Act iii. Sc. 3.

Hamlet. Your worm is your only emperor for diet; we fat all creatures else to fat us, and we fat ourselves for maggots.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 3.
l. 22.

Hamlet. A man may fish with a worm that hath eat of a king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm.

Ibid. Hamlet. Act iv. Sc. 3. l. 28.

Out—out are the lights—out all!

And, over each quivering form,
The curtain, a funeral pall,

Comes down with the rush of a storm,
And the angels, all pallid and wan,

Uprising, unveiling, affirm

That the play is the tragedy, "Man,"

And its hero the Conqueror Worm.

POE. The Conqueror Worm, St. 5.

The spirit of the worm beneath the sod
In love and worship blinds itself with God.

SHELLEY. Epipsychidion. l. 124.

A loving worm within its clod,
Were diviner than a loveless God.

R. BROWNING. Christmas Day.

For every worm beneath the moon Draws different threads, and late and soon

Spins, toiling out his own cocoon.

TENNYSON. The Two Voices. St. 60.

WORSHIP.

How often from the steep
Of echoing hill or thicket have we heard

Celestial voices to the midnight air,
Sole, or responsive each to other's note,
Singing their great Creator?

MILTON. Paradise Lost. Bk. iv. l. 680.

Ay, call it holy ground,

The soil where first they trod:
They have left unstained what there they found,—

Freedom to worship God.

MRS. HEMANS. Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Man always worships something:
always he sees the Infinite shadowed forth in something finite; and indeed can and must so see it in any finite thing, once tempt him well to fix his eyes thereon.

CARLYLE. Essays. Goethe's Works.

Life's one joy is this,
To love, to taste the soul's divine delight Of loving some most lovely soul or
sight—

To worship still, though never an answering sign

Should come from Love asleep within the shrine.

THEODORE WATTS-DUNTON. *The Coming
of Love*.

WORTH.

'Tis fortune gives us birth,
But Jove alone endues the soul with
worth.

HOMER. Iliad. Bk. xx. l. 290.
(POPE, trans.)

So much is a man worth as he esteems himself.

RABELAIS. Works. Bk. ii. Ch. xxix.

A pilot's part in calms cannot be spy'd,
In dangerous times true worth is only tri'd.

STIRLING. Doomes-day. The Fifth Hour.

Juliet. They are but beggars that can count their worth.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act ii.
Sc. 6. l. 29.

O, how thy worth with manners may I
sing,

When thou art all the better part of
me?

What can mine own praise to mine own
self bring?

And what is't but mine own when I
praise thee?

Ibid. Sonnet xxxix.

Arthur. I would that I were low laid in my grave;

I am not worth this coil that's made for
me.

Ibid. King John. Act ii. Sc. 1. l. 164.

All human things

Of dearest value hang on slender strings.

EDMUND WALLER. Miscellanies. i. l. 163.

For what is worth in anything

But so much money as 'twill bring.

BUTLEE. Hudibras. Pt. ii. Canto 1. l. 465.

Everything is worth what its purchaser will pay for it.

PUBLILIUS SYRUS. Maxim 847.

Talents angel-bright,

If wanting worth are shining instruments

In false ambition's hand, to finish faults

Illustrious, and give infamy renown.

YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night vi. l. 276.

It is a maxim, that those to whom everybody allows the second place have
an undoubted title to the first.

SWIFT. Tale of a Tub. Dedication.

Worth makes the man, and want of it the fellow.

The rest is all but leather or prunello.

POPE. Essay on Man. Ep. iv. l. 203.

Slow rises worth, by poverty depress'd :
But here more slow, where all are slaves
to gold,
Where looks are merchandise, and smiles are sold ;
Where won by bribes, by flatteries
implo'r'd,
The groom retails the favours of his lord.

DR. S. JOHNSON. London. l. 177.

Now cheaply bought for thrice their weight in gold.

JOHN FERRIAR. *Illustrations of Sterne :
Bibliomania*. l. 65.

Beauties in vain their pretty eyes may roll ;

Charns strike the sight, but merit wins
the soul.

POPE. Rape of the Lock. Canto v. l. 33.

WOUND.

Tacitum vivit sub pectore vulnus.

The secret wound still lives within the breast.

VIRGIL. Æneid. iv. 67.

H' had got a hurt

O' th' inside of a deadlier sort.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Part i. Canto iii.
l. 309.

Mercutio. No, 'tis not so deep as a well, nor so wide as a church door ; but
'tis enough, 'twill serve.

SHAKESPEARE. Romeo and Juliet. Act
iii. Sc. 1. l. 99.

Antony. Show you sweet Cæsar's wounds, poor, poor dumb mouths,
And bid them speak for me.

Ibid. Julius Cæsar. Act iii. Sc. 2. l. 229.

Iago. What wound did ever heal but by degrees ?

Ibid. Othello. Act ii. Sc. 3. l. 377.

What deep wounds ever closed without a scar ?

The heart's bleed longest, and but heal to wear

That which disfigures it.

BYRON. Childe Harold. Canto iii. St. 84.

Lafen. A scar nobly got, or a noble scar, is a good livery of honour.

Ibid. All's Well that Ends Well. Act iv.
Sc. 5. l. 105.

Gashed with honourable scars.

R MONTGOMERY. Battle of Alexandria.

My wound is great because it is so small.

DRYDEN. All for Love.

[On the first night of the play's production the Duke of Buckingham shouted from his box : "Then 'twould be greater if 'twere none at all."]

WRITING.

Tenet insanabile multos Scribendi cacoethes, et aegro in corde
senescit.

An incurable itch for scribbling seizes many, and grows inveterate in their insane breasts.

JUVENAL. Satires. vii. S. 1.

Hamlet. I once did hold it, as our statists do,

A baseness to write fair ; and labored
much

How to forget that learning ; but, sir,
now

It did me yeoman's service.

SHAKESPEARE. Hamlet. Act. v. Sc. 2. l. 36.

Poets lose half the praise they should have got,

Could it be known what they discreetly blot.

WALLER. On Roscommon's Translation of De Arte Poetica.

Beneath the rule of men entirely great,
The pen is mightier than the sword.

BULWER-LYTTON. Richelieu. Act. ii. Sc. 2.

This may be a reminiscence of the Latin phrase quoted by Burton (Anatomy of Melancholy, Part I., Sec. 2, Mem. 4, Subs. 4), "Hinc quam sit calamus seavior ense, patet" ("From this it appears how much more cruel the pen may be than the sword"). But Saint-Simon comes closer to Bulwer's thought in his "Memoirs," iii, 517 (1702), ed.
1856 : "Tant la plume a eu sous le roi d'a-vantage sur l'épée" ("So much had the pen, under the king, the advantage over the sword"). Other more or less close anticipations are the following :

Anser, apis, vitellus, populus et regna
gubernant

Goose, bee, and calf—i. e., pen, wax and parchment govern the world.

Quoted by JAMES HOWELL. Letters. Bk. ii.
Letter 2.

Thoughts are mightier than strength of hand.

SOPHOCLES. Fragment 584.

The mob of gentlemen that write with ease.

POPE. Essay on Criticism.

You write with ease to show your breeding,
But easy writing's curst hard reading.
SHERIDAN. Clio's Protest. See MOORE. Life of Sheridan, v. i, p. 155.

Though an angel should write, still 'tis devils must print.
THOMAS MOORE. The Fudges in England.
Letter 3.

Could I wreak my thoughts upon expression.
BYRON. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. Canto iii.
297.

Ce que l'on conçoit bien s'énonce claire-
ment,
Et les mots pour le dire arrivent aisé-
ment.

Whatever we conceive well we express clearly, and words flow with ease.
BOILEAU—L'Art Poétique. I. 153.

Le style est l'homme même.
The style is the man himself.
BUFFON. Discours de Reception (Recueil de l'Académie.) 1753. p. 337.

Of writing many books there is no end.
ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.
Aurora Leigh. bk. I. l. 1.

YEAR.

Eheu! fugaces labuntur anni.
Alas! the fleeting years are passing
away!
HORACE. Odes. ii, 14, 1.

But to the dwellers in eternity
A thousand years shall as a moment be.
ABRAHAM COLES. The Microcosm and other Poems. P. 289.

That gems the starry girdle of the year.
CAMPBELL. Pleasures of Hope. Pt. ii.
l. 114.

Winter is come and gone
But grief returns with the revolving
year.
SHELLEY. Adonais. St. 18.

There are no birds in last year's nest!
LONGFELLOW. It is not always May. last
line.

Never look for birds of this year in the nests of the last.
CERVANTES. Don Quixote. Pt. ii, ch. 74.

Mais ou sont les neiges d'autan?
But where are the snows of yester-year?
VILLON. Ballade of Bygone Ladies.
(JOHN PAYNE, trans.)

Like yonder stars so bright and clear
That praise their Maker as they move,
And usher in the circling year.
SCHILLER. Song of the Bell.
(BOWRING trans.)

Dip down upon the Northern shore,
O sweet New Year, delaying long:
Thou dost expectant Nature wrong
Delaying long, delay no more.
TENNYSON. Spring.

Six years—six little years—six drops of time!
MATTHEW ARNOLD. Mycerinus. St. 11.

YESTERDAY.

(See TO-DAY.)

Yesterday, and to-day, and forever
New Testament. Hebrews. xiii. 8.

Whose yesterdays look backward with a smile.
YOUNG. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 334.
'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours.
Ibid. Night Thoughts. Night ii. l. 376.

O Death! O Change! O Time!
Without you, O, the insufferable eyes
Of these poor Might-Have-Beens,
These fatuous, ineffectual Yesterdays!
W. E. HENLEY. Poems: Rhymes and Rhythms, XIII. To James McNeill
Whistler. l. 27.

YOUTH.

Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things; so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.
Old Testament. Psalms. ciii. 5.

The glory of young men is their strength; and the beauty of old men is the hoary head.
Ibid. Proverbs. Ch. xx. ver. 29.

Ah, youth! forever dear, forever kind.
HOMER. Iliad. Bk. xix. l. 303.
(POPE's trans.)

Virginibus puerisque canto.

I sing to youths and maids alone.
HORACE. Odes. iii. 1, 4.

Solet hic pueris virginibusque legi.
Him boys and girls alike are wont to read.
OVID. Tristia. ii. 370. (Of Menander.)

O formose puer, nimium ne crede colori.
O, pretty boy, trust not too much to your rosy looks!

VIRGIL. Aeneid. Canto ii. l. 17.

Quem di diligunt adolescens moritur
dum valet, sentit, sapit.

He whom the gods love dies young, while he is in health, has his senses and his judgment sound.

PLAUTUS. Bacchides. iv. 7. 18.

[See under DEATH.]

Maxima debetur puero reverentia.

Great reverence is due to boyhood.

JUVENAL. Satires. xiv. 44.

She may guess what I should perform in the wet, if I do so much in the dry.

CERVANTES. Don Quixote.

Crabbed age and youth cannot live together;

Youth is full of pleasance, age is full
of care;

Youth like summer morn, age like winter weather;

Youth like summer brave, age like winter bare.

Youth is full of sport, age's breath is short:

Youth is nimble, age is lame;

Youth is hot and bold, age is weak and cold;

Youth is wild, and age is tame.

Age, I do abhor thee; youth I do adore
thee.

BARNARD. The Passionate Pilgrim. St. 12.

It is better to be an old man's derling than a yong man's werling.

JOHN HEYWOOD. Proverbs. Pt ii. Ch. 7.

Young men think old men are fools;
but old men know young men are fools.

CHAPMAN. All Fools. Act v. Sc. 1.

Portia. I'll hold thee any wager,
When we are both accouter'd like young men,

I'll prove the prettier fellow of the two,
And wear my dagger with the braver
grace;

And speak, between the change of man
and boy,

With a reed voice; and turn two mincing steps

Into a manly stride; and speak of frays,

Like a fine bragging youth: and tell quaint lies,
How honourable ladies sought my love,
Which I denying they fell sick and
died;

I could not do withal: then I'll repent,
And wish, for all that, that I had not
kill'd them:

And twenty of these puny lies I'll tell,
That men shall swear I have discontinued school

Above a twelvemonth:—I have within my mind

A thousand raw tricks of these bragging
Jacks,

Which I will practise.

SHAKESPEARE. Merchant of Venice. Act
iii. Sc. 4. l. 62.

Just at the age 'twixt boy and youth,
When thought is speech, and speech is
truth.

SCOTT. Marmion. Introduction to Canto ii.

Standing with reluctant feet,
Where the brook and river meet,
Womanhood and childhood fleet!

LONGFELLOW. Maidenhood.

Cleopatra. My salad days;

When I was green in judgment, cold in blood.

SHAKESPEARE. Antony and Cleopatra.
Act i. Sc. 5. l. 73.

Pandulph. How green you are and fresh in this old world.

Ibid. King John. Act iii. Sc. 4. l. 145.

Youth, what man's age is like to be,
doth show;

We may our ends by our beginnings
know.

DENHAM. On Prudence. l. 225.

That age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But, being spent, the worse and worst Times still succeed the former.

HERRICK. Amatory Odes. 93.

Youth is a continual intoxication; it is the fever of reason.

LA ROCHEFOUCAULD. Maxim. 271.

Young men soon give and soon forget affronts;

Old age is slow in both.

ADDISON. Cato. Act ii. Sc. 5.

When the brisk minor pants for twenty-one.

POPE. Epistle I. Bk. i. l. 38.

Young fellows will be young fellows.

BICKERSTAFF. Love in a Village. Act ii. Sc. 2.

Fair laughs the morn, and soft the zephyr blows,

While proudly rising o'er the azure realm

In gallant trim the gilded vessel goes, Youth on the prow, and Pleasure at the helm.

GRAY. The Bard. Pt ii. St. 2.

Our youth we can have but to-day;

We may always find time to grow old.

BISHOP BERKELEY? Can Love be Controlled by Advice.

The atrocious crime of being a young man, which the honourable gentleman has with such spirit and decency charged upon me, I shall neither attempt to palliate nor deny; but content myself with wishing that I may be one of those whose follies may cease with their youth, and not of that number who are ignorant in spite of experience.

DR. JOHNSON. *Pitt's Reply to Walpole.
Speech. March 6, 1741.*

[This is the composition of Johnson, founded on some note or statement of the actual speech. Johnson said, "That speech
I wrote in a garret, in Exeter Street."

BOSWELL. Life of Johnson. 1741.]

If youth be a defect, it is one that we outgrow only too soon.

LOWELL. *Democracy and Other Addresses.
Address, Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8, 1886. Harvard Anniversary.*

Towering in the confidence of twenty-
one.

DR. JOHNSON. *Letter to Bennet Langton.
Jan. 9, 1758.*

'Tis now the summer of your youth.
Time has not cropt the roses from your cheek,

Though sorrow long has washed them.

EDWARD MOORE. *The Gamester. Act iii.
Sc. 4.*

Unthinking, idle, wild, and young,
I laugh'd and danc'd and talk'd and sung.

PRINCESS AMELIA. (Daughter of George III.)

O, Life! how pleasant is thy morning,
Young Fancy's rays the hills adorning!
Cold pausing Caution's lesson scorning,

We frisk away,
Like schoolboys at the expected warning,

To joy and play.

BURNS. Epistle to James Smith.

Oh! enviable, early days,
When dancing thoughtless pleasure's maze,

To care, to guilt unknown!
How ill exchanged for riper times,
To feel the follies, or the crimes,
Of others, or my own!

Ibid. Despondency.

Young heads are giddy, and young hearts are warm,
And make mistakes for manhood to
reform.

Boys are, at best, but pretty buds un-
blown,

Whose scent and hues are rather guess'd than known.

Each dreams that each is just what he
appears,

But learns his error in maturer years,
When disposition, like a sail unfurl'd, Shows all its rents and patches to the world.

COWPER. Tirocinium.

Bliss was it in that dawn to be alive,
But to be young was very Heaven!

WORDSWORTH. The Prelude. Bk. xi.

A youth to whom was given
So much of earth, so much of heaven.

Ibid. Ruth.

Life went a-maying
With Nature, Hope, and Poesy,
When I was young!

When I was young?—Ah, woeful when!
Ah, for the change 'twixt now and then!
This breathing house not built with
hands,

This body that does me grievous wrong,
O'er æry cliffs and glittering sands,
How lightly then it flashed along:
Like those trim skiffs, unknown of yore,
On winding lakes and rivers wide,
That ask no aid of sail or oar,
That fear no spite of wind or tide!

COLERIDGE. Youth and Age.

Nought cared this body for wind or weather

When youth and I lived in 't together.

Ibid. Youth and Age.

Flowers are lovely; love is flower-like;
Friendship is a sheltering tree;
Oh the joys that came down shower-
like,

Of friendship, love, and liberty,

Ere I was old!

Ibid. Youth and Age.

The smiles, the tears

Of boyhood's years,

The words of love then spoken.

MOORE. Oft in the Stilly Night.

In life's morning march, when my bosom was young.

CAMPBELL. The Soldier's Dream.

I was most ready to return a blow,
And would not brook at all this sort of
thing,

In my hot youth, when George the Third was king.

BYRON. Don Juan. Canto i. St. 212.

And both were young, and one was beautiful.

Ah! happy years! once more who would not be a boy!

Ibid. Childe Harold. Canto ii. St. 23.

Oh talk not to me of a name great in
story;

The days of our youth are the days of our glory.

Ibid. Stanzas written on the road between Florence and Pisa. I.

When all the world is young, lad,

And all the trees are green;

And every goose a swan, lad,

And every lass a queen:

Then hey for boot and horse, lad,

And round the world away;

Young blood must have its course, lad,
And every dog his day.

How beautiful is youth! how bright it
gleams

With its illusions, aspirations, dreams!
Book of Beginnings, Story without End,
Each maid a heroine, and each man a friend!

. . . . .

All possibilities are in its hands,
No danger daunts it, and no foe withstands;

In its sublime audacity of faith,
"Be thou removed!" it to the mountain
saith,

And with ambitious feet, secure and
proud,

Ascends the ladder leaning on the cloud!

LONGFELLOW. Morituri Salutamus.

I remember the gleams and glooms that
dart

Across the school-boy's brain;

The song and the silence in the heart,
That in part are prophecies, and in part
Are longings wild and vain.

And the voice of that fitful song

Sings on, and is never still:

"A boy's will is the wind's will,
And the thoughts of youth are long,
long thoughts."

Ibid. My Lost Youth.

O for one hour of youthful joy!

Give back my twentieth spring!

I'd rather laugh, a bright-haired boy

Than reign a gray-beard king.

HOLMES. The Old Man Dreams.

There are gains for all our losses,

There are balms for all our pain;

But when youth, the dream, departs,

It takes something from our hearts,

And it never comes again.

R. H. STODDARD. Never Again.

A young man will be wiser by-and-by;

An old man's wit may wander ere he
die.

TENNYSON. The Coming of Arthur.

Ah, what shall I be at fifty

Should Nature keep me alive,

If I find the world so bitter

When I am but twenty-five?

Ibid. Maud. Pt. i. vi. St. 5.

A year ago and blithely paired Their rough and tumble play they shared;

They kissed and quarrelled, laughed and cried

A year ago at Eastertide.

With bursting heart, with fiery face,
 She strove against him in the race;
 He unabashed her garter saw That now would touch her skirts with awe.

R. L. STEVENSON. Underwoods. iv.

ZEAL.

For zeal's a dreadful termagant
 That teaches saints to tear and cant.

BUTLER. Hudibras. Pt. iii. Canto 2.
 l. 673.

But his zeal
 None seconded, as out of season judged,
 Or singular and rash.

MILTON. Bk. v. l. 849.

For virtue's self may too much zeal be
 had

The worst of madmen is a saint run mad.

POPE. Horace. Bk. i. Ep. vi. l. 26.

ZEPHYR.

Zephyr with Aurora playing
 As he met her once a-Maying;
 There on beds of violets blue
 And fresh-blown roses washed in dew,
 Filled her with thee, a daughter fair,
 So buxom, blithe, and debonair.

MILTON. L'Allegro. l. 19.

[The last line is borrowed without acknowledgment from Randolph:

A bowl of wine is wondrous good cheer
 To make one blithe, buxom, and debonair.
 THOMAS RANDOLPH. The Jealous Lovers.

Soft is the strain when zephyr gently blows.

POPE. Essay on Criticism. Pt. ii. l. 366.

Soft o'er the shrouds ærial whispers breathe

That seemed but zephyrs to the train
